"My efforts have always been to work for all the citizens of Eveline Township," he added.

Skrzeczkoski's statement claims that after hearing residents' concerns, he worked to create a more restrictive ordinance even though the original ordinance was lawfully adopted. And that the board voted unanimously against the Way rezone request.

The township board met last night, Tuesday, to adopt the revised ordinance.

Opponents of wind turbine generators who have formed the Eveline Township Preservation Group have said they appreciate the work their public officials have done to draft a more restrictive ordinance addressing wind turbines. But they have still opted to pursue the recall.

The recall campaign process started in mid-August of 2002 and signed petitions were turned in Nov. 25 of that year. Due to misinformation given to the group by county clerk Jane Brannon, many of the signatures had exceeded the 90-day expiration period and were invalid.

Nancy Ferguson, a petitioner and a member of the Eveline Township Preservation Group, went to the county commission and asked its members to vote to reimburse petitioners $1,287.50 for costs incurred in mounting the campaign.

The commission denied the request, but the group didn't give up.

The first name in round two of the recall effort was signed Dec. 26 and the last signature came in Feb. 9, within the required 90-day period. Seven petitioners collected the 203 signatures over a 46-day period. The signatures were filed with the clerk's office Feb. 10.

Because the recall election is considered a special election, its cost will fall on the township. And because Hayden, who normally runs elections, is part of the recall there will be the cost of bringing in a county worker.

Skrzeczkoski said this will likely be "a few thousand dollars."

Aside from the statements written on the ballot, Hayden and Skrzeczkoski both said they plan to send written literature to residents and will continue to conduct township business.

"I have to do something with this, I can't just totally sit back. Hopefully we can get some accurate information to the people. Their allegations are pretty inaccurate and false," Skrzeczkoski said.

Representatives of the recall campaign declined to comment for this story.

A night at the movies with music

Marina LaBlanc's elementary school music students had their annual spring musical Wednesday night at the Charlevoix Middle School. The theme for this year's event was a night at the movies. DDA considers portable bathroom trailer downtown

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

John Campbell, representing the Chamber of Commerce, asked Charlevoix's Downtown Development Authority (DDA) to fund a portable bathroom facility to be used in the city this summer.

Campbell, the newly appointed chairman of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors, presented the proposal to the DDA at its meeting March 24.

The DDA showed interest in the chamber's plan to locate a mobile trailer bathroom facility in town to ease the burden of finding an available public bathroom.

"There is no doubt that at certain times we just don't have enough (public bathrooms)," DDA chairman Hugh Mason said.

And Campbell said as a resort and tourist town, by not providing adequate facilities Charlevoix is not offering a valuable service to residents and visitors.

"We invite people to the community and we want to treat them well. This would be positive for the community," he said.

The plan Campbell presented includes a 48-foot-long, 8-foot-wide semi-trailer, similar to units used on movie sets that can be bought, painted and used for years.

The trailer has its own plumbing system and offers three women's toilets and sinks, four individual showers and three men's urinal, sink and toilet units. It is handicapped accessible by ramp, has vinyl flooring, laminate on the walls, light fixtures, exhaust fans, hot and cold running water and all the extras.

Members of the DDA liked the trailer idea as opposed to individual portable bathroom units the city

Stellar season ends for Rayders

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

A run at the basketball semifinals in Lansing ended very close for the Charlevoix Rayders March 18, but not close enough.

The varsity basketball team lost a physical game to Ishpeming Westwood in the quarterfinal game that night in Cheboygan, 44-43, that would've brought the players into semifinal action.

"It was kind of bittersweet," Charlevoix coach Keith Haske said. "I was disappointed, because obviously we wanted to keep playing.

"But on the other hand, I am really proud of the team's effort. They kept fighting and came back and had a chance to win it at the end."

Throughout the game, the score was back-and-forth between Charlevoix and Ishpeming with plenty of pushing and fouls.

But, the game came down to a final drive by Charlevoix with

With just 14 seconds left, Charlevoix's Scott Friske pushed his way to the hole and went up for a basket, but came up short. Charlevoix's Ben Bergmann got the rebound and threw for the net at the buzzer, but again, this shot was short.

In the end, all that stood in the way of a victory and the semifinals game in Lansing was a needed two-point basket that would have put Charlevoix up by one point.

Friske ended the game with 21 points, Drew Wright had six points, Bryce Daly had five points and Nate Teuscher had four points and four assists.

Charlevoix will have six players who will graduate this year: Spencer Bryan, Todd Carey, David Shearer, Travis Smith, Donovan Swanson and Teuscher.

"I'm pleased they (seniors) could go out champions, winning the district and regional. That was quite an accomplishment," Haske said.

Several of the team members will return next year and Haske said he anticipates the team will be "really competitive."

'Great Fish-In' program to air

PACE TV, an educational television network sponsored by the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, will air a program on the "Great Fish-In" effort in Northern Michigan.

During Community Forum, Nancy Porter from the American Red Cross will talk about the ongoing art project taking place in communities around the north, including in Charlevoix. One of the artistic fish being painted and decorated around area towns is located at Charlevoix State Bank, 111 State St.

The PACE program will air from 8-8:30 p.m. Friday, March 28, and be replayed from 5-5:30 p.m. Saturday, March 29, and again from 11-11:30 a.m. Sunday, March 30.

In Charlevoix, the program can be seen on cable channel 2.

Development construction set to begin

By JULIE WITTHOEFT

What appears to be a massive bonfire that has burned over the past two weeks off US-31 in Hayes Township is a land-clearing project to make way for a road and utilities that will serve a possible planned unit development.

The property currently being cleared lies between the Bethany Lutheran Church and the Vidosh Landscaping parcel.

The complete proposed development which the road and utilities may service includes: a hotel, office space, senior housing, restaurant, retail space, grocery store, apartments and self-storage buildings. It covers 73 acres, with 44 acres in Hayes Township and 29 acres in Charlevoix Township.

The first part of the project, a new hotel, will be undertaken by David Haywood, a developer from Lansing, who is expecting to break ground this summer. Once construction starts, he estimates the hotel will be built in six to eight months.

The hotel, Americinn Motel and Suites, will be a two-story, 54-unit structure with an indoor swimming pool and on-site parking. It will span almost 4 acres and will be located northeast of Bethany Lutheran Church, fronting US-31.

The land being cleared will not be the site of the hotel, which will be located north of the church where there currently stands a patch of white birch trees.

The Hayes Township Planning Commission recently granted the landowner, Dorian Lange on behalf of Lange Limited, LLC, of Eaton Rapids, a zoning and site plan approval extension of one year to construct the hotel.

The extension was needed because the commission approved the concept for the overall development and hotel site plan approval on March 19, 2002 and that approval expired.

Each proposed site has to be approved by the township in which it is planned and the Hayes Township hotel is currently the only approved site. Haywood said that no other site plan approvals for other developments have been requested at this time.

In a previous interview, Lange said his next move is to request site plan approval for the senior housing and assisted living complex planned for property behind the church.

The entrance and exit to the hotel, and the development that may accompany it, was built last summer, across from the Charlevoix Country Club entrance.

MAR 2003

Stormy weather season fast approaching

Of the estimated 100,000 thunderstorms that occur each year in the United States, about 10 percent are severe, with strong winds, possibility of hail and other events that could wreak major damage to your dwelling if you are not prepared, says AAA Michigan.

Michigan averages 16 tornadoes during the typical April to August season. In 2002, 12 were reported. The peak occurs in May and June. One of the eight deadliest twisters in U.S. history occurred in Flint 50 years ago when a storm caused 116 deaths and 844 injuries. It was the last single tornado in the nation to kill more than 100. It will be commemorated in Flint June 8.

Make all family members familiar with your community's severe weather warning system and what to do and where to meet if a warning sounds. Follow these steps to help you plan, advises AAA:

— Designate a family shelter. In stick-built homes, it should be near the centermost portion of your home, preferably a basement. Avoid doors and windows. It should be under something sturdy such as a staircase, workbench or temporary shelter space with overhead protection. As a rule of thumb, if you don't have a basement, put as many walls between you and the tornado as possible. If you are in a mobile home, designate a shelter in a permanent structure.

— Prepare a severe storm and disaster safety kit for your shelter area. It should include basics such as: a portable weather radio, flashlights and lanterns and spare batteries for each; a basic tool kit, emergency cooking equipment and canned or boxed food you don't have to refrigerate or cook; a three-day supply of drinking water; gloves, prescription medications, credit cards and cash; extra car and house keys and important documents, and an annually updated photo or video record of each room for your homeowner's insurance coverage. Blankets, sleeping bags or other items also can protect against flying debris.

— If you are in a trailer or mobile home, seek other shelter immediately, like a ditch. If there is no time, use the bathtub. Homes with tie-downs provide some protection, but because of their light construction, they are vulnerable to high winds and debris.

— Make a habit of removing items that can become flying debris from your yard if a tornado watch is announced.

— Opening your windows to reduce "pressure" is a myth. Tornadoes don't cause a house to "explode" and this will only allow wind and rain to damage the interior. The most important step is to seek shelter.

— If you are in a car when a tornado is imminent, don't try to outrun it. Many are killed or injured by remaining in their vehicles, say weather officials. Leave your vehicle and find the best available shelter. Ditches, culverts and uppermost freeway overpass steel superstructures may provide limited protection. Solid overpasses provide little protection.

When remodeling or building a new home, consider installing:

— A study, dedicated "safe room" in the lowest portion of the home.

— Roof trusses and other structural supports designed to withstand high winds, and upper story framing that is securely connected to the lower part of the house with wind-resistant fasteners.

— Impact-resistant windows. Consider replacing glass door panels with plastic. If you are re-shingling a roof, consider using coverings that are high-wind resistant and tape along roof sheathing joints to provide an additional moisture barrier.

Additional bathroom units being considered by DDA

TRAILER

currently offers.

Mayor and DDA member Gabe Campbell said, "I think they (the current portable bathrooms) are a mess. I would like to see them get rid of these."

During the summer, the city offers single portable units at the base of Clinton Street and in the Erber parking lot.

Members of the DDA agreed that the trailer would be an upgrade from the single portable units, but aren't sure the shower stalls are needed.

Charlevoix City Manager Mike Wiesner said after speaking with harbormaster Hal Evans, the city's position is that the updated shower facility will be adequate. Renovations to the bathroom facilities that serve the public and boaters at the chamber of commerce are expected to be complete by May 1.

The DDA agreed to look at a trailer plan without the shower stalls and with additional bathroom units and asked Campbell to price a trailer, 40 feet long, with bathroom units only. His estimate for the originally proposed 48-foot trailer was $70,000.

DDA member Jeff Porter said, "A smaller unit, in a different location with mostly bathrooms, would be really functional."

Dan Barron, also a DDA member, agreed that reducing the size is a good idea and added that the originally proposed location for the trailer, behind the bandshell in East Park, is not desirable.

"My concern is aesthetics, the physical appearance of this structure. I think it would have a prominent profile in the (East) park," he said.

Other locations discussed by the DDA included the Erber parking lot between Mason and Clinton streets and the parking lot between Bridge and East parks.

The DDA also asked Wiesner to tally figures as to how many portable units the city currently offers and the cost of renting and maintaining them.

The chamber has been working on this idea for about two months and Keep Charlevoix Beautiful has also signed on to support the effort.

Campbell is expected to return at the DDA's April meeting with the new figures for the smaller bathroom unit. If the numbers are ready before that, a special meeting may be called.

The city currently offers public bathrooms at the chamber and harbormaster's building at both street level and below. In Bridge Park, there are handicapped accessible public bathrooms in the below-grade building. There are also public bathrooms at city hall that Wiesner said aren't easy to access.

Weight restricted on county roads

Spring can be a wonderful time for people but is a tough time for roads.

That is why the Charlevoix County Road Commission imposes weight restrictions on all county roads except seasonal roads. These restrictions mean big rigs and even pick-up trucks with heavy loads cannot travel county roads for a period of time.

"If we didn't (impose restrictions), the roads would be all busted up," Charlevoix County Road Commission Manager Pat Harmon said.

He explained that the restrictions are a way to guard the roads from the extensive damage that can be caused by heavy loads.

This breaking of the road's surface is a result of a freezing and thawing process under the road's surface that occurs during the winter to spring transition. The material under the road base freezes in the winter and when the spring thaw arrives, everything becomes soft and mushy.

"There is no stability. If you let overweight vehicles travel that, it totally destroys the blacktop," Harmon said.

Those who are wondering if this applies to them can check a reference text called, "The Truck Driver's Guide Book," available at the Secretary of State's office.

This year, weight limits went into effect March 13 and Harmon estimated they will be in effect for at least a couple more weeks, or as soon as the frost is gone and the sub-base stabilizes itself.

He anticipates the first restrictions being lifted for county roads west of US-131 and everything east of US-131 being unrestricted a couple weeks later.

Community split on reaction to war

WAR

just insane. Whatever democracy he installs will be set upon by terrorists forever," Little said.

While the two disagree on the merits of the war with Iraq, Little and Butcher agreed that it will likely not be a lengthy conflict.

"I don't think it will take very many days for us to end that war," Butcher said.

While Little echoed the thought that it should be over quickly, he said it's not a matter of how much time it takes but of the devastation that will happen during that time.

"There are a lot of dead people there right now and there will be hundreds of thousands more before this is over. It's like hell on earth," he said.

People for and against the war are expressing themselves in many ways. Little will wear a black armband to show he is opposed to the effort, while Butcher attends American Legion and VFW meetings where members will be closely watching the war progress.

The division of adult opinion is mirrored among Charlevoix teens.

Students in Charlevoix High School government teacher Annmarie Conway's classes are following the progression of the war day by day and engaging in heated debate. Kids are verbally hashing out the pros and the cons of the campaign, have written opinion pieces about it and some have attended peace marches in Petoskey.

She said based on in-class discussion, students' war opinion is split.

"We have two or three very vocal pro war students and the majority are anti-war. Then there is a silent middle range that are unsure and nervous," she said.

Many people, including adults and teens, fall in this silent group that is uneasy about war and fearful of the possible ramifications for the United States.

High school athletic director Jim Kanine said, "A lot (of the students) are fearful, just like I am."

"I hope the U.S. government exhausted every possibility and made this decision based on there being no more available options. I trust that did happen," he added.

At Charlevoix Middle and Elementary schools principals Keith Haske and Dick Swenor sent advisory e-mail to staff. They told teachers to keep the lines of communication open. At the middle school television coverage of the war has been banned.

Swenor said his students are young and don't seem worried about the war, but if an issue does arise he has told teachers to assure them the government is working to keep them safe.

One thing war opponents and supporters share is their desire to see American troops return home safely.

No one knows the depth of this hope of a safe return better than a mother whose child is serving in Iraq.

Charlevoix resident Leah Selph said goodbye to her daughter Mary, 21, a Marine with the Second FSSG Transportation Group, on Jan. 13.

Mary was initially stationed at a port in Kuwait and Leah said she now believes Mary may be at Camp Fox in Kuwait near the northern border of Iraq.

But her exact whereabouts and well-being are something she is not sure of and can only hope her daughter is safe and sound.

"There was a fear in the back of my stomach and head that something terrible might happen when I knew she was going over there. You don't want your child to go to war, but when she signed on I knew it was a possibility. I'm terrified, but I'm also proud of her," Leah said.

"The scariest thing is to hear them talk about chemical weapons he (Hussein) may have and could use. You wonder how fast will she get her gas mask and protective suit on."

In the meantime, Mary's family and the families of other Charlevoix soldiers engaged in the war effort are waiting to hear any little bit of news from their loved ones.

Mary's grandparents received a letter dated March 10 that offered them some encouragement that she was doing well.

"I think she'll be glad to see Charlevoix again," Leah said.

To help support soldiers and their families churches have held peace vigils and established prayer boards.

Recently, the local craft store, Family Affair, started an adopt-a-soldier program. Names and addresses of those serving are available at the store to start a pen pal program or to send care packages. The store is located at 161 M-66 in the Captain's Corner Plaza. For more information call Vicki McWatters or Sally Wynkoop at (231) 547-7482.

ORDER FOR ALTERNATE SERVICE BY PUBLICATION

At a session of said court held in the City of Mt. Clemens, County of Macomb, State of Michigan on March 11, 2003
PRESENT: HON. DONALD G. MILLER, CIRCUIT COURT JUDGE

This matter having come before the Court on Plaintiff's Exparte Motion for an Order Permitting Service by other manner in this action to quiet title in the name of Plaintiff, Land Contract Vendor, in a land contract dated May 2, 1970 and involving real property situated in the City of Eastpointe, County of Macomb, Michigan, and more specifically described as: Lot 315, Longacres Subdivision No. 1, according to the plat thereof as recorded in Liber 7, Page 12 of Plats, Macomb County Records, Tax Item: 14-32-101-018, commonly known as 22404 Cushing (hereinafter referred to as the "subject property").

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that this order be published once per week for three consecutive weeks in the Macomb County Legal News and in a newspaper as defined under 2.106(f) for the County of Charlevoix and that a copy of this order and the complaint filed in this matter be mailed to the daughter of Defendants at her last known address.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Defendants and/or their heirs, devisees or assignees or any other claimants in the subject property answer Plaintiff's complaint, or take other action permitted by law or court rule, at the Macomb County Circuit Court, 40 North Main St., Mt. Clemens, Michigan no later than 28 days from the last date of publication of this order.

Failure to answer or take other action will result in the court entering a default judgement against Defendants and ordering title in the subject property to be quitted in the name of Plaintiff.

Date: March 11, 2003
Signed by: DONALD G. MILLER,
CIRCUIT COURT JUDGE

Wal-Mart officials meet with township

WAL-MART

at that meeting.

Rajewski said the officials requested changes to the building's facade — outer look — to better blend in with the area and changes to the landscaping. She added the Wal-Mart representatives were told they need to protect Stover Creek with their development.

According to the preliminary plans, Wal-Mart is considering a 157,400 square foot supercenter, that takes up about 24 acres of land and has 780 parking spaces. The plans also show an area set aside for a possible gas station in the future along US-31, located near the Flight Deck Bar.

According to Rajewski, this Wal-Mart would be smaller than the Wal-Mart in Petoskey.

Preliminary plans also indicated Wal-Mart would like to relocate a portion of Stover Creek to make room for its development. But township officials were not happy with that part of the development.

"We are not going along with that," Rajewski said. "That creek cannot be touched as far as we are concerned."

Included in the preliminary designs are two entrances and exits on US-31 and Marion Center. On US-31, Wal-Mart indicates it would add an additional lane to the road and put up a traffic signal.

Rajewski said traffic plans are pretty much between Wal-Mart and the Michigan Department of Transportation. They are determined by the amount of traffic on the road.

Both Center and Rajewski said the representatives did not give them a timeline on the project.

As for other businesses being brought in by Wal-Mart, Rajewski said she asked the representatives that very question.

"They didn't rule it out...they said sometimes it does happen, but they have no control over that," she said.

Center said Wal-Mart is considering coming to Charlevoix based on its business in Petoskey.

He said at the Petoskey Wal-Mart the company tracks the location of its customers by their zipcodes.

Under this system, the company discovered a significant amount of Charlevoix people were shopping at the Petoskey store.

Rajewski said the company is also hoping that by putting a Wal-Mart south of the bridge, it is going to draw in customers from Central Lake, East Jordan and Ellsworth.

As for the impact of a Wal-Mart on the area, Center said, "My feeling is it is going to hurt some businesses in town and it will help some businesses in town."

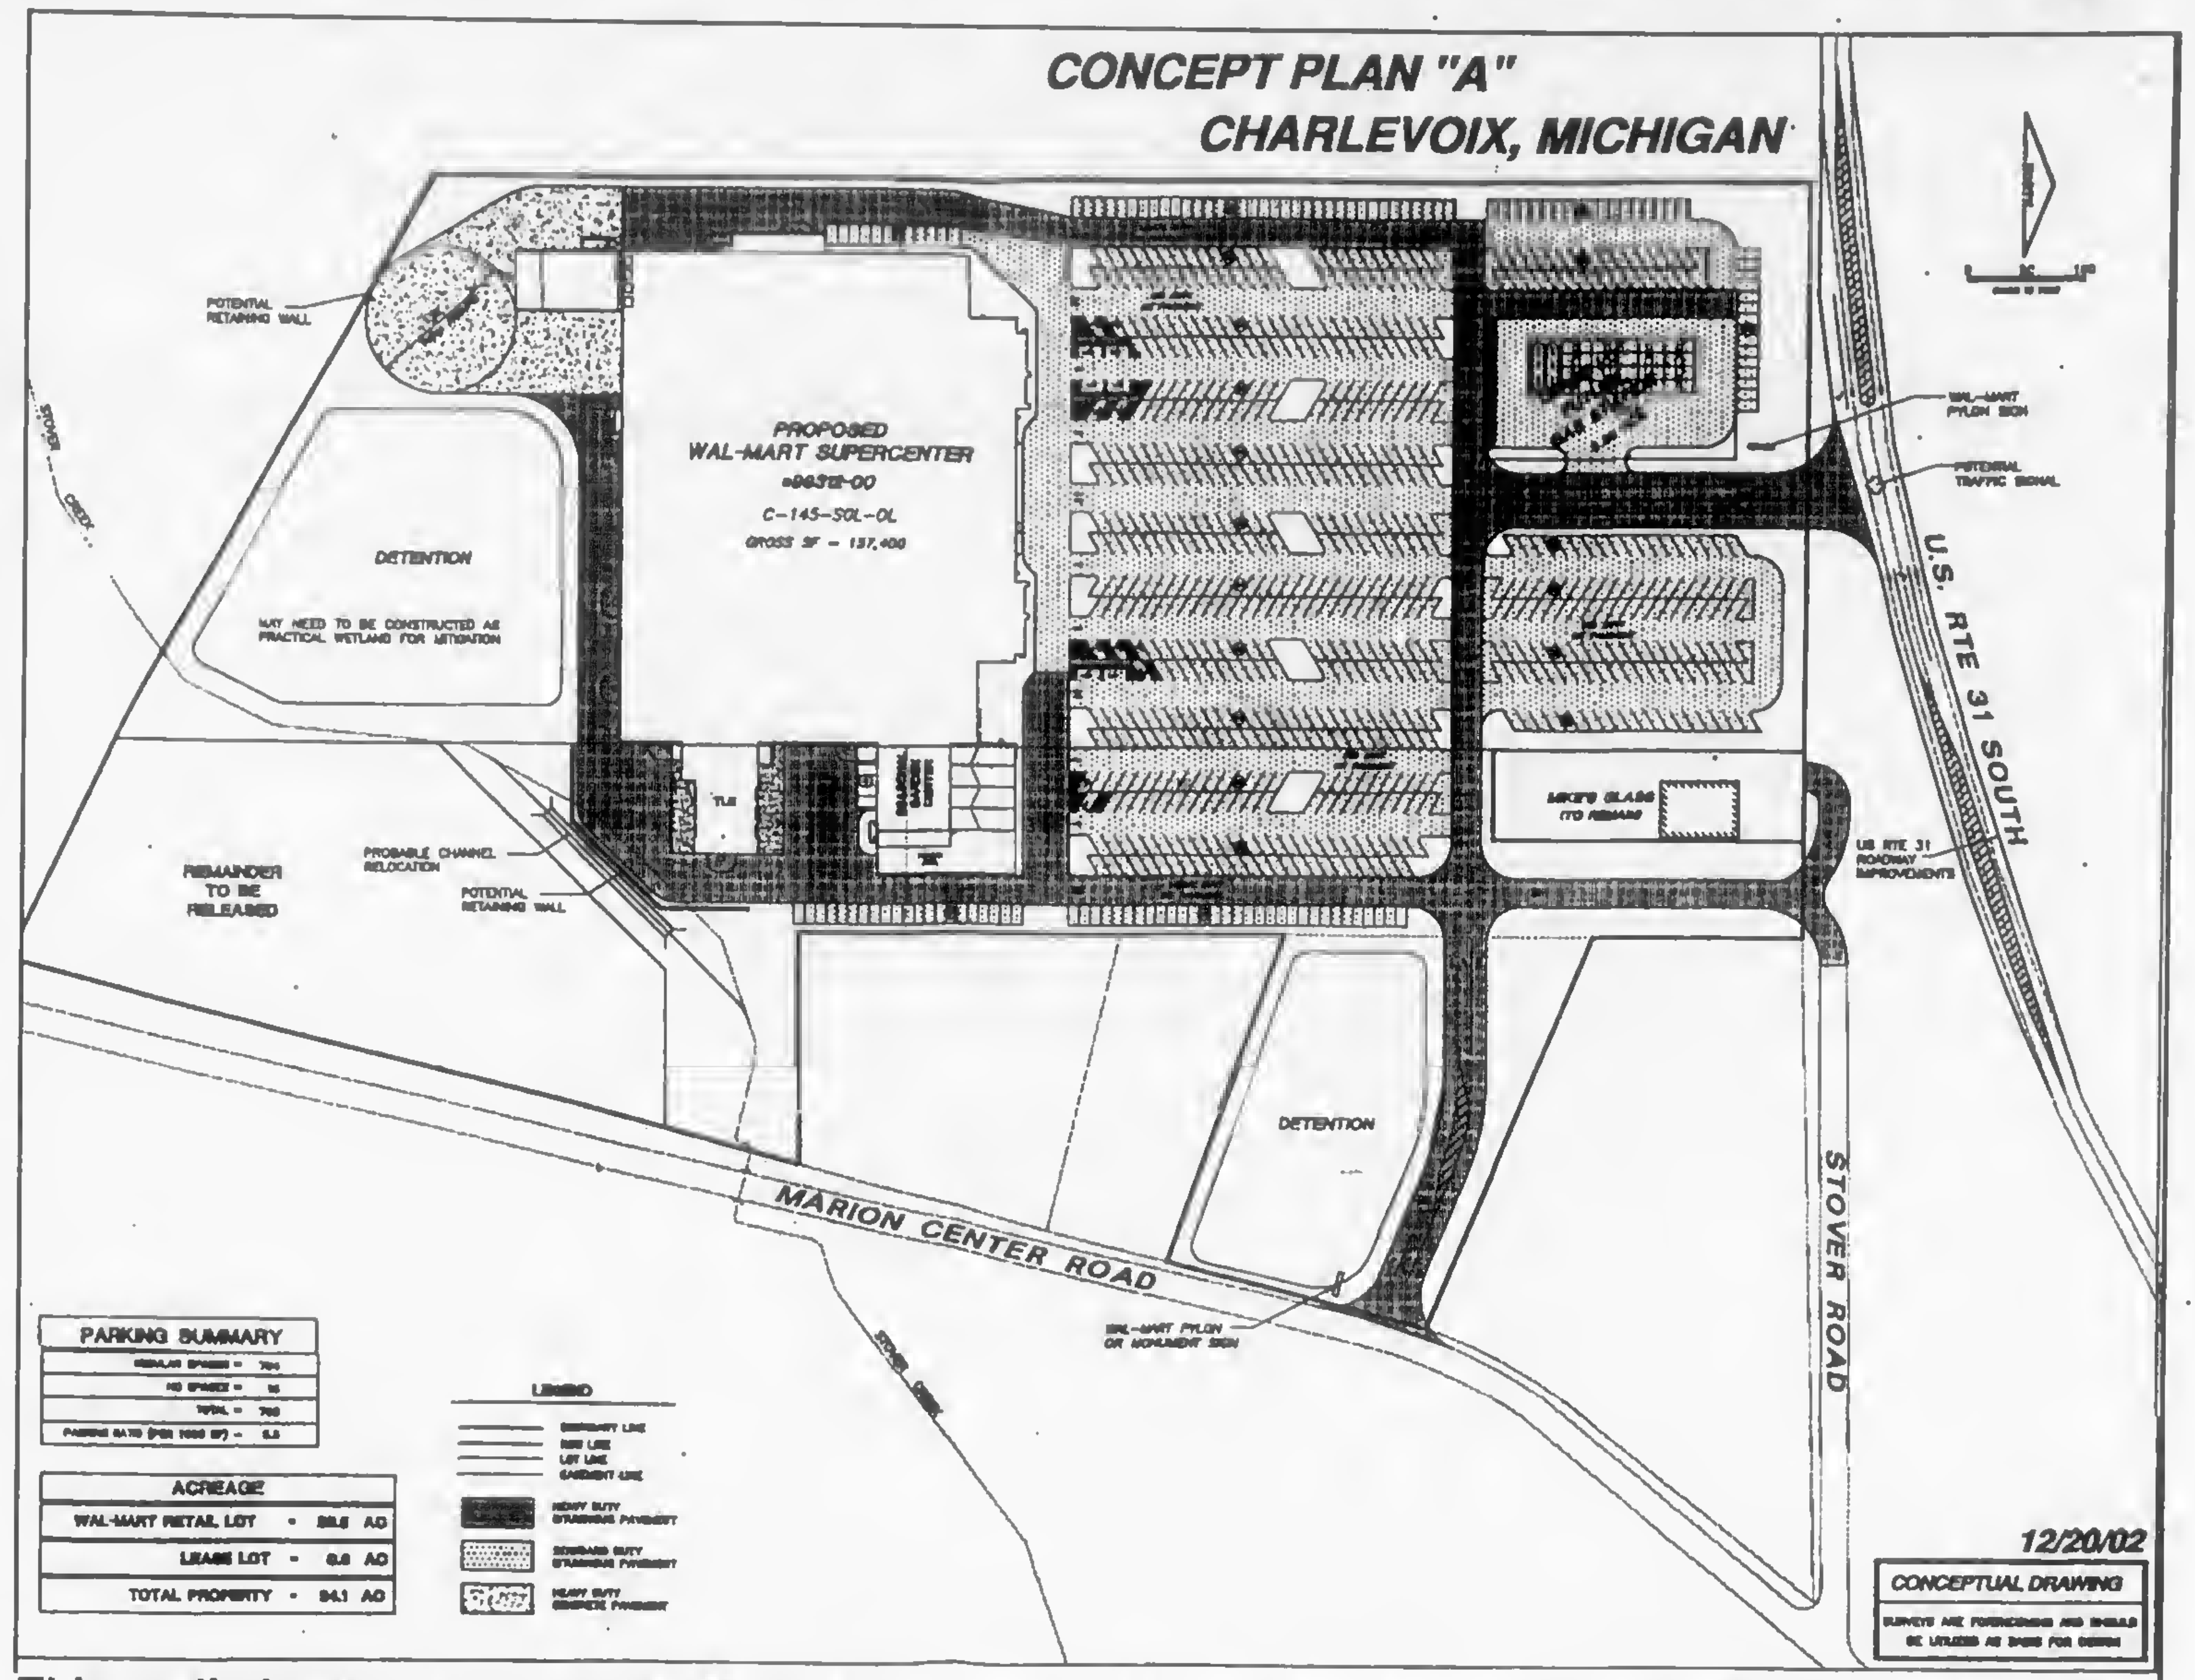
Rajewski added, "I am not sure what it will do to the businesses in town. A lot of people in Charlevoix already go to the Petoskey Wal-Mart."

Both Rajewski and Center said there really is nothing the township can do to stop this development from coming into the area. They pointed out the area Wal-Mart is considering is already zoned commercial.

"It is a moot issue if there was a group that was against them doing business in Charlevoix. The property is already zoned commercial, so the township cannot say no to them," Center said.

Rajewski added, "They have the zoning, so basically we can't deny it. But, our job at this point is to see that it is aesthetically pleasing, safe and we protect the environment. We can do everything we can to make it as good as it can be."

Wal-Mart representatives could not be reached before press time.



This preliminary plan for a Wal-Mart, south of Charlevoix, was shown to Charlevoix Township officials recently. (Courtesy graphic)

Parents of soldiers group forming

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

No one feels the fear and anguish of war like a soldier's family.

"I think the families share a unique experience. The dynamic of having a loved one in a war zone isn't something you normally go through," Valerie Pedersen, a Charlevoix resident and soldier's mother, said.

This shared unique experience recently prompted Pedersen to start the Charlevoix Area Military Family Support Group.

"You have no control over the situation and that can make one person feel isolated. But when you have a group of people meeting, you feel more connected; there's a relief, you're not alone," she said.

Pedersen's son, Sean Roberts, 23, is a gunner with the Fourth Infantry Armored Division of the Army. He left for Iraq almost four weeks ago from an Army base in Junction City, Kansas where he was stationed with his wife, Jessica.

Since then Pedersen has kept her mind and body busy with spring projects, as she pursued a love/hate relationship with television war coverage.

"Some days I drink it (news coverage) in gallons, then I'll take a break and take it in sips. It can be a fear factor; there are a lot of gaps in coverage," she said.

To help cope with her fear for her son's well-being, last week she joined an on-line group called Proud Army Moms at www.proudarmymoms.org.

She found corresponding with these women to be comforting and began to search out similar avenues of support.

She found family support groups exist in the Traverse City and Petoskey areas, but nothing had been started in Charlevoix.

"There are many of us right in this area. I think this group is a

Jarema, Kur lawsuit ends with a $50,000 judgment

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The lawsuit pitting Charlevoix County prosecutor Mary Beth Kur and the county against former chief assistant prosecutor John Jarema ended last week with a $50,000 settlement to Jarema.

Jarema had sued the county and Kur last year claiming defamation, invasion of privacy and a violation of the whistleblowers act. The defamation and invasion of privacy claims were dismissed earlier, leaving just the claim of a whistleblowers act violation.

However, that claim ended last week when the county's insurance provider, Nationwide Insurance, told Kur's attorneys to offer Jarema a $50,000 judgment in his favor.

Because it is a judgment, Jarema is claiming vindication.

"It is the same as if she went to court and were found responsible," he said. "I didn't care about the money all along. I wanted her to admit that she was wrong or someone to say she was wrong."

But, Kur's attorney, Kathleen Lieder, claims this is not the case at all.

First of all, she said the insurance company determined it would be cheaper just to end the case now and secondly, a judgment was offered because it would benefit the county and Kur more.

New city hall long-time coming for Farmer

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Long-time Charlevoix resident Dick Farmer helped build Charlevoix's City Hall and fire station in the late 1930s and returned last week as a special guest at the renovation groundbreaking ceremony.

Over the past couple of years when Farmer has visited city hall he has "fumed, fussed and hollered" about the disrepair the building has fallen into. He said he would often ask city manager Mike Wiesner when the city was going to do something about it.

Dick Farmer

"I'm not a rabble rouser, but I was just disgusted to think we have such a beautiful, well built building there and it was going to pot," he said. "And Wiesner told me two years ago they would fix it up."

After a fair amount of "rabble rousing," Farmer, who celebrated his ninety-third birthday March 19, was all smiles at the groundbreaking ceremony March 27 when promises of renovations came to fruition.

The building holds an extra special place in Farmer's heart because he was part of the original construction process. He remembers when city hall was built, Charlevoix was then under the management of Don Herrick who lived off Dixon Avenue and that a few houses had to be torn down to clear land for the building.

Farmer was self-employed at the time and hauled all the cement material to the site to be hand mixed and poured.

"Things have changed so much from then to what they are now. People don't realize how hard up things were. I hauled sand in there for $1 a yard," he said.

Farmer is amazed at the construction cost differences between then and now. He said in 1936, just before he started the city hall project, he bought a brand new dump truck in Detroit for $1,000 and worked that truck for $1.25 an hour.

"Things just weren't done then like they are now. It was all by hand then. Instead of having a Redi-mix outfit, we dumped sand and stone into a hand mixer," he said.

Over the two-year construction period Farmer spent time traveling from the Petoskey Cement Company, where he would pick up crushed stone, to mix with sand he transported to the site from the train depot in 94 pound cloth bags stuffed four to a barrel.

During his last visit to city hall he was happy to see the same cement slab he had watched be poured where a new addition will soon be constructed, was still there.

The changes Farmer has observed since 1939 will cut construction process time in half.

He remembers original construction of city hall taking two years

EDITORIAL

We hear the complaints all the time about our elected officials.

People say they don't do enough, do the wrong things and are good for nothing. It would seem our elected officials can do nothing right, according to some people.

Perhaps it is because elected officials are such easy targets they suffer from this criticism. Every decision they make in their public positions can be debated by the public whom they report to.

Take the school board for example. People love to knock them down. A while back they were being fired at for a decision to put a school on Marion Center Road. They face criticism over student test scores, traffic guards, school start times, busing schedules, salaries and sometimes even sports results.

And it is not just criticism by people sitting around in a restaurant or pub over coffee. They face some pretty hot criticism in the newspapers and other public forums.

There are so many people who love to say how much better they could do if they were on the board. So, you would think that with such a controversy causing position such as the school board, there would be lines of people signing up to run for open seats.

Sadly for our democracy, no. So far, for this year's school board election — like so many in the past — there are only two people who have expressed an interest in running for two open board seats. This means, if no one else announces their candidacy, we will have another election with candidates who are unopposed.

And the school board election is not unique. Many other elections in Charlevoix and throughout the nation have candidates who are unopposed.

Yet, the number of people willing to criticize these office holders is great.

What does it say about our democracy when we have a nation of people who love to complain about their government, but do not want to help change their government for the better?

We urge citizens of this nation to take part in elections, not just by voting — which far too few of us do anymore also — but by running for those open public positions. It is time to stop complaining and do something about it.

Remember, we have soldiers currently fighting to create democracy in the desert sands. Let's not let ours fail in the meantime.

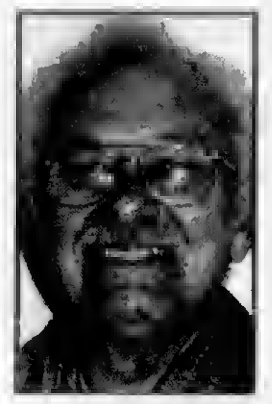
Definitions for those interested in investing



Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

The investment business is not what it was a few years ago.

Even with numerous books like "Investing for Dummies," which must have sold millions of copies, the investment landscape has become more and more bleak for many. As a long-time educator, I believe the basic reason that almost any system functions poorly is a lack of education and information. Herewith is a simplified glossary of commonly used investment terms with their REAL meanings.

Stock Broker - an often unlicensed financial advisor who will help you become broker than you are now.

Equitics - These were originally a privileged class of Roman citizens who rode horses for the emperor. Currently the word is sometimes used with an appropriate adjective to describe part of the horse.

Equity - This describes part ownership of a corporation which entitles the owner to a share of the corporation's losses.

Annuity - This is a financial agreement paying out an annual amount which is too small and decreases with time and inflation. If your annuities have matured, you are in trouble. An annuitant may also suffer from negative mortality, which is no more fun than the usual kind.

Corporation - A legal entity that can do pretty much as it wishes with any money that you provide to it through your broker (see Stock Broker).

Corporatism - This is the same as communism, but with fewer people benefiting.

CEO - Operating head of a corporation. The letters stand for Chief Evasion Organizer.

CFO - This is the corporation's Chief Funds Obviator (you may have to look that one up).

Corporate welfare - Summed up by the early twentieth century phrase, "What's good for General Motors is good for the country." More recently, "What's good for the oil industry is good for the country." The overall suggestion is that if corporations do well, we all do well. Think Enron or any of a dozen others.

Derivative - Something drawing its value from something else. Its most important value is as a mechanism for more effectively hiding gains or losses by a corporation (see Corporation).

Diversification - This is a pattern of investing in a large number of corporations (see Corporation), all of which decline in value at the same time. Your broker (see Stock Broker), will help you make appropriate choices.

Stocks - An ancient device for punishing malefaction. It usually had holes to lock in the hands and feet or the head and hands, and the perpetrator was exposed to public ridicule for however long deemed necessary. It might be effective in today's investment markets (see CEO and CFO).

Small Cap Stocks - Stocks (see Stocks) which fit only the tiniest head. These would, of course not be useful with many of today's CEO's or CFO's who wouldn't fit.

I am hopeful that the clearer understanding of these essential terms will help pull the economy out of its doldrums (from drumming sounds of anxious feet while waiting in long lines for the dole).

Save Stover Creek from Wal-Mart

Editor:

This week's Courier shows plans for a new 24 acre Wal-Mart site, reaching from US-31, to the old Medusa Railroad spur and to Marion Center Road. I hope that this plan and its disregard for Stover Creek, will alert residents of Charlevoix County to the necessity of good zoning and strong ordinances in protecting Charlevoix County's greatest assets, the water and land.

Instead of viewing Stover Creek as a valuable asset, Wal-Mart proposed moving the creek and filling wetlands to make room for parking lots, businesses and the "Wal-Mart Supercenter." The old fishin' hole just off the railroad and Marion Center Road would look over a detention basin built to replace wetlands, new pavement and the back of the new supercenter.

Wal-Mart is in the business of making money and every parking space translates into profits. Here in Charlevoix, many of us treasure this little stream. For years it was a favorite smelt stream, and today it still supports trout populations in spite of being classified by the DNR as an impaired stream because of sand and sediment load caused by human activity.

Today Stover Creek winds through the city cemetery and flows into Lake Charlevoix a short distance from Ferry Beach.

For several years, area sportspersons and conservationists have dreamed of a scenic Lake to Lake Trail. One of the nicest assets of the trail is the beauty of Stover Creek and its wetlands. Possibly Wal-Mart could purchase the Camp/Campbell property, or another adjoining property, or possibly the store could be downsized and Wal-Mart designers could make protecting Stover Creek a priority. Possibly Wal-Mart might consider purchasing the old empty Buy-Low and the Kmart (on M-66) it will most certainly out-compete.

Michigan Law allows townships and counties to enact ordinances to protect their unique resources and the public health and welfare. The degradation of beaches starts with the degradation of streams and the land. We do not have to channel, straighten and turn our streams into drainage ditches. But if we are to enjoy the beauty of our gentle streams and the birds and fish and wildlife they support, we will have to enact "Best Management Practices" and enforce buffers, greenbelts and setbacks from our waterways.

Planning Commission has power

Editor:

The chairman of the Charlevoix Township Planning Commission is correct in saying they cannot prevent Wal-Mart from developing their commercially zoned property with a commercial use. However, that fact does not give Wal-Mart the right to develop it any way they choose, with a building having the size, shape, and other features they select. The Planning Commission has a great deal of control.

Wal-Mart's plan does not give them the right to re-route a waterway even though that is physically possible. It does not give them the right to block off a public road (Stover Road). It does not give them the right to put a stop light on US-31. If the property they own or have options on does not support the planned development, it is the plan that needs to be revised, not the land and public roads.

Township officials should not be fooled and brought on board by minor concessions granted by Wal-Mart during informal meetings leading up to public review of the plan. That is a common tactic used by large developers to define and narrow the question faced by local boards.

On the subject of a traffic light, they may find MDOT has a lot to say about it. The township should not be fooled into thinking that MDOT's minimum requirements need to be imposed upon them. I am quite sure the zoning ordinance charges local officials with the responsibility for many related issues that affect the township and its residents.

One thing that they must consider is the negative effect of a traffic signal. It will obviously result in considerable delays and backups, especially in the summer. And think of the energy waste and pollution. To stop a car, idle and reaccelerate, burns a lot of gas. Multiply this by all the cars that will do this over all the years they will be doing it and the effect is very large.

The entrance and exits do not have to be the minimum standard imposed by the Wal-Mart plan and MDOT. I am sure that a traffic light can be avoided if Wal-Mart spends more money than they would like to on the roadway, and the turning and merging lanes. If they do not control enough property to do it right, it means their plan is for a bigger development than the property can support.

The township must not approve 10 pounds of supercenter in a 5 pound bag!

Thank you

Editor:

I want to take this opportunity to thank all of the people who gave me encouragement and reassurance as I sought to seek the truth in what could have been a very lonely situation. I want to thank my family (all of the Jaremas and Martins), Joseph, Corcoran, Telgenhof and Snyder, P.C. for having the courage to hire me when I was unemployed and my wife, Krista, for giving me the courage to stand up for what I thought was, and what turned out to be, right.

As I was contemplating what to do after my wrongful firing, I sought advice from my pastor who told me that I should not be afraid to seek the truth. That in fact, the truth was taking "the high road." In every situation, be it at work or life in general, there is a right way and a wrong way to handle things. I found things in the prosecutor's office that were wrong. I felt I had a duty to bring what I thought were acts of fraud and a misuse of county funds to the attention of the commissioners.

I was fired for raising questions on how public funds were being spent. I chose to file a suit so the truth could be known. I wanted Mary Beth Kur to admit she was wrong and that this fraud and misuse of funds was indeed happening in the prosecutor's office. That would never happen. Kur stated the suit was frivolous. The law firm defending Kur, who was selected by Kur, spent over $150,000 to evade and hide the truth.

They tried to seal and keep everything about this trial from the public's view. The judge did not dismiss the suit and set it for trial. The hour of truth was fast approaching. Kur's attorneys made a settlement request. I denied that request. I did not come this far to have a "settlement that is sealed from the public."

Approximately nine weeks before trial, they offer a judgment against themselves along with $50,000. Do I still go to trial in the hopes of getting more money? This case was never about money. It was not about politics. It was about the truth.

If the allegations were not true, why did Kur agree to a judgment? You have a judgment entered against you if a judge/jury find you responsible or if you agree to have one entered against you. If Kur honestly thought she was not liable or that the accusations were not true, wouldn't you expect her to fight for the truth? Isn't that the position to which she was elected?

The fact of the matter is that Kur, chief law enforcement Officer for Charlevoix County, agreed to a judgment against herself personally and as prosecutor in a case that alleged she was committing fraud and wasting your money. The truth has finally come to light.

Boycott Moore

Editor:

I have been a regular at the Charlevoix Cinema Second Sunday Film Series since it began a few years ago and was looking forward to viewing "Bowling for Columbine" to be presented by Michael Moore the second Sunday in April. Even though I will still likely see the film it will not be when Moore is due to present it here in Charlevoix.

I choose to not be in the same room with Moore since his embarrassing and unpatriotic behavior at the Oscars.

I am proud to be an American and a strong advocate of all of our rights, but using the Oscars as a forum to slam the war and President George Bush was not only, in my opinion, not in good taste and a misuse of the Oscar forum, but highly upsetting and unpatriotic while our soldiers are on the front line fighting for all our freedoms. I hope others will join me in not attending Charlevoix's visit with Moore.

Former mayor, city superintendent, dies

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Few people have served the city of Charlevoix for as long and in as many capacities as Charlevoix resident Hal Hill did.

Hal Hill

Hal, an accomplished community servant, World War II veteran, friend, father and husband passed away at the age of 84 on March 21 at Thomas Hospital in Fairhope, Ala. where he was spending part of the winter.

"He was a real nice, easygoing guy," his friend and fishing buddy Bernie Ward, Jr., said.

While his friends and family described him as easygoing, they also said he was always on the go.

"He would get bored and try something new, he had to be busy," Ward said.

No one knows better than his wife of 62 years, Wanda, the real go-getter Hal was.

"He's always been busy, he never sat. He liked to be busy and he loved people," she said.

He never even truly retired; just last summer he was employed at Bay Harbor as a golf course ranger and a shuttle bus driver.

While he did spend time working for companies like American Mold where he was plant manager for many years and Bonneville Power Administration in Washington, throughout much of his life, Hal's time on the go was spent serving the city of Charlevoix.

He and Wanda moved to the Charlevoix area in the 1940s.

He was appointed city utility superintendent in April of 1950 and then, five years later, was appointed city superintendent, the title now given to the city manager.

During his four years as city superintendent, Hal also took on the responsibilities of civil defense director.

In 1959 he took an 11 year hiatus from city administrative life returning in 1970 to join the city planning commission.

Then, in 1984 he was elected city mayor and served one term. Wanda said while he was mayor he was known to perform a lot of marriages, a service he insisted on providing at no charge.

"He was a good fellow like that," she said.

Up until his recent death, Hal was a member of the city compensation commission, an appointed position he had held since 1987.

> "He was a real nice, easygoing guy."
> Bernie Ward Jr.,
> Friend of Hal Hill

He was also a former member of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Board.

When he wasn't busy with city government, business and other service positions his daughter Julia Scheels said Hal enjoyed fishing, golfing and downhill skiing.

Hal was a close friend of Everett Kircher, the late owner and founder of Boyne USA, and would often operate the chair lifts, at the Boynes, just for fun.

Scheels said he was also a lifelong student who enjoyed taking enrichment classes at North Central Michigan College. Just two years ago he enrolled in a Spanish class and over the years also took computer and gardening courses.

Hal is survived by his wife Wanda and their children, Hal Jr. who lives in Cave Creek, Ariz. with his wife Karen and Scheels who lives in Jackson with her husband Rolland.

He and Wanda also have three grandchildren: Chad Hill, Todd Holtzman and Tobi Curtis. And one great granddaughter, Lily Curtis.

A memorial service will take place in Hal's honor at 3 p.m., April 7 at the United Methodist Church in Charlevoix.

School board election deadline approaches

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

The deadline for candidates to file nominating petitions to run in the Charlevoix Public School District's upcoming school board election is 4 p.m. April 7.

Currently there are two open board seats, one carries with it a four-year term and the other a two-year term.

The open four-year seat will be vacated by outgoing board president Allen Telgenhof who announced in February he will not be running for reelection after eight years with the board.

Current board trustee, Bill Trubilowicz, who replaced former trustee Mike MacMillan in November of 2002 after he resigned in October, is running unopposed for Telgenhof's open seat.

Charlevoix resident and city planning commission chairman Dennis Kusina is running for the open two-year trustee's position that Trubilowicz currently holds.

Kusina and Trubilowicz are the only candidates so far who have filed school election petitions to run in the June 9 election. However, the filing date has not yet expired.

Those who wish to file are required to collect six or more signatures from registered voters living in the school district and submit those signatures by the April 7 deadline.

Or, under the revised state law, this is the first year that those running for a school board position can file a $100 fee rather than nominating petitions.

The June election will not decide who will replace Telgenhof as president; the new board president will be selected by the board at its organizational meeting this summer.

Anniversary

Edward and Marylouise Stahulak

Edward and Marylouise (Genett) Stahulak of Bourbonnais (formerly of Charlevoix) recently celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary at a dinner at the Bohemian Crystal Banquet Hall in Westmont, Ill.

The affair was hosted by their children: Janet (Ned) Bixby of Reston, Va.; Robert Stahulak of Joliet, Ill.; Diane Stahulak and her friend Skip Sluzarz of Berwyn, Ill.

The couple have seven grandchildren and one great granddaughter.

Edward was a verteran of the U.S. Coast Guard. He was stationed in Charlevoix. He is also a retired dispatcher with trucking firms in the Chicago, Ill. area.

Marylouise was a retired bookkeeper at a Cicero, Ill. hank.

They were married March 5, 1953.

Motown coming to Charlevoix High stage

An upcoming concert at Charlevoix High School will bring Motown to northern Michigan.

The Rotary Club of Charlevoix will host The Contours for a special performance to benefit the Charlevoix High School Band and Performing Arts programs, the Rotary Club of Charlevoix and the Charlevoix Venetian Festival.

The high school's auditorium doors will open for The Contours performance at 7:30 p.m. with the show starting at 8 p.m. on April 19.

The Contours' high-energy Motown show encompasses all of the spirit that made those wonderful "Motown Revues" so popular in the 1960s. Their material highlights all of the huge hits that came out of Motown during the 1960s and 1970s from the Temptations, Four Tops, Marvin Gaye, The Miracles, to all of the great Contours' classics such as "Do You Love Me" and "Jerk Like Me."

Much of the resurgence in The Contours' popularity has to do with the 1988 Academy Award winning film, "Dirty Dancing," which featured their hit, "Do You Love Me."

Tickets for the band's Charlevoix performance are available at the Bridge Street Book Shop located at 405 Bridge Street in downtown Charlevoix.

Obituaries

Phyllis J. Gill: July 28, 1926 - March 23, 2003

Phyllis J. Gill, 76, of Charlevoix, died Sunday, March 23, 2003, at Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey.

A funeral was March 26 at the First Baptist Church in Charlevoix. The Pastor Michael Dennis officiated and was joined by the Pastor Larry Funk. A burial took place in Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Phyllis was born July 28, 1926, in Charlevoix, the daughter of John and Clarabelle (Ruckle) Martin. She graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1944.

On Feb. 14, 1946, she married Benjamin Gill, and he preceded her in death on Feb. 24, 1990. They made their home in Charlevoix.

Phyllis was a good Navy wife and she was at peace with her Lord. She was a member of the First Baptist Church of Charlevoix, the Charlevoix Historical Society and served on the Rainbow Shoppe Board of Directors.

She was a lifetime member of the Submarine Veterans of World War II - Michigan Chapter, and the Michigan Chapter of the Fleet Reserve.

Phyllis was very active in church mission work and had served as treasurer of First Baptist Church for 20 years.

For a short time she worked for George Baldwin at Charlevoix's first cable television service.

She is survived by her two daughters, Carrol J. (Jeffrey) Pines of Charlevoix, and Bennie J. Gill of Boyne City; grandson Joshua Strzyzewski; great-grandson Cedar Strzyzewski; great-granddaughter, Pua Strzyzewski; brother, Phil Martin; sisters, Irene Supernaw, Sara (Lloyd) Cummings, all of Charlevoix.

Phyllis was preceded in death by sisters, Winifred Gregory and Frances Martin, and brothers, John, Jim, Claire, Frank and Patrick Martin.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Chaplain Program at Northern Michigan Hospital or to First Baptist Church in Charlevoix.

Hal M. Hill: July 27, 1918 - March 21, 2003

Hal M. Hill, 84, of Charlevoix, died Friday, March 21, 2003, at Thomas Hospital in Fairhope, Ala.

A memorial service will be given at 3 p.m., Monday, April 7, at the United Methodist Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. Todd Thompson will officiate and interment will take place in Maple Lawn Cemetery in Boyne City.

Hal was born July 27, 1918 in Mount Pleasant, Tenn., the son of Kenan and Inez (Barnes) Hill.

He received his early electrical training as a co-op student with the Tennessee Electrical Power Company. He then studied electrical engineering at the University of Washington and as a U.S. Navy SeaBee construction battalion during World War II.

He continued his electrical studies at Rhode Island University. He worked for the city of Charlevoix from 1949 to 1951 in the electrical and water department, then worked a short time for the Northern Michigan Electric Cooperative.

He returned to Charlevoix government in 1955 as city superintendent. In 1959, he went to work for American Mold (now DME), where he retired in 1983, after almost 25 years.

He was a member of Charlevoix Lodge F&AM 282, VFW Post 1153 and the United Methodist Church of Charlevoix.

Hal married the former Wanda Heaton on May 25, 1940, in Boyne City, and she survives. He is also survived by a son Hal M. "Bunker" (Karen) Hill, Jr. of Cave Creek, Ariz; daughter, Julie (Rolland) Scheels of Jackson; grandchildren, Tobi Curtis, Todd Holtzman, and Chad Hill; great-granddaughter, Lily Curtis.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Charlevoix Area Hospital or to the United Methodist Church in Charlevoix. There is no visitation.

The family is being served by the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Louis S. Orlowski: July 1, 1917 - March 28, 2003

Louis S. Orlowski, 85, of Charlevoix, died Friday, March 28, 2003, at his home.

A Mass of the Resurrection was April 1, at Saint Mary's Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. Thomas Neis officiated and burial was in Saint Mary's Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Lou was born July 1, 1917, in Charlevoix, the son of Louis S. and Margaret C. (McGuire) Orlowski.

He attended Saint Mary's School and graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1937. Lou served in the U.S. Army during World War II, from 1942 to 1946. He then graduated from the University of Detroit with a degree in Architectural Engineering.

He married Rita Hastings on Oct. 23, 1948, at St. Scholastica Church in Detroit.

Lou retired from General Motors Architectural Department in 1979, and returned to Charlevoix in 1980.

A registered architect in the state of Michigan, he designed Saint Matthews Catholic Church in Boyne City, and Saint Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix. He was a member of Saint Mary's Church, its finance commission and was commissioner of maintenance.

He was a 4th degree, past deputy Grand Knight of Knight's of Columbus Pierre de Charlevoix Council 7172, and past president of the Fr. Pierre Charlevoix Columbia Building Corporation. Lou was also past president of the Charlevoix Historical Society and a member of American Legion Leslie T. Shapton Post 226, and served on the Charlevoix County Board of Appeals.

Lou is survived by his wife, Rita J. of Charlevoix; daughter, Peg (Jim) Thatcher of Walled Lake; granddaughters, Stacey (Zack) Fox of Keego Harbor, Joelle (Kevin) Beaudoin of Kewadin; nephew Geik L. (Ellen) Geiken of Grand Rapids.

He was preceded in death by his sister Mary Margaret Geiken in 2001.

Memorial contributions may be made to Saint Mary's Church Building Fund.

George John Pollak: Feb. 22, 1926 - March 27, 2003

George John Pollak, of Charlevoix, died March 27, 2003.

He was born Feb. 22, 1926, in Marlette.

George is survived by his wife, Donna (Bailey) Pollak, of Charlevoix; daughter, Linda (Pollak) Nielsen and husband, Jerry, of Big Rapids; son, David and wife, Kathy, of Dexter; son, George Brian, of Bend, Ore.; granddaughters, Amy (Neilsen) Amesbury of Grand Rapids, Dr. Carin Nielsen of Rockford, Becky Nielsen Tanis of Rockford; grandsons, Geoff Pollak of Williamston and Matthew Pollak of Ann Arbor; five great-grandchildren; sisters, Margaret Dubois and Anna Schneider; plus many nieces, nephews and brothers and sisters-in-law.

His father, John Pollak, mother, Anna Pollak, brothers, Jack and Carl Pollak, and sister, Dorothy Hudson, preceded him in death.

George attended Marlette High School and was a proud Navy veteran, having served in World War II. He was an involved member of the community. His active and varied business career was highlighted by his tenure at Marlette Homes, where he was vice president of purchasing.

George was well known in the manufactured home industry, serving on various boards and councils throughout his career.

Recently, George retired to Charlevoix and continued his community involvement. He found great joy in volunteering at the Charlevoix Senior Center, working with his friends in Kiwanis and was a member of St. Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix. George was also a member of the American Legion and was a very active member of the electronic mail community.

George loved his family and the people who crossed his path. His optimism and sense of humor made him very special to all who knew him.

A funeral was March 29, at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix, followed by a luncheon at Charlevoix Country Club.

Donations can be made to Charlevoix Senior Center.

Girl Scouts put up ribbons downtown

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Girl Scout Troop 265 marched through downtown Charlevoix tying yellow ribbons to trees along Bridge Street in support of American troops in Iraq.

"It was amazing the support we had and how quickly the project came together," troop leader Karen Giudice said. "The reception of the people downtown was awesome — people drove by and honked and came up and thanked us. It was great."

The March 27 ribbon-tying campaign stretched along Bridge Street from the drawbridge to 7-Eleven and was accompanied by a city of Charlevoix American flag hanging project.

"It's neat to do this, a lot of people have loved ones out in the war. And it's nice to support the families and friends," Alicia Giudice, a scout who helped tie ribbons, said.

In spite of cold rain that fell steadily that night, eight of the 10 girls in the scout troop showed up to hang the ribbons.

Troop leader Giudice said that the project was a valuable learning experience for the girls.

"I think it finally dawned on them how many people in Charlevoix have loved ones there. It's not just something happening somewhere else. It's local too," she said.

As a group, the scouts often tackle big issues like the Sept. 11, 2001 terrorist attack in New York City and now, the war with Iraq.

"We try to answer their questions," the troop leader said.

She explained that because the troop has close military ties this discussion has been especially important. During its five years in existence the troop's membership has always included United States Coast Guard families.

"You are more aware of these types of events when you have these family dynamics with you," troop leader Giudice said.

The tree decorating idea was generated by Charlevoix resident Melinda Burns, the mother of troop members Jackie and Jessica Burns, whose husband is a member of the United States Coast Guard.

Burns asked troop leader Giudice if there was anything the group could do with yellow ribbons.

Giudice called city manager Mike Wiesner and inquired about tying the downtown trees. Wiesner said the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce was planning a similar program and redirected her to president of the chamber board of directors, Jacqueline Merta.

Merta turned the project over to the scouts and the local craft store Family Affair donated the yellow ribbon.

Troop 265 also pursues other community outreach projects throughout the year with each scout averaging 75 hours of service. Other projects they have pursued include making tray favors for patients at Charlevoix Area Hospital and petunia planting.

Charlevoix students honored for writing

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Two Charlevoix High School students took top honors in the Crooked Tree Arts Center's first Young Writers Exposition.

Brittni Simonti, a junior, placed second in the high school poetry contest and Theresa Martin, a sophomore, claimed the top slot for her prose piece.

"I was shocked. When I entered I had no idea I would win," Martin said.

Pat Conway and Kris Schaperkotter, English teachers at the school, encouraged Simonti and Martin to enter.

Martin almost bowed out because of near deadline computer problems and Simonti was close to not entering because she didn't feel her poem was her best work. In the end, both made the March 3 cutoff and took home high praise.

Their winning works were both based on real-life experiences.

Martin selected a prose piece she had written in Schaperkotter's class called, "My Eyes Told Lies," the story of a high school girl suffering from an eating disorder. She said she has a friend who faced the same battle.

Simonti's poem, "Leo," tells of her painful struggle after discovering her grandfather, Leo Simonti, was suffering from heart problems and didn't have long to live.

Dale Hull, executive director of the Crooked Tree Arts Center was proud of the entrants who he said took a chance in entering the contest.

"It takes a lot of courage to share your thoughts, ideas and skill — you're really putting yourself out there in the public. And I think it's wonderful that 207 kids in our community chose to do that," he said.

Hull coordinated the writing contest last winter after receiving support for the idea from Publisher and General Manager of The Petoskey News-Review, Ken Winter. Winter is also the General Manager of the Charlevoix Courier.

The two attended the Youth Art Show at Crooked Tree where Winter told Hull that if he coordinated a similar competition stressing written skill, he would support it by publishing the winning pieces in his daily newspaper.

"I can't think of a better way to support our philosophy of supporting reading and writing. It is a contribution we can make as a community newspaper that makes for a better, healthier society," Winter said.

Hull quickly got to work, sending letters to over 300 teachers in Charlevoix and Emmet counties including all elementary and middle school language arts teachers and high school English teachers explaining how the exposition would work.

Then, Crooked Tree collected 207 entries from students across the two county area. Six judges were selected with each specializing in a field of language arts including: professional writers, journalists and librarians, to review the works.

The entries were broken down into two categories, poetry and prose, that fit into three levels, elementary, middle school and high school.

After reading all the entries in a given category, the judges came together with their top 10 picks. They then narrowed the field to first, second and third place finishers who were published in the newspaper.

"Their work was put in print and will be there forever," Hull said.

Aside from the recognition in print, winners were also given gift certificates to book stores in Petoskey, Charlevoix and Boyne City.

On March 23 Crooked Tree hosted an awards ceremony recognizing both the visual arts winners and the writers exposition winners.

Hull said the event was a huge success and that Crooked Tree definitely plans on bringing the exposition back for a second year.

"This is an opportunity for kids to realize we love what they are thinking about — these kinds of experiences make them feel welcome in the community. The more we do this type of thing, the healthier our young people will be," he said.

Both Simonti and Martin said they would consider entering the contest again.

Band does well in competition

Students from Northwest Academy and Charlevoix High School all received superior ratings at the MSBOA State Solo and Ensemble Festival March 21 and 22 in Manistee.

Four of the students were entered into the solo division and took part in different levels of Proficiency determined by how many times they have performed solos at the state level.

Joe Sievertson received a 90 percent and a "I" on Alto Sax in Proficiency I; Carolyn Bellairs received an 85 percent and a "I" on Flute in Proficiency II; Gina Attee received an 88 percent and a "I" in Proficiency II on Trumpet, and Rachel Bellairs received a 99 percent in Proficiency III and was named the top performer of all the students attending the event.

Rachel Bellairs has been nominated to perform with the Michigan Youth Arts Festival Band in May.

Also receiving superior ratings were: a Sax Quartet with Joe Sievertson, Dan Sanchez, Liz Shepard and Carolyn Bellairs. A Trumpet Duet with Rachel Bellairs and Gina Attee. A Brass Quintet with Rachel Bellairs, Gina Attee, Craig Wellscot, CJ Toton and a tuba player from Benzie Central who sat in with the group.

"This is by far one of the most outstanding groups of musicians I have ever worked with and the comments from the adjudicators supported the fact that this group of students have reached levels of achievement that many musicians never realize," said the student's director Gary Stutzman.

Several injured in three vehicle accident Saturday

Several people were injured in a three car accident around 6:30 p.m., March 29 on US-31, near Burgess Road in Hayes Township.

According to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office, John Wiklanski, 43, of Petoskey, was traveling south on US-31 in a 1993 Ford Explorer when he lost control on icy pavement.

His vehicle struck an oncoming 1999 Ford F-350 pickup driven north by Robert Breithaupt, 51, of Petoskey. Breithaupt's vehicle then spun sideways and was struck by a 2002 Pontiac Grand Am, that was being driven south by Mark Groesser, 39, of Suttons Bay.

Mark Groesser and the passengers in his vehicle were injured.

Gwendolyn Groesser, 30, was transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital and then Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey. She was released on Monday. The other passenger, Maria Groesser, 6, was transported to Northern Michigan Hospital in "grave" condition with a head injury. She was transferred to Spectrum Health Systems in Grand Rapids on Monday.

The final passenger, Justine Groesser, 4, and Mark were treated and released at Charlevoix Area Hospital, as well as Breithaupt. Wiklanski refused ambulance transport.

The sheriff's office was assisted at the scene by the Charlevoix City Fire Department and Ambulances, the Charlevoix Township Fire Department, the Boyne City and Allied Ambulances and the Michigan State Police.

The crash remains under investigation.

Class gives tips on keeping baby safe

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

If you are at the beach this summer and see a lifeless child being carried from the water, would you know what to do?

Sue Coen, an emergency room nurse at Charlevoix Area Hospital, recently taught a course at the hospital in pediatric (infant and child) cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) that stressed the importance of those on scene being able to initiate the American Heart Association's chain of survival.

"If you stand by and someone is down, they could possibly die. Early action saves lives," she said.

This sequence of actions is meant to prevent emergencies and cardiac arrest when an infant or child is unresponsive, not breathing and has no signs of circulation.

Cardiac arrest among infants and children is most commonly linked to respiratory causes like Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS) or an injury.

The first link in the chain is prevention, the second is early CPR, the third is contacting 911 and the last link is the victim receiving early advanced care from a medical technician or paramedic.

Coen said acting quickly and initiating the chain of survival is so important because if a child goes into cardiac arrest, and is unresponsive and not breathing, their brain, heart and other vital organs are not receiving oxygen.

When those vital organs are without oxygen a person could die or, if they are resuscitated late, could suffer brain, heart and kidney damage.

Ways to prevent a child from going into arrest include taking steps to safeguard against SIDS by putting baby to sleep on his or her back and avoiding smoke.

Studies have shown a major reduction in the incidence of SIDS when a healthy baby is put to sleep on his or her back or side.

Reducing the threat of choking is also a preventative measure. Coen told the class that one way to do this is by only offering babies toys and objects that won't fit through the cardboard of a standard toilet paper roll.

Caregivers and parents should also supervise a child's playtime, be careful during bath time and childproof their surroundings, including the use of gates and lockup of household chemicals.

These preventative measures could keep a child safe.

But if there is an emergency, the second link in the chain, early CPR is imperative. Coen told the class that by administering CPR, including rescue breathing and chest compression, oxygen continues to flow to the heart and brain until advanced care can be provided. And without this flow of oxygen the chances for a loss of brain function increase.

If you are alone with an infant or child in need of help, administer CPR for one minute before stopping to call 911. Those with additional rescuers on the scene should instruct another person to call 911 while they assist the infant or child.

Once paramedics arrive they complete the chain of survival by providing additional resuscitation and defibrillation.

Aside from teaching those in the class to perform this vital procedure, the class also dealt with reacting to infants and children who are choking.

Coen said the knowledge you take from these classes is like breathing.

"It's a basic knowledge, you should know how to perform CPR to save someone's life," she said. "It happens, you could be in the same room with a loved one or a stranger and by just performing CPR you could save their life."

The adult and pediatric Heartsaver CPR courses last about three to four hours, but what those who enroll learn, could mean years of healthy living for a person in an emergency that receives help.

For more information about CPR classes offered at the hospital, call Connie Roland at (231) 547-8570.

Ophthalmologist opens Charlevoix office

Area patients with diabetes, glaucoma, or other conditions requiring specialized eye treatment will soon find care close to home with ophthalmologist Timothy S. Jarvi, M.D.

The doctor is opening a medical office on Park Avenue, adjacent to the Charlevoix Area Hospital campus.

Jarvi, whose primary practice, Eye Specialists of Northern Michigan, is in Petoskey, initially plans to see patients at least two days each month at his new Charlevoix office.

"Many of my patients come from the Charlevoix area," Jarvi said. "They've been asking if we couldn't offer ophthalmologic services nearby. Aside from the convenience, this Charlevoix office will allow better continuity of care for our surgical patients."

Jarvi, who has had staff privileges at Charlevoix Area Hospital since 1999, says the local hospital has developed a quality eye surgery program over the years and he expects it to continue to grow.

In addition to offering cataract surgery, lens implantation and cosmetic eyelid surgery at the Charlevoix hospital, Jarvi is planning to perform laser vision correction once the facility receives final approval for the procedure.

A graduate of Wayne State Medical School, Jarvi served his internship at St. John Hospital in Detroit, and his residency at Cook County Hospital in Chicago, Ill. He was a post-doctoral fellow and chief resident at the Kresge Eye Institute, where he specialized in laser eye surgery.

Jarvi began seeing patients, by appointment, in the Charlevoix office the last week of March.

A referral from a family physician or optometrist is not necessary, although referrals are welcome.

For more information about Jarvi's practice, or to make an appointment, please call (231) 348-3600.

PUBLIC NOTICE

If it's not in the newspaper, how will the public notice?

Zoning changes. Tax increases. Legislative proposals. These are just a few topics where government actions can affect your life and community. Imagine if government no longer had the legal obligation to publish this information in your newspaper. How would public notices get noticed? In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. It should not be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look, when to look or even to know what you're looking for to be informed. It is government's responsibility to publish and deliver public notice information as it becomes available. So take notice. Your right to know is being served... right here in your newspaper.

Eveline Township adopts turbine ordinance

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

The Eveline Township Board unanimously adopted a new zoning ordinance addressing controversial wind turbine generators without first making changes recommended by the Charlevoix County Planning Commission.

The board made its decision at a special meeting March 25.

Some residents at the meeting, opposed to wind turbine generators, voiced issues they still had with the ordinance, including some the county planning commission pointed out earlier this month.

But the board felt it could make changes later and it was important to move forward.

"It's not easy to change it now. If we start doing that we'll be pushed back three or four months. One of the things I'm concerned with is, if a request comes in, they'll deal with the current ordinance, not this new one," township supervisor Dan Skrzeczkoski said.

While the board felt adopting the ordinance now was important, others, including Eveline Towns hip resident Nancy Ferguson, disagreed.

She said, "I'm worried, we seem to be more concerned with getting this thorough fast than doing it correctly."

Township and county officials have both said the new ordinance is much more restrictive than the former ordinance and those opposed to locating wind turbine generators anywhere in the township agree.

In fact, one of the county planning commission's comments to the board about the ordinance was that it may be too restrictive.

Charlevoix County Planner Larry Sullivan said, "I'm not adverse to being restrictive, but you can't be restrictive to the point where you effectively preclude them from being located anywhere."

He explained that the Michigan Township Zoning Enabling Act says you must allow for all reasonable uses for which a demand exists.

Only one other person at the meeting, Eveline Township resident Arness Cox, echoed this concern.

"You're way off base with the 2,600 foot setback. There is no property in Eveline Township that can even support one, it's too restrictive," he said.

The setback concern addressed by the county planning commission also questioned how the township would decide to reduce the setback requirement to 500 feet.

This concern was shared by Eveline Township resident Ron Chapman who said, "The provisions that get the setback from 2,600 feet to 500 feet are quite vague. This leaves too much lack of guidelines for people who have to make that decision."

Sullivan said the county planning commission is also concerned about the ordinance's lack of a clear distinction between commercial and noncommercial wind turbine generators.

Skrzeczkoski said power generated by a commercial turbine goes onto the grid while a noncommercial turbine would be used on site. However, he added that in the future this may need to be defined more clearly in the ordinance.

> "It's not easy to change it now. If we start doing that we'll be pushed back three or four months.."
> Dan Skrzeczkoski,
> Eveline Township supervisor

Those in attendance also questioned how the board could adopt an ordinance when its master plan has not been finalized.

"The master plan is the foundation for anything the township does and the ordinance follow it," Chapman said.

Skrzeczkoski said the master plan is expected to be adopted by April 9.

The township board said that with the proposed master plan district overlay, which outlines areas where wind turbines will be considered, there are 11 properties in the township that could accommodate wind turbines under the requirements of the ordinance.

These properties include Eveline Township land owned by: Tom Louiselle, Preston Parish, Sandra Thomas, Russell Bolt, Harold Thomas, Duane Kugat, Charles Cooper, Robert Shepard, Rosemary Smith and Carl Olstrum.

None of the 11 include the properties of Dawson and Mark "Barney" Way and Ralph Richardson, those that were proposed for locating a wind farm in 2001, as neither met the setback requirements.

Art center opens new quilt exhibit

The Crooked Tree Arts Center announced the opening of the exhibition, Art Quilts recently.

This show will feature contemporary quilts created by artist, Laura Wasilowski. The opening reception is 5 to 7 p.m., Monday, April 14. The show runs through May 17.

The artist will be in attendance at the opening and give a brief lecture on quilt making at 6 p.m..

Wasilowski is a contemporary quilt maker, teacher and creator of hand dyed fabrics and threads. She has an undergraduate degree in costuming from the College of St. Benedict, St. Joseph, Minn. and a Master of Arts degree in fiber from Northern Illinois University, DeKalb, Ill. and is owner of ARTFABRIK.

Her recent exhibits include: Feel Free — Husqvarna Barcelona Spain Exhibit 2002; Keiko Circle Quilts — Nagoya Japan Quilt Carnival 2002; Oxymorons — Absurdly Logical Quilts 2001; Quilt 21 — American Art Quilts for the 21st Century 2000; Illinois Women Artists — The New Millennium 2000; Crafts National 33 2000; Yeiser Art Center's Ninth, Eleventh and Twelfth Annual Invitational; Tactile Architecture 1998 - 2001; Quilt Nihon; Tokyo Japan 2000; Hands All Around 2000, 2001, 2002 International Quilt Festival; Artist as Quiltmaker VII and VII; Fiberart International 1997 and 1998; Quilt National 1995 and The Museum of the American Quilter's Society's "Ohio Star Exhibit."

"Colorful, hand dyed fabrics are my inspiration for creating art quilts, as are stories of my family, friends and home. I combine vivid fabrics and whimsical stories to make pictorial quilts, which are often narratives of my life. Each wall piece I make is of my own design, of fused appliqué and machine quilted," Wasilowski said when asked about her particular form of quilt making.

Wasilowski gives workshops and lectures throughout the country, sharing her talent and sense of whimsy with novice and experienced quilters.

For more information about the artist go to www.artfabrik.com.

The Crooked Tree Arts Center's temporary exhibition space is located at 445 E. Mitchell Street in downtown Petoskey. The telephone number is (231) 347-4337. For more information, go to www.crookedtree.org.

Mental health groups to merge

Northern Michigan Community Mental Health and Antrim Kalkaska Community Mental Health are announcing their merger effective April 1.

The new agency will be called North Country Community Mental Health, with a service area covering the counties of Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet, Otsego, Antrim and Kalkaska.

"We are excited by the prospect of merging and feel that it was the best decision for the people we serve," said Northern Michigan Community Mental Health's Alexis Kaczynski.

Kaczynski will be the director of the new agency.

North Country will be the second, six county mental health board in Michigan.

A range of services is provided to persons with mental illness, emotional problems and developmental disabilities. It is expected that about 4,500 persons will be served annually. The new program will have a budget of approximately $28.5 million, and about 230 staff members.

Funding is received from Medicaid, state and local funds.

Bill Birch, outgoing interim director of Antrim Kalkaska Community Mental Health feels that the change will better position the agency for the future.

"We want to stress to our communities that they should see very little change with this merger, unless it's positive," he said. "We're hoping to take the best practices from both agencies and focus on service excellence."

In order for the merger to become effective, approval was required from the six county boards of commissioners.

"The commissioners wanted what was best for our clients and best for our communities," Kaczynski said.

Anyone interested in more information about the merger should contact Kaczynski at (231) 347-7890, or Birch at (231) 533-8619.

Stop smoking class offered

If your New Year's resolution to stop smoking has stalled out or if you have been trying to take that step alone and think you may need a little help, then Charlevoix Area Hospital and the American Lung Association have the perfect solution, and it's free.

Freedom from Smoking is a program that offers support, guidance and advice to help you get smoke free and start a new, healthier life.

This 8-session, 7-week free clinic will be given at Charlevoix Area Hospital at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesdays starting April 15, with one class on Thursday, May 8. Other class dates are Tuesdays on April 22 and 29, and on May 6, 13, 20 and June 3, all at 7:30 p.m. There is no class on May 27 because of Memorial Weekend.

"Quit Day" will occur during session three on May 6. Because class space is limited, participants must pre-register. Previously a $25 fee was charged, but this fee has been waived under the sponsorship of Charlevoix Area Hospital and the American Lung Association.

Class schedule will include: Thinking about Quitting; On the Road to Freedom; Wanting to Quit; Quit Day; Winning Strategies; The New You; Staying Off; and Let's Celebrate.

Each class is designed to provide the information and support each participant will need at that phase of the process.

To register for the class call 547-8672 and take your first step to a smoke free, healthier life style.

HEALTH

Take a 'spa day' to start on a healthy body

Candy Smith

'Your health'

Vacations are a waste of time - April Fool! You don't need exercise to keep your muscles and bones strong - April Fool! A new pill blocks fat, carbs and makes you slim and energetic - April Fool!

Spring is a time of renewal and one way to start is with open eyes and a willing body! Of course we all want the quick and easy way to renew our physical well being. Of course we all want to take a luxurious vacation away from chores and drab weather. Perhaps this spring is the perfect time to evaluate what you really want as far as health and well being and devise a plan to get it!

I'm suggesting a spa week or day or month of your precise design. Since not all of us are lucky enough to go away to a warm pampered resort, why not design your own?

Let's evaluate first what really makes you feel better: Being slumped in a chair in front of the TV, or moving your body, breathing fully, feeling your full height? Yes, I am going to suggest the major component to your spa vacation is activity!

Choose an activity that you already enjoy — biking, exercise class, yoga — or try one that you may not yet know is your new favorite. Most importantly, don't overdo it! Take it easy and give it several times so that you feel more confident and successful. Your mind and body will begin fairly quickly to get that refreshed renewal that can truly offer you the benefits of a "vacation."

Speaking of vacation, one of the perks is often centered around food — opportunities to eat out.

How about challenging yourself to make new choices, perhaps to ask ahead of restaurants for healthy and tasty selections. There is at least one restaurant in town that will make healthy menus, even for take out!

Perhaps finances don't allow us to go out. New recipes and attention to healthy food choices at the grocery store can give our bodies that same jump-start that good gardeners offer to their new plants in the spring.

As you plan your "spa time" of activity and healthy eating, be sure to include some strength building (no ladies, you won't get bigger and yes gentlemen, you might!) for your bones and muscles and time for relaxation and stretching!

The sauna at Harbor Health & Fitness Center — coupled with a massage, or one of the pools or hot tubs at our local hotels — can set the mood and inspire you to look inside your mind to find what truly is important to you.

During our normal busy schedule, we often lose track of what we are doing with our time and our life. Stretching, breathing, and relaxing is beneficial to our muscles and our mind. Life doesn't offer a balance of front/back, right/left, work/play, so we must bring that balance into our lives ourselves.

Your spa week can include a visit to your doctor for a check up or a chance for a foot massage or perhaps to have your hair or nails done. Treat yourself, but start with the physical activity. Get your blood flowing and your mind cleared for the spring and busy summer to come. It is never too late.

A recent paragraph in the April 2003 University of California, Berkeley "Wellness Letter" reviews a study done in Michigan that found previously sedentary participants aged 80 to 92 who walked on a treadmill or rode an exercise bike for an average of 20 minutes twice a week for 6 months found improvement in their health — specifically lowered blood pressure and improved cardiovascular fitness. The more they exercised, the bigger the improvement. It is never too late to start exercising! Start your spa time today.

Candy Smith is the manager of Harbor Health & Fitness Center in downtown Charlevoix. The location has classes for strength, cardio fitness, and yoga, as well as a full fitness area with machines and free weights for cardio & strength benefits. Massage room, sauna, showers, and a racquetball court are also available on site at 104 Mason St., Charlevoix, MI 49720 and can be contacted at (231) 547-8000.

Insurance company makes offer to end suit

LAWSUIT

"Under Michigan court rules there are specific advantages to an offer of judgment," Lieder said.

For example, if Jarema had not accepted the $50,000 judgment and the lawsuit went to trial before a jury, if Jarema won, the jury would have to award him over $50,000 or he would have to pay the county and Kur's legal fees. Meaning, if a jury were to award Jarema $49,999, Jarema would be responsible for the entire legal bill his case has cost Charlevoix County and Kur.

"Which is why when you feel you have a strong case, you offer a judgment," Lieder said.

According to newspaper reports and Lieder, the case has cost Charlevoix County and its insurance company about $157,000. The insurance company is expected to pick up most of that bill.

In a press release, Jarema pointed out this expense.

"There has been much written about the expense of the defense of this case. The county apparently had a $35,000 deductible. Why rack up $150,0000 in attorney fees and then admit you were wrong? If she would have admitted she was wrong at the beginning, like I asked her to do in front of the commissioners, it would not have cost the county a dime," Jarema said in the release.

While saying that the decision to end the case was that of the insurance company and does not establish "guilt" by Kur, Lieder pointed out the $50,000 offer does not even come close to covering the court costs racked up by Jarema.

"The settlement is less then one-half of the fees and expenses that (Jarema) owes his attorney. If, as (Jarema) apparently claims, this is a victory, he can ill afford any more victories," Lieder said.

Now that the case is over, Jarema said his future is uncertain.

"I am going to try to repair my reputation and get some closure," he said.

Currently he is working at the Charlevoix law-offices of Joseph, Corcoran, Telgenhof and Snyder.

As for the possibility of him challenging Kur for the county prosecutor's position, he said that also is undecided.

Kur, who was out of town on vacation at press time, was unavailable for comment.

Police log

The information contained in this report has been compiled from the Charlevoix Police Department's log book, which is open to public inspection under the Michigan Freedom of Information Act. Because some officers are still working on their reports, and they were not available before press time, not all of the reports from this period are listed. If you have any information on these reports, please contact the Charlevoix Police Department at 547-3258.

City officials on hand for groundbreaking

Petrie Construction, the project's general contractor, submitted a project outline that shows the renovated building and addition being complete in early April of 2004.

The project architect Jim Nichols of Fuller Nichols Architects in Harbor Springs, was also at the groundbreaking. He said the event was a milestone in a project his firm has been working on for a long time. Nichols started drawings for this renovation in 1998, then the project was put on hold, started back up and was increased in size.

After almost five years of planning and eight years of saving money, the city is ready to dig in.

The project will include expanding and upgrading Charlevoix City Police and Fire departments including the addition of shower facilities, a fire department training room and a workout room.

To allow for the expansion, the renovation will include a 2,200 square foot addition on the three space parking area off Mason Street, adjacent to the police department. This is the same concrete area Farmer remembers being poured back in 1939. Plans for the expansion include retaining the building's sandstone structure with limestone trim.

New second floor council chambers equipped with additional seating and state-of-the-art technology including audio visual components is also part of the project.

The current main level council chambers will be the office of the building department, the electric department and the city clerk.

Elevators will be added to the building on the main floor.

The first of four phases will begin with renovations to the old post office. City employees will temporarily relocate there while city hall gets spruced up. The renovation is expected to take eight weeks and will include the addition of bathrooms, partitions and upgraded electrical.

In phase two, city administrative personnel will move to the post office and the recreation department will relocate to Mount McSauba. After staff has moved, the addition will be built and city offices, the basement and meeting rooms will be renovated.

Phase three will include minor changes to the post office to accommodate the police and fire departments. And in phase four, police and fire personnel will move there while their quarters are renovated.

Writer tells the sticky tale of wooden shingles

Clayton Smith

'Life on the farm'

One more story I want to tell.

In the 1930s on the farm and I was 16 or 17 years old. I wanted to get a job one fall to make some money. I went over to the Reid-Murdoch Canning Factory in Ellsworth.

I went into the office and there was a man named Basil Cummings that was the office manager and did some of the hiring when they needed men. He worked for Elmer Rood, the Swedish guy that was the manager.

He was a bit of a character and he asked me what I could do.

I said "Well, I have worked on the farm and did all kinds of jobs on the farm like making hay, hoeing corn and chopping corn, filling silo and threshing, milking cows."

He said, "What job did you like to do the best?"

I thought for a minute and said, "The last job we did this fall was to shingle the barn with wooden shingles."

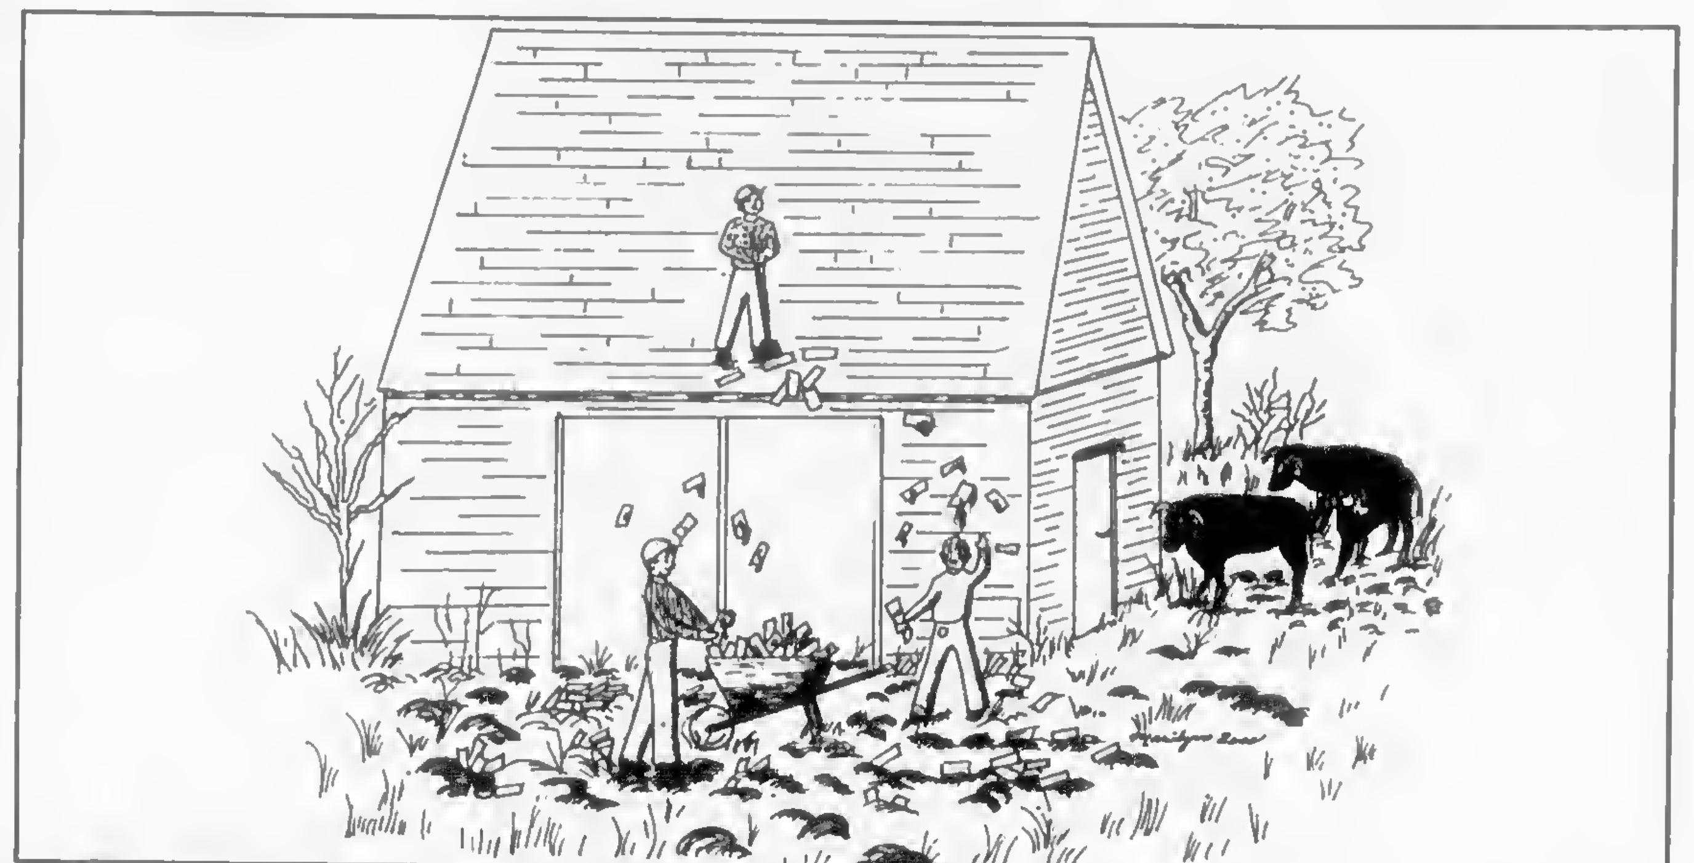
My dad, brother Carl and I got up on the roof and we took some shovels and ripped off all the old dead shingles that were all curled up and some of them falling off and the barn was leaking. We took all the old shingles off before we could put the new ones on.

The wooded shingles were all down at the bottom of the barn where we pitched them off the roof.

We had two or three young bulls that were running around the barn and there was a bunch of manure on the shingles.

After we got things kind of organized and the new shingles on the barn, my dad said, "Now, you boys take the wheel barrow and gather up those wooden shingles and haul them over to the wood shed and we'll use them this winter to start the fires in the stoves."

So, that was what we were doing. These young bulls had been funning around the barn and there was a bunch of manure on the shingles. We didn't want to haul that manure so we started picking those shingles up and knocking them up against the barn to knock it off.



Clayton Smith and his brother have some sticky fun while shingling. (Illustration by Marllyn Boss)

We got into a contest to see who could make that manure stick to the side of the barn the best. For some reason, I was having better luck than Carl was because I could make it stick better than he could.

So, I was telling Basil of the day we shingled the barn.

He said, "Well, I guess we'll hire you because we have a lot of fellows around this place that like to sling the bull, but they can't make it stick."

Road work to start soon

Work may last until mid-July

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Who: Michigan Department of Transportation
When: Construction will start in mid-April and last until mid-July, or possibly longer.
What does it mean: Residents should start looking at alternate routes when traveling north.

A huge road project to be undertaken this spring and summer by the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) will be a trade off for motorists.

On the one hand, the road work will address joint and road surface issues along part of US-31, likely producing a smoother ride.

"Motorists won't have to go another winter with the joints in the condition they're presently in. If you've driven that stretch you know what it's like," Bob Felt, spokesperson for MDOT's North Region in Gaylord, said. "You'll see some good benefits with this."

MDOT workers will mill and resurface nine miles of US-31 from just west of Lewis Street in the city of Charlevoix to the Emmet County line. Milling the road removes part of its current surface and roughs it up in preparation for pouring of new asphalt.

The concrete currently in place has not seen a major overhaul like this since it was poured in the 1950s.

However, on the other hand, with those benefits of a new road surface, come costs. And both Charlevoix City Police Chief Dennis Halverson and Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater, said that cost will likely be time stuck in traffic.

Some of the work will be done during Charlevoix's peak tourist season. Felt said if the weather cooperates the project is scheduled to start later this month and will be complete by the middle of July.

The road work will result in one lane traffic on the highway in alternating directions for two mile stretches.

Workers are scheduled to work during the daylight hours only and, Felt said, they will generally not work weekends and definitely won't work festival times and holidays.

"During those times we will be out of the way. We take this business very seriously and want to make sure people can get where they need to go," he said.

However, during those off times the two mile stretches of one way traffic may still be closed depending on what part of the process they are in.

No detours are planned for the closed route, but Felt said if motorists know of an alternate route they can always take that.

Halverson said in spite of the probable traffic delays, the benefit of this project still outweighs the cost.

"Based on the condition of that road this spring, this couldn't have come at a better time. The

Three meet deadline for election

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

The filing deadline for candidates running in the Charlevoix Public School District's upcoming school board election has passed.

Candidates who want to run had to have nominating petitions or a $100 filing fee in by 4 p.m., April 7 to be eligible to run in the June 9 election.

Three Charlevoix residents made the cutoff; one will run unopposed and two will face off in the spring election.

Current board trustee, Bill Truhilowicz, who replaced former trustee Mike MacMillan in November of 2002 after he resigned in October, is running unopposed for a vacant four-year seat.

The seat is being vacated by outgoing board president Allen Telgenhof who announced in February he will not be running for reelection after eight years with the board.

Truhilowicz, 52, has been a resident of the school district since 1986 and has been very active with the schools as a parent, volunteer and

Crooked Tree, YMCA team up for fund-raiser

The Crooked Tree Arts Center and the YMCA of Petoskey is collaborating on a fund-raising event, Northern Stars Talent Show.

This event is scheduled for Thursday, and Friday, May 29 and 30 in John Hall Auditorium in Bay View.

The goal of this event is to raise scholarship funds for youth to enable them to participate in music, art and dance lessons at the Crooked Tree Arts Center and the programs offered by the new YMCA.

"The idea was to create an all-new Talent Show to showcase the many fabulous performers that live in our area," Joe Blachy, board member of the YMCA, said.

"This is an opportunity for adults to collectively and with very little effort create a huge impact on the programs offered to area youth through the Crooked Tree Arts Center and the YMCA," Dale Hull, director, said.

Musical, dance, and comedy acts of all ages are encouraged to audition for the show.

An audition call is announced for both professional and amateur performers.

Audition forms are available by calling the Crooked Tree Arts Center at (231) 347-4337 or Julie Pierpont, Northern Stars director, at (231) 347-4488.

Audition forms for amateurs are due Tuesday, April 15. Professional performers are urged to call Pierpont by Wednesday, April 9.

Tickets for the event will go on sale the end of April.

Weather turns cold for Charlevoix residents

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Last week, winter storm warnings that were accompanied by ice and heavy snow had many people in Charlevoix wondering if March 20 was the first day of spring or if it was winter's halfway point.

An unusually cold arctic high pressure area over Canada produced the cold temperatures and a low pressure area moving out of the eastern plains brought the moisture.

"The clash of the two has put together this nice little ice and snow storm," Andy Sullivan, a meteorologist with the National Weather Service in Gaylord, said.

Round one of the storm arrived in Charlevoix April 3 when variable temperatures brought a mix of slush, freezing drizzle and freezing rain.

Temperatures continued to drop and another wave of low pressure rolled in bringing round two, heavy snow, on April 4. Then, day three of the winter storm warning came the morning of April 5 before things mellowed that afternoon.

Even though northern Michigan residents have weathered cold temperatures and snowy weather since November, Sullivan said this recent storm isn't unusual.

"It's northern Michigan and it's not unusual for winter to linger a little longer up here than a lot of other places," he said.

Residents don't have to be jealous of southern Michigan though, freezing rain plagued that area last week too.

While the storm may not be unusual, residents certainly had adjusted to temperatures in the 50s and 60s that were here two weeks ago.

Sullivan said this is the time of year that people can expect these drastic temperature swing periods.

But he offered some hope in forecasting. He said by the middle to end of this week Charlevoix can expect things to moderate a little with temperatures reaching close to normal levels in the 40s and 50s.

Tax deadline just around the corner for Americans

It is time to pay the taxman for many Charlevoix residents as another tax deadline looms April 15.

All taxpayers in the United States must file their state and federal income tax forms by midnight on April 15, the annual deadline.

The Charlevoix, Petoskey and Gaylord post offices will have regular office hours on this day — 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. — but Gaylord will have a collection bin outside of its office for taxpayers dropping off their forms. Items in this box will be collected at midnight and postmarked April 15.

If you owe money this year to the government, make your check or money order payable to the United States Treasury and include your social security number, a daytime telephone number and the year and type of form filed on the check, according to the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) web-site www.irs.gov.

Use the Form 1940-V payment voucher if you have one and do not staple the payment to the tax return.

While filing your return by computer or phone, you may authorize the treasury to electronically withdraw your tax payment from your checking or savings account on a specified date. There is no charge for this service, according to the IRS.

The option is available through April 15.

Taxes can also be charged to an

Don't divide America more with insults

Jeremy McBain

'Just a thought'

This has been a sad time.

Let me tell you a story that has been sitting in my mind lately. It is a story about a man in Georgia named Max Cleland.

This man in Georgia was a politician serving his state and his country in Washington D.C. But, during his tenure in the government, he questioned the Homeland Security Department proposal.

Little did he know that this would set off a firestorm in an America shaped by the terrorist attacks of Sept. 11, 2001.

You see, this politician came from a politically important state to the Republican party and this politician was not a Republican. The party of the elephant needed one of its own to be elected in this state to give it more power in shaping the national policy.

Seizing on the politician's opinions questioning the department, the Republican party branded this Georgia politician as unpatriotic. How dare he question a patriotic proposal such as the Homeland Security Department, even though it will cost the taxpayers millions of dollars?

Being branded unpatriotic gave a death sentence to this Georgia politician's political career. The strange thing, this man was a Patroit.

In fact, this Georgia politician was a veteran of the Vietnam War, who also lost three of his limbs to a grenade during this war.

So, you would think that the American public could see through this petty name calling. But, they didn't. The term unpatriotic stuck with this senator and many analysts believe that was the reason he was voted out of office and a man who did not serve in the military was voted in.

This story has sat heavy on my mind over the last few weeks. I am saddened by it as a student of the human condition — which many journalists are. It saddens me how our nation, filled with very intelligent individuals, has become one that uses quick insults — always false — instead of solid arguments — usually truthful — to form opinions.

And the condition is worsening.

Take for example this war in Iraq. The insults being lobbed at each side are getting horrid.

On one side you have those against the war. They believe passionately that they are right and all the facts lay with them. But, lately, some of them have moved away from presenting their side of the situation to name-calling.

"Ignorant fascists" is one term I heard used by anti-war people for someone who supports this war. "Beer-swilling war-mongering rednecks" is another.

Most of the people in support of this war are not ignorant by any stretch of the imagination. They have listened to the arguments for both sides and simply believe a war is justified.

Many of them are very smart people who understand that war is a horrible thing. They want this war over with, but believe in its goals.

Now on the other side are those for the war. Many believe that they are right and by speaking out against this war and the president, you are only helping the enemy.

I have heard the terms, "unpatriotic" and "traitors" used by some of these people supporting the war to describe those against the war.

Come on. If speaking out against the leader of the country during a time of war were unpatriotic, then Republicans who spoke out against former President Bill Clinton's use of the military in Kosovo were "unpatriotic traitors."

Most of the people speaking out against this war believe more should have been done to unite the world behind it and more proof should have been given as to why war was necessary. They do not like Saddam Hussein any more than those who support the war.

Name-calling serves no purpose other than to prove you have no argument to support your position — that goes for either side.

Are those supporting this war "ignorant fascists?" No. Many believe in freedom and want to share it with the world.

Are those against this war "unpatriotic traitors?" No. Many support the troops and think the best thing for them is to bring them home now.

Will this editor's opinion matter in the political climate we live in now? Sadly, that is not likely. As it is, we will probably continue to call each other names rather than debating the issues, further fanning the hatred that it is breeding.

As we all know, hatred has a way of making people do bad things. I only hope we come to our senses before something bad happens because of the name-calling.

I hope this sadness passes quickly. In the meantime, I mourn for the days of intelligent political discussion. I mourn for our nation. I mourn for our sanity.

The fishy tale of Weston helping the local Red Cross

Edith Gilbert

'Behind the news'

There's something very fishy going on here!

It all started when Linda Weston got hooked on a new fund-raising project for her pet benefit, the Red Cross. By early June you will see more than 45 hand-painted, fiberglass fish, 5 feet long and 3 feet high, placed outdoors all over Charlevoix and Emmet County.

In other parts of the country cities like Chicago have featured painted cows, and in Rockport, Maine they tackled lobsters. Linda noticed that her hometown, Cincinnati, sponsored the "Big Pig Gig." Why not fish up north?

No sooner said than done. In Charlevoix, the first completed fish was designed by Charlevoix artists Sue and Russ Bolt and named a "Fish of All Seasons." You may have seen it while it was briefly displayed at the Charlevoix State Bank.

Kate Belfy is now designing a fish for the Charlevoix Area Hospital inspired by nursery rhymes. Her clever paintings include "Hickory Dickory Dock, The Fish Ran Up the Clock," and a "Fish Jumps Over the Moon."

In Petoskey, Preston Feather's theme will be a creative da Vinci "The Fishteen Chapel," and the Charlevoix Foundation in East Jordan will have a totem pole fish standing on his tail, which was designed by Tony Miron of the Mackinac Tribe.

This is only a hint of what's to come!

Incidentally, you may be interested to know that the basic fiberglass fish was designed by a young student, Grant West, from Beaver Island High School. Now there are students in 14 area schools decorating fish, including Beaver Island.

Each school is sponsored by a local bank. For example, Charlevoix High School is sponsored by the Charlevoix State Bank to the tune of $1,200, which

Anti-War letters response

Editor:

I had planned on responding to some of the letters of protest sooner, but realized it would fall on deaf ears. Now that Operation Iraqi Freedom is in full swing and the world can see the pure evil of Saddam, his sons and his terrorist armies one more time, some still wont see. They never will. One can take a little comfort in the fact that they are a small slice of society.

I am confident the men and women who are in charge of making the tough decisions are doing just that. The fact that more people died in the first hour of the World Trade Center attack than have died in Baghdad in a week won't be enough to convince some of these protesters.

The fact is there are never going to be enough facts for these folks.

Jeremy McBain had a few questions about the possible war in Iraq a couple of weeks ago and I think some of those may have been answered. I have a possible story for you Jeremy; the next time you talk to a protester ask them who they voted for in the last presidential election. That might be a fun little article.

To Ms. Beemon and to Mr. King: I read both of your recent letters. I think Beemon's was in The News-Review. I read them a couple of times. I thought it curious that in one of the letters where Bush, Cheney and Rumsfeld are listed as dangerous with no mention of Saddam? It was also curious that one letter said Bush disregarded the will of the people and was launching a war of aggression? Those were some emotional creative letters I must say.

I am glad to see the war in Iraq is going better than our war on drugs. That is some pretty dangerous propaganda. I hope your letters never make it into the hands of any of our soldiers let alone any foreign enemy. To the families, soldiers and allies: please know you have the support of the majority of the U.S.A. and the world. Wishes for a safe return.

Enjoyed Gilbert's column

Editor:

I enjoyed Edith Gilbert's column of March 26 about the new and improved facilities for new babies and their parents at Charlevoix Area Hospital. The hospital also presents a new baby book bag to each family, and the Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library are pleased to co-sponsor this gift which includes a brand new book for every brand new baby so that every child can start on the road to reading right away.

Research shows that children who have had stories read to them by their parents are eventually much better students, and it is appropriate that this week, National Library Week, we honor our newest Charlevoix readers.

Weston's plan is a fun way to help our local Red Cross helps pay for the fish. Individuals and businesses may pay $2,000 to sponsor a fish, which will be auctioned off, or $3,000 if they choose to keep the fish.

Some professional artists receive an honorarium and some donate their time for the benefit of the Red Cross.

Volunteering for the Red Cross up north is nothing new for Linda Weston. She has been involved as a mental health disaster nurse for 13 years in Cincinnati and she is trained as a clinical specialist in child psychiatric nursing. She handles group debriefing with children after any disaster such as floods, fires and tornados.

She says that locally the Red Cross, in addition to staffing the Blood Bank, teaches classes in aquatic training, and has helped with the recent tornado in Boyne City.

Married to Paul Weston of Cincinnati and mother of three boys, Linda has summered in Charlevoix for almost 40 years. The couple is now retired here.

They recently tore down the old Weston family summer cottage and built a beautiful new place overlooking Round Lake that accommodates their growing family. Love for Charlevoix goes back for several generations since Paul's great-grandfather first came north for the summer in the late 1890s!

The auction will be given on Aug. 23 at Bay Harbor Marina. Every fish to be auctioned off will be on display there for one week before the auction. Please don't miss this show!

All funds raised will remain in the 12 county local Red Cross Chapter, and the good news is there are still professional artists who will paint a fish for you.

"Just tell us what you want us to paint and we will do it for you."

For more information, please call the "Fish Lady," Nancy Porter, at her Red Cross Office, (231) 348-7666.

Rayder pride lives

Editor:

Rayder pride lives on!

Another year of terrific post season basketball! But, it's springtime and a young man's fancy turns to baseball. That's right baseball! And track and tennis and girls' softball.

Yes, the Charlevoix Rayders play sports in the spring. So please bring back your flags and banners. Wear your Rayders' hats and T-shirts and support our athletes. These sports may not he big money-makers, but they are important to the athletes who practice so hard to ready themselves for a busy season.

So join us out on the Rayders' new baseball and softball fields this spring! Bring a lawn chair, and show your support for our Rayders! Thank you.

Thank you

Editor:

I would like to submit this letter to express my thanks and gratitude to the community of Charlevoix.

During the past several months the prayers, concern and kindness have been such a blessing and comfort to my family and me. I feel so lucky to be a part of such a wonderful community.

Among all of your busy lives you have found the time to show your compassion and genuine concern. Each and every one of you have made my life a little more comfortable and shown me that this is a community that cares.

I may never be able to thank each and every one of you but to all of you my heartfelt thanks and appreciation.

God Bless.

Memories of Charlevoix

Editor:

I read where Charlevoix defeated McBain in the regional finals, avenging last year's one point loss on the Rayders' march towards a return trip to the finals.

My memory of our 1960 loss to Frankfort in the regional finals immediately came to mind. We had marched through the regular season and through the districts undefeated. We had won our first two games in the regionals, a one point win over Houghton Lake and a hlowout win over Kalkaska.

We came into the regional finals 20-0 and highly favored to beat a 16-4 Frankfort team. It was just not to he on that night, they beat us 68-62. It was a bitter pill to swallow, but on that night we just got our butts kicked.

The next year the 1961 Rayders met and defeated those guys from Frankfort, thus easing the pain of our loss the year before. That was 42 years ago and this sure is a belated thank you, hut here goes anyway.

Thanks to Sam Supernaw, Jim Dennis, Hank Wagner, Terry DeYoung, Don Nowland — Gosh I even think that Gary Spencer had moved to Charlevoix by then. I am sorry that I can't recall all of the players, but you know who you are those were some fun times playing basketball and representing Charlevoix on the hardwoods every Tuesday and Friday night.

Trust me folks, you think Rayder nation is crazy now; a thief could have stolen the town of Charlevoix during a home game and no one would have known it until the final buzzer sounded — gosh, I can still hear Pete Burns, "Starting for Charlevoix at guard."

Anyway thanks again guys.

Who are the bad guys?

Editor:

In recent days my wife and I have seen countless articles and arguments pro and con to our involvement in Iraq. Now it comes out that Iraqis in plainclothes lured a coalition convoy into an ambush, killing some coalition soldiers and brutalizing others. A violation of the Geneva Convention and the laws of war.

It seems that the vast majority of "collateral damage" has in fact been caused by the anti-war/peace demonstrators. Let me in turn propose this question: Who again are the bad guys?

Wal-Mart is bad for town

Editor:

I read your article ahout the proposed Wal-Mart coming to town with great interest. We are not full-time residents of Charlevoix, but do have a condo as a second home, and spend most weekends year-round there.

The article mentioned "....the property is already zoned commercial, so the township cannot say no to them." It seems to me, we already have plenty of excellent locally owned businesses in Charlevoix, and that there is no need for Wal-Mart.

What attracted us to Charlevoix several years ago, was the size of the city — not too big, not too small. What is next? Home Depot? Office Max? A mall? Please don't turn this city into another overly commercialized city such as Petoskey or Traverse City.

I thank you in advance for your consideration.

Support the soldiers

Editor:

As I sit here watching the news of war, I would like to send a message to the wives and parents of our military men in action. Have faith in God and trust in your husband or son to know what they are doing and believe they will come home safely.

As a marine wife of 23 years I saw my husband on many mount outs. The Cuban Crisis, three tours in Vietnam and he made it through them all safely and wishes he could be in Iraq now helping those that are there and fighting for his country.

We lost a 19-year-old son to a young man driving under the influence of alcohol and drugs. It's very hard to lose a child no matter what. I do believe though that it would have been easier to accept his death in the name of freedom than his death without a reason — driving down the road.

I have another son currently in the hospital with a broken neck. A motorcycle accident involving alcohol. Paralyzed from the waist down he struggled for his life for weeks. I'd rather have him fighting in Iraq right now, and so would he.

Our freedom is priceless and those fighting right now know that better than anyone. As I watch the anti-war demonstrators on T.V., I hope they remember that the freedom to do so is exactly what our military men and women are fighting for. I wish the demonstrators could turn some of that energy toward fighting drug and alcohol abuse or better yet supporting our men and women in uniform.

God bless our soldiers, airmen, marines and sailors and their families!

Crooked Tree Arts Center wins community art award

The Crooked Tree Arts Center is a winner of the 2003 Great Lakes Community Arts Awards sponsored by the Michigan Association of Community Arts Agencies.

"The Great Lakes Community Arts Award recognizes the exceptional accomplishments of Michigan arts and cultural organizations and certainly the Crooked Tree Arts Center ranks as one of the state's outstanding cultural groups," Deborah E. Mikula, director of the group, said. "They truly deserve this award."

Recipients of the Great Lakes Community Arts Award are selected by a jury of their peers. Michigan boasts over 3,000 arts organizations; this year more than 50 organizations were nominated for the award.

"It was a difficult decision," Mikula said. "All the nominees presented compelling examples of the wonderful work they are doing in their communities."

Other winners of the 2003 Great Lakes Community Arts Awards are: Friends of Poetry, Inc., Kalamazoo; Newaygo County Council for the Arts, Fremont; The Pine Mountain Music Festival, Hancock; and All-of-us Express Children's Theater, East Lansing.

The group was formed in 1977 to support, strengthen and unite community arts and cultural organizations in Michigan by providing management training, networking opportunities and informational resources to arts and cultural leaders in communities throughout the state.

"We are pleased to accept this award in recognition of our exemplary programming for children in the arts," Dale Hull, executive director of the Crooked Tree Arts Center, said.

The Beginning Strings and School Tour programs are just two examples of the arts opportunities offered to the youth of Charlevoix and Emmet counties by the Crooked Tree Arts Center.

Each month over 500 students visit the arts center's exhibitions and create a hands-on project using the artistic techniques they have learned. Over 300 children receive tuition-free string instruction in violin, viola, cello and bass at eleven area schools, in the Beginning Strings Program.

For more information about the art agency, call (800) 203-9633 or visit its web site at www.macaa.com.

Obituaries

Bettye Jo Basham: July 25, 1927 - March 31, 2003

Bettye Jo (Lenon) Basham, 75, of Sikeston, Mo. passed away on March 31, 2003.

She was born July 25, 1927, in New Madrid, Mo. to Otto and Gertrude Roper Lenon. On April 17, 1954, she married Matt Basham, who preceded her in death in 1999.

She is survived by her children; Bethany and Chuy Torres of Charlevoix; Matt, Jr. "Joe" and Carol Basham of Highlands, Texas; Douglas and Angie Basham and Richard and Ellee Basham of St. Louis, Mo.; Eric and Sandy Basham of Sikeston, Mo.; and Mary Basham of Tiptonville, Tenn.

She is also survived by thirteen grandchildren, eight great-grand children and her sister, Sue Greganti of Olive Grove, Miss.

During World War II, she served her country by working at the Pentagon and volunteering for the USO. She was a talented second-soprano and performed for several years in a ladies gospel sextet.

She and Matt loved to travel together and they lived in Charlevoix for several years. Her greatest loves were her family and worshiping and serving the Lord Jesus.

She especially enjoyed entertaining friends in her home, serving them her good southern home cooking.

Funeral services were Tuesday, April 8 at Richards Funeral Home in New Madrid, Mo., and burial followed at Evergreen Cemetery in New Madrid.

Ada Golden: Feb. 29, 1908 - April 4, 2003

A funeral Mass will be given at 11 p.m., Thursday at St. Mary Catholic Church for long-time Charlevoix resident Ada Golden who died Friday, April 4 in St. Mary Mercy Hospital in Livonia.

She was 95.

She was born Ada Lois Yettaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Yettaw, in Charlevoix. She attended St. Mary grade school and graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1926.

After taking secretarial training at Ferris Institute (now Ferris State College) she joined the full-time staff of the Charlevoix County State Bank where she had previously worked as a part-time employee. The bank was the only employer she ever had. She worked in positions as a teller and assistant cashier retiring in 1972 after 47 years of service.

Her years behind the counter at the bank made her a familiar face to both winter and summer residents of Charlevoix. Friends remember her as always friendly and smiling and willing to assist her customers whether it was taking a simple deposit or helping them balance their checkbook, according to her son, Bill, of Livonia.

Mrs. Golden was born on Feb. 29, 1908, a leap year, which meant she only celebrated a "real" birthday every four years.

"Mom enjoyed the uniqueness of that leap-year birth date and the attention it brought her over the years," her son said. "Whenever a Feb. 29 came around she would receive cards from all over Michigan and through it formed friendships with others who also were born on Feb. 29, such as former Detroit City Council President Mary Beck."

A deeply religious woman, Mrs. Golden was a member of St. Mary Catholic Church where she was active in many parish activities. She was a member of the choir and served as church organist at different times.

She was a member, and also served as president, of the St. Mary Altar Society. She also was a member of the Charlevoix Hospital Guild and the Charlevoix Historical Society.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Edward K.Golden.

Surviving are a son, Bill, (Suzy) of Livonia; four grandchildren, Laura (John) Birchler of Plymouth, John (Pamela) of Royal Oak, Tom (Jennifer) of Clarholz, Germany; and Gary (Dawn) of Plymouth; eight great-grandchildren and several nieces and nephews.

Visitation will be from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m., on Wed., April 9, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. Burial will be in St. Mary Cemetery in Charlevoix.

John K. Mosoryak: Jan. 26, 1952 - April 1, 2003

John K. "Jay" Mosoryak, 51, of Charlevoix, died Tuesday, April 1, 2003, at Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey.

A Mass of the Resurrection was Friday, April 4, at Saint Mary's Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. Thomas Neis officiated and burial was in Saint Mary's Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Jay was born Jan. 26, 1952, in Lincoln Park, the son of John and Mary (Bereznay) Mosoryak. He moved to Charlevoix in 1968, and graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1969.

He was emplyed by Netcom as a communications technician for over 25 years.

Jay loved to bowl and golf, and was a dedicated University of Michigan fan.

He also enjoyed hunting and camping, but his true passion was working in his woodshop.

He married Vickie S. (Nettleton) on November 30, 2002, in Charlevoix, and she survives.

Jay is also survived by his sons, Matthew, and Michael; daughter, Jennifer all of Charlevoix; stepdaughters, Trisha (David) Olach of Charlevoix, Kylie (Matthew) Kaczmarczyk of Clio; step-granddaughters, Madison and Emily Olach; mother, Mary Mosoryak; sisters, Marion (Chris) DeNio, Kathy (Larry) Cross, Barb (Jim) Hamilton all of Charlevoix; many nieces and nephews.

Memorial contributions may be made to Saint Mary's Church.

The family is being served by the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

John D. Swanson: April 13, 1925 - March 26, 2003

John D. Swanson, 77, of Charlevoix, died Wednesday, March 26, 2003, at Pasco Regional Medical Center in Dade City, Fla.

A funeral was Friday, April 4, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix, and burial took place in Brookside Cemetery.

John was born April 13, 1925, in Charlevoix, the son of Edward and Lena (Lavalley) Swanson. He graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1943.

John then served in the U.S. Air Force during World War II. He married Marilyn Withers on May 4, 1946 in Northport.

John worked in management for Freedman Aricraft, later Harbor Industries for over 30 years retiring in the late 1980s.

He enjoyed golf and bowling, and refereed area basketball, football, and baseball games. He was a member of American Legion Leslie T. Shapton Post 226, the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix and the Elks Club in Zephyrhills, Fla.

John is survived by his wife, Marilyn; daughter, Barb (Bob) Johnson of Zeeland; grandchildren, Lindsey, Holly, April and Drew Johnson; sisters, Thelma Booth of Mio, Rosemary Boutwell of Minn., and Arloah Ferguson of Charlevoix.

Memorial contributions may be made to the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix or to the American Legion Leslie T. Shapton Post 226.

Hospital preparing for possible attacks

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

As the war in Iraq escalates and the war on terrorism persists, the fear and threat of a biological attack is felt within the borders of the United States.

This fear of what could happen has prompted a local response from health agencies and facilities who are preparing for what may come.

In Charlevoix, local emergency responders, the staff at Charlevoix Area Hospital and the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency have joined the District 7 Bioterrorism Project.

Caron Withers, the hospital's infection control coordinator, said, "In general, the plan (project) is focused on responding to any kind of event that creates mass casualties."

"I think being in northern Michigan, the likelihood (of a bioterrorist attack) is less. Chances are they (chemical agents) would be used in larger cities."

But regardless of how small the chances might be that Charlevoix will be the target of a bioterrorist attack, the local hospital and health agencies want to be prepared for anything.

In the event that anthrax is discovered or an outbreak of small pox or botulism is detected, the plan being developed through this project would be enacted to make sure the response is thorough and adequate.

"(With the plan) We certainly have the resources and the connections to get help networking with other hospitals," Withers said.

Charlevoix Area Hospital and 14 other hospitals in the District 7 network were awarded a grant from the Michigan Department of Community Health to voluntarily prepare a bioterrorism plan.

While the full scope of the plan may not be realized for many years, some of its benefits would be of great use to all District 7 hospitals right now, if there were a need.

Withers said the key to the project's success is communication.

"Standardization — so we are all speaking the same language and know the same plan so we can work together," she said.

Over the past few months, that is exactly what the hospitals have been doing — standardizing information and codes, establishing who to contact in case of an emergency, who is available and how to respond.

In the event of a disaster these planning steps and a mutual aid agreement will allow Charlevoix Area Hospital fast access to supplies, medical staff and information.

To help carry out the plan, the hospital has established a safety group that responds in accordance with the agreement and a bioterrorism task force made up of hospital workers, emergency responders, the health department and law enforcement.

Hospital staff members have practiced some disaster drills to identify areas that need improvement and all 15 hospitals in District 7 are planning a disaster drill for the near future that will test the work that has been done so far.

Josie Young, the emergency department manager, said training for specific agents has not occurred because a response can't be specific.

"No two events are the same. Anything that shows up at the door we have to be ready to deal with," she said.

One of the hospital's major concerns with bioterrorism is contaminating the hospital itself because any contamination inside the facility would require that it close.

Avoiding contamination is done by decontaminating patients before they come inside. If the fire department responds, the patient is supposed to be decontaminated at the scene.

According to Joe Schwartzfisher, a shiftcommander with the City of Charlevoix Fire Department, firefighters are currently training at operations level with Hazmat.

He said if contamination is expected the Charlevoix fire crew will suit up in protective gear to contain the area and protect people from being contaminated, while Hazmat technicians with the Traverse City Fire Department are called in.

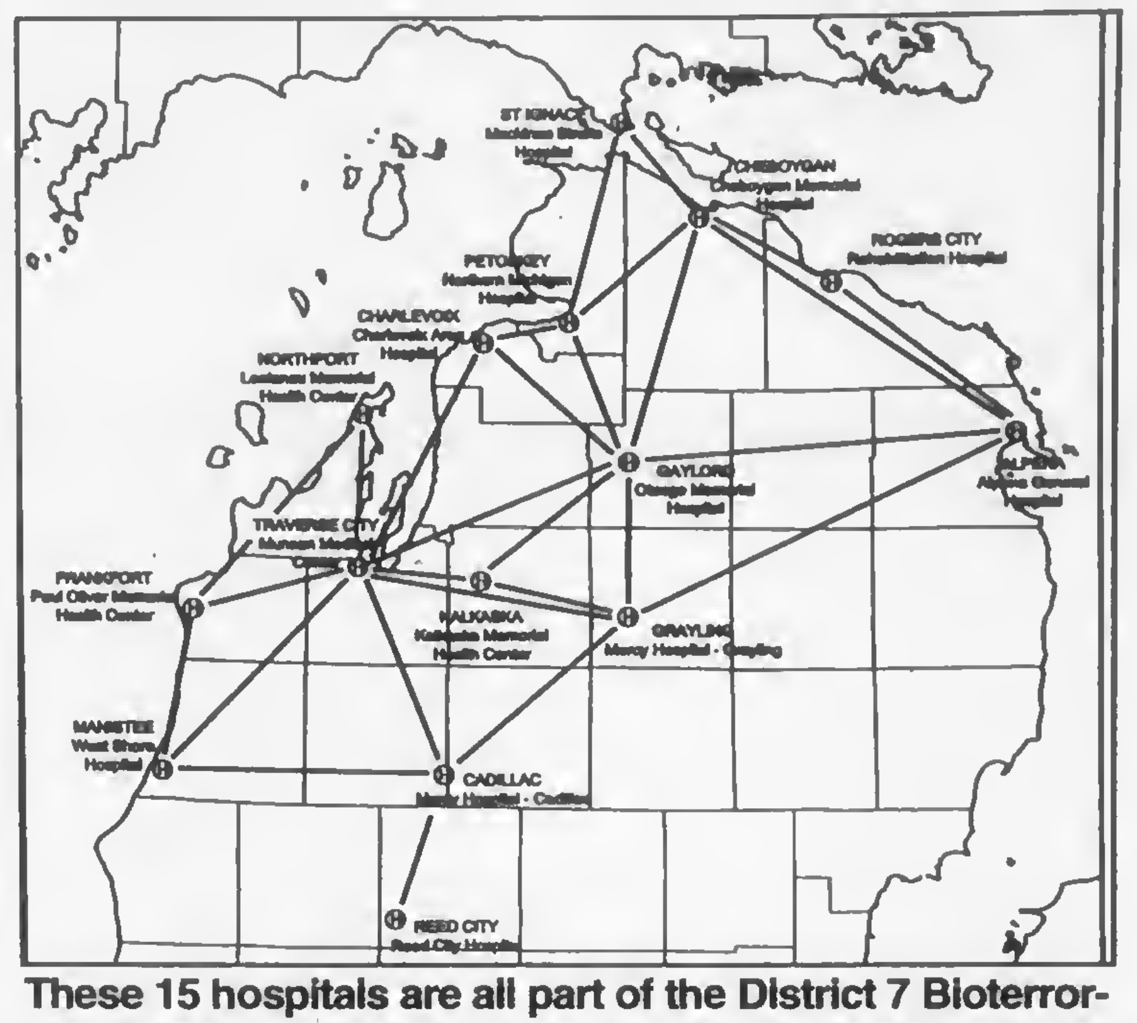
If someone who is expected to carry contaminants shows up at the hospital there is a plan to redirect them to a nearby clinic to be decontaminated before being admitted.

One long-term goal in this process is for Charlevoix Area Hospital to have the ability to monitor other emergency rooms in District 7 for an unusual influx in patients.

The hospitals are not yet on a shared system and Withers said such a system would likely cost billions of dollars. How this could happen has not been determined yet.

While bioterrorism may seem a relatively new threat for most, the hospital has been preparing for disasters like this with biannual drills for some time. The basic plan for a bioterrorist attack feeds off the hospital's disaster plan which has been in place for some time.

The difference is, this is the first time those drills and preparation have been integrated with over a dozen different hospitals.



These 15 hospitals are all part of the District 7 Bioterrorism Project. Hospitals ready in case of possible smallpox outbreaks

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

In the event that a small pox case were to arrive in Charlevoix, the local health community is ready.

The Centers for Disease Control have listed small pox in the top seven most likely chemical or biological agents to be used in a bioterrorist attack. This threat was not taken lightly by Charlevoix's health community, which is developing a response in conjunction with the state of Michigan's plan.

Carol Paxton, the health promotion director for the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, said the first of the state's "pre-event," three phase plan has been initiated locally.

Phase one is to vaccinate regional small pox planning teams and small pox response teams. The regional small pox planning team is made up of four public health nurses from Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency.

Each of the four nurses have voluntarily received the vaccination and they will vaccinate about 40 public health nurses that make up three response teams from three nearby hospitals.

All those who received it were carefully screened and so far have had no adverse reactions to the vaccination.

One team is from Traverse City's Munson Medical Center, one from Petoskey's Northern Michigan Hospital and the third is from Alpena General Hospital. Northern Michigan Hospital's response team nurses are expected to receive the vaccination this week.

In case of an outbreak, these health care workers respond, vaccinating others and taking care of any patients.

In the second phase, any health care worker and emergency response personnel, including law enforcement and emergency medical technicians, are offered the vaccine.

Paxton said plans to initiate this phase have changed often due to the liability of the vaccine and deaths stemming from vaccination.

In phase three, the general public is vaccinated. Paxton said at this time, there is no plan to immunize the public before a case of small pox is diagnosed in the world.

The threat of a small pox outbreak has initiated drills with health department workers so health care personnel will know how to vaccinate others.

"If there is a case, we have the time and resources to go to that area and vaccinate everyone," she said.

If need be, the health department will be there to set up mass immunizations.

DNR decides against turkey eradication

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

After an evaluation of the city of Charlevoix's wild turkey issue, a representative of the Department of Natural Resources found the problem is just as much the neighbors as it is the turkeys.

Brian Mastenbrook, a wildlife habitat specialist with the Gaylord post of the DNR, came to town in early March to evaluate the turkey issue after some city residents lodged complaints with city council claiming the birds are destructive and need to be removed.

Mastenbrook said he got a feel for what was going on after driving up and down roads in neighborhoods from Park Avenue to the south, following turkey tracks to favorite roosting areas and talking to people.

He found some people in the neighborhood enjoy turkey visits, while others don't want a thing to do with the large, feathered intruders.

He stopped at mayor Gabe Campbell's Newman Street home, where a tree in the front yard is a roosting favorite, and discussed with Campbell how to move the turkeys out.

Mastenbrook told Campbell to scare them away as they come up to roost and they usually won't come back to the same spot. Scare tactics Mastenbrook suggests for moving them out include: throwing snowballs, banging pots and pans and launching helium balloons into the tree.

Every night for two weeks when the turkeys came to roost, Campbell was out employing scare tactics that he said worked.

"I've been harassing them and we haven't had them in our neighborhood for two weeks. That's the good news. The bad news is they moved over to the (Charlevoix) township," Campbell said.

Campbell's approach to addressing the turkey issue is the same approach Mastenbrook advocates for the whole neighborhood if they don't want the turkeys coming around.

He said under the current conditions, the DNR will not respond with any netting approach.

"There's not much of an opportunity that I saw for us to move the birds or much of a need," he said. "People have to quit feeding them before anything will be effective."

If the feeding does stop, he said they'll likely move on.

Currently Mastenbrook said Charlevoix's turkey problem is not as bad as other cases he has seen where there are so many turkeys that no one is willing to tolerate them anymore. But, if residents continue feeding them, it could get to that level and action by the DNR may be necessary.

> "People have to quit feeding them before anything will be effective."

Health agency receives two awards

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency recently received two awards from the Michigan Department of Community Health for its children's immunization services and Women, Infant and Children (WIC) Nutrition Program.

The Michigan Childhood Immunization Registry of the state health department designated the local health department as a "WIC/Immunization Site of Excellence" in recognition of high immunization levels in children enrolled in its WIC Nutrition Program. Over 80 percent of these children age 19-35 months of age are up-to-date for immunizations.

Immunizing infants and children prevents vaccine-preventable diseases.

The other award recognized the health department for offering WIC services for 25 years.

"We're delighted to receive recognition from the State Health Department," said Par Fralick, director of Family Health Services, who oversees WIC and immunizations in the four county region the health department serves. "Our staff works very hard to assure that every child who comes to the health department is immunized properly."

Every time a public health nurse sees a child at a health department clinic, she reviews his or her immunization status. Needed immunizations can be administered that day, saving busy parents another trip to the clinic.

"Sometimes it is hard for parents to keep up with immunizations, especially when children are small and many 'shots' are recommended. We just like to give them one more reminder when we can," Fralick said.

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is one of the few health departments in the State that offers immunizations at every WIC visit.

WIC visits are a good time for immunization reminders. Qualifying families and pregnant women, breast-feeding moms, and/or children up to age five receive coupons regularly for healthy, nutritious foods such as baby formula, juice, iron-fortified cereal and cheese.

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is the local health department serving Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties. For additional information on immunizations, call your local health department or Fralick at (231) 347-6014.

Red Cross putting program on hold

In just a few days, the call for "Quality of Life" donations has been strongly supported.

In fact, the toiletries, sunscreen, sunglasses and other items for our troops has been donated at such a rate that the Department of Defense estimates that as of today there are enough "Quality of Life" items for the next four months.

The program is implemented through the American Red Cross as part of the organization's support to the military.

"Due to the overwhelming generosity of the American people, the Red Cross has put the program on hold, as directed by the Department of Defense. Until the current inventory is distributed, no new collection sites will be launched, and the current sites will be discontinued within a few days," said Nancy Porter, event coordinator for Petoskey Service Center.

"While the items have come in at a rapid rate, financial donations are still needed to cover shipping costs. A five-pound box will cost about $12 to ship to a military APO address," she added.

"Funds are needed to cover shipping, or these items will not go out timely."

To learn more about this program contact Nancy Porter at the American Red Cross at (231) 348-7666.

Libraries seeking 'born to read' baby

Boyne District, Crooked District, Jordan Valley District Libraries and the Charlevoix and Petoskey Public Libraries, in cooperation with Northern Michigan Hospital and Charlevoix Area Hospital will be on the "lookout" for the first babies born after 12:00 a.m., Sunday, April 6.

This is the first "official" day of National Library Week. These children will be declared the 2003 "Born-to-Read Baby" for their respective hospital.

The family of each baby will receive a bag of reading related items and the child and his/her family will be announced as soon as it is practical for the family to do so.

The Charlevoix Public Library will be offering a gift to those people who bring in a picture of their child reading. National Library Week is April 6 through April 12.

Contact your local library for further information. The Charlevoix Public Library can be contacted at 547-2651.

Insurance company suggests helmet use

After a long, hard winter, springtime brings special joy to lovers of bicycling and other environmentally friendly transportation like scooters and skateboards.

For those who are passionate about these activities, AAA Michigan advises that it always pays to temper excitement with caution. That means enthusiasts should wear a helmet for protection, no matter what the sport.

"Bicycle helmets have become an accepted fact of life for many children and adults who ride bikes, but too many forget to wear a helmet when riding scooters, skateboards and inline skates," Richard J. Miller, AAA Michigan Community Safety Services manager, said. "Sixty percent of injuries could be avoided by wearing the proper safety equipment."

According to the United States Consumer Product Safety Commission, emergency room injuries from the newest trend of transportation, the lightweight scooter, have increase 700 percent since the year 2000.

Bicycle helmets can be used for riding scooters and in-line skating. However, a bicycle helmet may not be the correct fit for skateboarding.

According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, skateboarders who generally do more aggressive skating (tricks and freestyle) should look for helmets made specifically for their sport. Generally, these helmets have stricter safety requirements, such as fully covering the back of the head. Other recommended equipment for scooters, inline skating and skateboarding includes wrist guards, elbow and knee pads.

"Making sure you buy the right helmet and that it fits properly is just as important as wearing one, Miller said.

The following are a few tips AAA recommends to help purchase the right helmet.

- Place the helmet evenly on the head, with only one or two finger widths above the eyebrows.
- Make sure the helmet doesn't tilt forward or back, but rests straight on the head.
- Adjust foam fittings inside if they are adjustable, making sure the helmet is snug.
- Tighten the chin strap as snug as possible, adjusting the side straps that connect the front and back to just below the ears.
- The helmet should not be able to shake loose or move from side to side.
- Never purchase a helmet for a child to grow into; it must fit properly at the time the child is wearing it.
- Make sure to purchase a helmet that has been approved by the United States Consumer Product Safety Commission or one or more of the voluntary bicycle standards; look for a label on the helmet to see if it meets the standards.
- Never wear a helmet that has been involved in a significant crash. Always replace it with a new helmet, even if you do not see physical damage.

A bicycle helmet can reduce serious head injury by up to 85 percent. But AAA encourages people of all ages to wear a helmet that is appropriate for their sport.

"It is important to remember that helmets can save lives — and not just when bicycling," Miller said.

Center gives awards to area children for artistic talents

The Crooked Tree Arts Center has announced the winners in the 2003 Youth Art Exhibit.

The students were honored at an awards ceremony on Sunday, March 23. Thirty four schools from Charlevoix and Emmet counties participated in this year's show with over 600 entries received.

The winners from the Young Writers Exposition were also announced and published in the Petoskey News-Review on March 21.

Dale Hull, executive director of the Crooked Tree Arts Center presented the M. Louise Herlocher Award to Josh Cummings a student at Concord Academy-Petoskey; the Crooked Tree Arts Center-Staff Award to Liz Meeks, Pellston High School and the Care House Purchase Award to Andrew Fila, Concord Elementary-Petoskey.

Honorable Mentions were presented to Ani Ebbers, Pellston High School; Olivia Massey, Sheridan Elementary and Ashley Moyer, Petoskey High School.

Special Distinction awards were presented to Krystal Birgy, East Jordan High School;Cole Chickering, Petoskey High School; Justin Dowty, Boyne City Elementary School; Ariella Duran, Heaven Home Spun School; Caleb Olstrom, Boyne Falls Schools; and Jennie Powers, Soaring High Christian Home School.

The arts center's temporary location is 445 E. Mitchell Street in downtown Petoskey. For more information, please call 347-4337 or visit www.crookedtree.org.

Trout Unlimited to have spring dinner

Trout season is just around the corner!

Join the men and women of the Miller Van Winkle Chapter of Trout Unlimited for a spring social dinner at City Park Grill in Petoskey on Thursday, April 17.

In addition to food and great silent auction items, local writer and North Central Michigan College professor James McCullough and Harbor Springs photographer Ed Wargin will be presenting their upcoming book titled "Voelker's Pond: A Robert Traver Legacy."

The book explores the enchanted world of John Voelker, who wrote under the pen name of Robert Traver.

Voelker's day job was as a small town U.P. lawyer who was appointed to the Michigan Supreme Court Justice. When he wasn't busy lawyering, he wrote novels — "Trout Madness," Trout Magic," and "Anatomy of a Murder," are among his accomplishments. "Anatomy of a Murder" topped the charts and became an Academy-award winning film.

But power and fame did not appeal to Voelker, who loved the pursuit of the reclusive brook trout because, in his own words, "Trout cannot be bought or bribed or impressed by power, but respond only to quietude and humility and endless patience."

He resigned from the Supreme Court to focus his time on writing and fishing.

McCullough and Wargin will share essays and photographs of Voelker's haunts.

Prior to this featured presentation, participants in the T.U. Spring Social Dinner will have the opportunity to bid on guided trips by two northern Michigan fishing guides — John Brugman and Scott Hall — two flyrods and two wildlife prints.

Dinner entree options include prime rib, mesquite grilled chicken or mesquite grilled salmon. After dinner, participants will learn about volunteer opportunities to restore the health of northern Michigan trout streams.

The cost of the Spring Social Dinner is $30 per person. All proceeds from the event will go toward river restoration and fish habitat improvement.

If you are interested in attending this event, please call Michael Ochs, Chapter President at (231) 881-5916. Please register by April 11.

IS YOUR OFFICE UGLY?

Michigan Officeways, Inc. is presenting "The Ugly Office Contest." If you would like to enter, please take a picture of your ugly office. Write your business name, phone number and contact person on the back. Mail it, bring it in, or give it to one of your sales representatives. All entries must be postmarked by May 1, 2003. Michigan Officeways, Inc. will take the finalists to lunch to announce the winner. Winner receives up to $6,000 value. The "Ugly Office" will be judged by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

CHARLEVOIX COUNTRY CLUB RENOVATION PROJECT

The Charlevoix Country Club is doing a lot of planning on ways to improve the amenities for their membership. Over the next three months, the clubhouse will be undergoing a face-lift, which includes new carpeting, wallpaper, and painting throughout. A new lounge or café is being built so the members will never be without a place to have lunch or dinner, even if there is a wedding or an outside event. A new pro shop is being built that will be better situated to oversee the golf operation. They will even have a Fitness Center. A new patio is being added to enhance outside dining. These improvements will provide added benefit and enjoyment to the total Club experience.

CHARLEVOIX MARINERS BOAT AUCTION ACCEPTING DONATION

The Lake Charlevoix Mariners Sailing School Program is currently accepting tax deductible donations of used boats and equipment to be auctioned in their Annual August 9 Auction. This is the major fund raising event for the non-profit, nine week youth, adult and racing program held in Boyne City and Charlevoix. If you are unable or uninterested in selling your used boat you can donate to this tax deductible program dedicated to promoting the sport of sailing in our community. In 2002 they auctioned 42 boats from 8' - 27' including power, sail, rowing, fiberglass, wood and inflatable as well as various types of marine equipment. The program has a 501C tax deductible status. The funds from the auction are used to maintain and replace boats and equipment. This keeps the sailing program available to children 8-18 through the 4-H Youth Sailing Program. If you are interested in donating a boat or equipment, you may contact Tom Orlow, program director 231-675-5644 or Jeff Glenny at Irish Boat Shop 231-347-9967. The auction is Saturday, August 9, at 10 a.m. at the Irish Boat Shop Ferry Avenue dock parking lot.

CONGRATULATIONS TO OUR NEW FIRE CHIEF, PAUL IVAN!

You are very well liked and admired by everyone in this community and we sincerely congratulate you on your new position and commend you for the skills you have brought to our Fire Department.

Thank you, and farewell to Doug Carver. Doug, thank you for your years of dedicated service to our community as fire chief and best wishes for a wonderful retirement.

YOU ARE INVITED:

The Chamber invites the community to attend a meeting on Wednesday, May 7 from 5:30 p.m. to approximately 6:45 p.m. at the Charlevoix High School on Marion Center Road to hear our consultant Sandi Frost Parrish, of Monaghan Associates, tell you about our strategic plan and discuss our progress to date. Our strategic plan was developed with the input of many community leaders with a process that began in 2002. This plan is a "roadmap" to guide the work of your Chamber, and our community for years to come.

CHARLEVOIX SHOWS ITS COLORS!

Thank you to Karen Guidance, Melinda Burns and Girl Scout Troop #265 for showing their patriotism by tying yellow ribbons on Charlevoix's downtown trees with ribbon donated by Family Affair Yarn and Crafts and to the City of Charlevoix for displaying the Flag of the United States of America along Bridge Street. In addition, a big thank you to Charlevoix Floral for tying the beautiful ribbons in front of the Chamber of Commerce building. Already we have received the following e-mail thank you note, "as residents of Charlevoix, my wife and I are VERY happy to see the city's support of our country, our freedom and security, both in harm's way in Iraq and here on our own soil. The addition of the American Flags all along Bridge Street are a wonderful show of that support for all who drive though and makes us proud to be part of this community. Thank you...and God Bless the USA." Mike and Marcia, thank you for your comments.

ADOPT A SOLDIER:

Family Affair Yarn and Crafts has set up an "Adopt a Soldier" program where you can become a pen pal, send a care package, send a local newspaper, pray for them, etc. If you are interested in either submitting a name of a soldier that you would like to be adopted - or to adopt a soldier please call Family Affair Yarn and Crafts at 547-7481. This is a very admirable effort on the part of Sally Wynkoop and Vicki McWatter.

CHARLEVOIX CHAMBER HOSTS ANNUAL EASTER EGG HUNT:

The Easter Bunny is coming to Charlevoix! The 12th Annual Easter Egg Hunt is on Saturday, April 19, 2003 at 1:30 in downtown East Park. Before the Egg Hunt, Stafford's Weathervane Restaurant is hosting the annual Easter Bunny Luncheon from 11:30 to 1:30 p.m. Children will have an opportunity to have their picture taken with the Easter Bunny compliments of Charlevoix Camera, and then the whole family can stay for a special lunch with the Easter Bunny, call Stafford's Weathervane 547-4311 to make reservations.

Following the luncheon and photographs, the Easter Bunny will be downtown for the Easter Egg Hunt, which begins promptly at 2:00 p.m. in East Park. Children's age categories are...3 years and under, 4-6 years, and 7-10 years. They will search for 5,000 eggs with special prizes inside. Don't forget to bring an Easter basket to collect all of those eggs!

The Retail Committee of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce (547-2101) sponsors the Easter Egg Hunt.

Recreational vehicle parking under debate

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Charlevoix's city council is seeking input from residents about what they think of parking recreational vehicles like trailers and boats on city streets.

Third ward council representative Shirley Gibson wants to see changes to the city zoning ordinance prohibiting long-term parking of recreational vehicles on city streets.

"I think we have a problem with our zoning ordinance that has to do with parking of recreational vehicles. The ordinance needs to be looked at and needs to clearly define what a motor vehicle is and what a recreational vehicle is," she said.

At the April 7 council meeting, Gibson said her main beef is with city residents using city streets as docks for their boats and trailers.

Council will address the street parking issue first by hosting a public input meeting scheduled to take place at 7 p.m., April 21 at city hall.

Currently, there exists a regulation that allows vehicles to park on city streets for 48 hours. But city police chief Dennis Halverson said this regulation is not practical from an enforcement standpoint.

He suggested that if recreational vehicles are not wanted on city streets that council change the regulation to prohibit parking of those vehicles at certain times of day.

"That's easy to enforce," he said.

While council unanimously voted to look into the issue, not everyone sees there is a problem.

First ward councilman Bill Haggard and second ward councilman Bill Bellows questioned whether there really is a problem.

"There may be a minor problem, but I don't know if it's enough to change the ordinance," Bellows said.

First ward councilman Norm Carlson said docks are expensive and this may not be a problem that can be fixed without limiting the recreation opportunities of city residents.

"You've got to throw them (boat owners) a bone and let them put it somewhere," he said.

But Gibson stuck to her guns and said the boats belong in the water. And two residents spoke in support of her.

City resident Patty Sitzema told council, "If you really look around you'll see there is a problem."

City resident Linda Mason agreed. She said, "I think it's about beauty. It's not attractive to have yards and streets cluttered with trailers and boats. I think there needs to be a zoning ordinance and it needs to be enforced."

Gibson hopes the upcoming public input meeting will produce enough support of her claim against parking recreational vehicles in the city street right-of-way to prompt a change to the ordinance.

"If there are multiple interpretations of the ordinance, this should alert the city that this is a problem. And city staff should work on a solution — that is what the taxpayers pay them to do," she said.

Council also directed the city planning commission to look into how the ordinance addresses parking of recreational vehicles on private property and directed city staff to look into jig break laws for big trucks due to noise complaints.

Gruler's opens Charlevoix branch

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix area farmers, and others who just want to work with the land, have a new choice in locations to get their supplies with the now open Gruler's Farm Supply, Inc. on US-31 south of town.

Gruler's is a family business that was started around 1850 in New York after the family arrived from Germany. From there, the Gruler's took their farm supply and hardware business to Fowler and then to Petoskey, where it has been since.

Now, Charlevoix has its own Gruler's and the honor of being the family's first branch of their Petoskey store.

"There was a need for a store like this since Quality (Farm and Fleet) left," said Albert Gruler, Jr., owner and manager of the Charlevoix store.

He added, the Charlevoix store is the only other Gruler's besides Petoskey's at the moment.

The Charlevoix store opened for business on April 3. It will have a grand opening in June.

But, this new store makes Albert the sixth generation of Grulers to be in the farm supply and hardware business. He expects his son, Matthew, to continue the family tradition, making him the seventh generation.

Albert said he stayed in the family business because he always liked it.

"I like doing retail. I like working with the public and I always liked Charlevoix," he said. Albert has been a resident of Petoskey since birth.

Gruler's Farm Supply carries retail feed, pet supplies, salt, fertilizer and horse supplies, as well as supplies for your average lawn and garden. In addition to these items, the employees of Gruler's are knowledgeable in all forms of farming, gardening and lawn care.

While giving a farmer advice on getting a higher crop yield or keeping your horse healthy, the people of Gruler's can also tell you how to make your yard greener.

Gruler's is open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday through Saturday. It's phone number is (231) 237-0893.

Sinking fund and Headlee on ballot

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Aside from school board candidates, a millage request with two components will also likely appear on the June 9 Charlevoix Public Schools election ballot.

At its meeting April 14 the Charlevoix School Board will discuss a possible ballot request that will ask voters to renew its sinking fund millage and rollback the Headlee Amendment for non-homestead properties.

"This is an opportunity for the community to support our schools. It's a chance for voters to say this is where we can have local control — programs and class size are important to us and we want to keep that," school board president Allen Telgenhof said.

The one mill sinking fund millage has been in existence for six years and is up for renewal this year. The board hopes voters will reinstate it at just under one full mill.

"Things need to be done and there is no room in the general fund to pay for them," Telgenhof said.

Larry Levengood, the board secretary, said the way the district has used the sinking fund money in the past is evidence for voters of all the benefits the millage provides.

"I think we've proven that's an effective way to do things," he said.

In the past, the money has been used to replace the roof on the elementary school and arches will be replaced in the middle school gym this summer using sinking fund dollars.

Some of the district's current needs that could be paid for using future revenues from a sinking fund millage renewal include: updates to central office and the bus garage, replacement of the elementary school carpeting and painting at the school, work on the gym floor at the middle school and construction of bleachers and a concession stand at the new high school.

None of the aforementioned projects were part of the bond issue voters passed in 2000 to build the new high school and update other district facilities.

The ballot will also likely include the possibility of a Headlee Amendment override. The amendment rolled back a fraction of a mill from the 30 mills levied on non-homestead properties in the district, which includes second homes and businesses.

At the March 10 school board meeting, Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools Dr. John Sturock explained, "If voters don't override it, in this time when dollars are critical, we'll lose $88,000, which could equate to a teacher."

Possible ballot wording will be discussed at the board's April 14 meeting.

DEQ

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Michigan Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ) has recently received information regarding the illegal disposal of construction and demolition wastes at privately owned property located at the southwest corner of Sheridan and Eppler Roads in Section 12 of Resort Township, Emmet County.

This is to notify any contractors, construction companies, or solid waste transporters that disposing of waste at this location, or any other location that is not a Type 2 landfill regulated by the State of Michigan is a violation of Part 115, Solid Waste Management, of the Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Act, 1994 PA 451, as amended.

Violators of Part 115 are subject to fines in excess of $1,000 per day per violation.

Anyone with information regarding the disposal of wastes at this location are encouraged to contact the DEQ at the numbers below to assist us in conducting an accurate and thorough investigation.

SPORTS

Local youth part of winning team

Two freshmen from Charlevoix High School are a part of the Boyne Area Bantam Hockey Team who won their division championship at the year-end invitational tournament in Sault Ste. Marie on March 15 and 16.

Evan Keller and Russell Williams are the captain and alternate captain of their team. The 15 year-olds have been playing together since they were 5.

"It's just fun," they say.

Boyne took four straight games en route to the trophy, beating Mackinaw City 1-0, Gladwin S&S 2-1, Char-Em Ultimate Home 1-0, and Gladwin McNamara 8-3. Aggressive, total team defense, tenacious offense and strong goaltending proved to be the winning combination for Boyne.

Williams and Keller combined contributed six goals and four assists over the weekend.

The bantam team is comprised of 14 boys, 14 and 15 years old, from the Boyne City, Boyne Falls, East Jordan and Charlevoix communities. They played a total of 42 games over the season and recorded 29 wins, 9 losses and 4 ties.

Two other Boyne teams captured championships at the tournament: the Squirts (9 and 10 years old) and the Midgets (15-18).

Boyne Area Hockey is an outdoor rink based team. Each team practices twice weekly, skating at home in sunshine and snow.

"These wins help solidify the quality of Boyne Hockey's organization," Boyne Hockey president Todd Shumaker said. "We have the best hockey family around. When you can skate against quality indoor programs and come out on top, it says something for the perseverance and determination of our kids."

employee. He raised two children who attended Charlevoix Public Schools and his wife, Martha, has been a speech therapist with the Char-Em Intermediate School District for 18 years.

Bill Trubilowicz

Professionally, Trubilowicz has worked for Consumers Energy at Big Rock Point for 26 years.

He was the assistant coach of both the middle and high school ski teams for five years and taught a manufacturing technology class in 2000. He also chaperoned various class trips including outings to Beaver Island, Pittsburgh, Penn. and Washington D.C.

He took on an active role with the new high school building project in 1999 as co-chair of the Facilities Steering Committee and co-chair of the Bond Election Campaign Committee. Then, in 2000 he showed his support of the school board as co-chair of the School Board Anti-Recall Campaign Committee.

Dennis Kusina

He faced Charlevoix residents Elizabeth Rich, Anna Young and Kenneth Staley when the board appointed him in November. None of the three opted to run against him in this election or to run for the open two-year seat he leaves behind.

Charlevoix resident Dennis Kusina, 54, is running against fellow resident Diane Kilkenny, 49, for the open two-year trustee's position.

Kusina ran for the board 15 years ago and said he is ready to make another go of it.

He said he heard no one was running for the open slot and felt compelled to step forward.

Diane Kilkenny

"The school board has done a great job over the past three to four years with the district's curriculum and getting through problems with the new building. And I think it needs to be continued," he said.

Kusina brings with him extensive board experience as chairman of the city of Charlevoix's planning commission and treasurer of the Camp Daggett executive board.

Kusina has lived in Charlevoix since 1966, owns Kusina Farm Bureau Insurance, is married to Peggy, a teacher of 32 years at Petoskey Middle School, has a son, Kevin, who is a freshman at Charlevoix High School and a daughter, Kelly, who will graduate from Albion College in May.

"I have a good working knowledge of what both parents and teachers face in the system," he said.

Kilkenny said one of her greatest strengths she would bring to the board is her knowledge of the school district from a parent's perspective. She has raised three children in Charlevoix Public Schools, her youngest, Matt, will graduate this spring.

"I think maybe I can offer a fresh perspective. There are no moms with kids currently or recently in school on the board," she said. "I'm not a particularly politically active person, but from the little things to the big things, we need to work for the kids."

Kilkenny is the admissions coordinator for adult home health services through the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency and has lived in Charlevoix with her husband, Mike, and their children for almost seven years.

The June election will not decide who will replace Telgenhof as president; the new board president will be selected by the board at its organizational meeting this summer.

Tax filing deadline is April 15

TAXES

American Express, Discover Card, MasterCard or Visa account.

According to the IRS, you may use a credit card to pay the balance due on your 2002 income tax return, to make a payment related to an automatic filing extension request, to make estimated payments for 2003 or to make an installment payment on taxes owed for 1999 or a later year.

If you cannot pay the full tax due, you may qualify for an installment payment plan. According to the IRS, it offers an approval process if the amount due is not more than $25,000 and the taxpayer will pay it within a five year period.

There is a $43 fee for this. The taxpayer will also pay interest — currently figured at 5 percent per year, compounded daily — plus a late payment penalty. This penalty, usually figured at .5 percent of the balance due per month, drops to .25 percent when the IRS approves the agreement for an individual taxpayer who filed the return on time and did not receive a levy notice.

According to the IRS, it has received more than 73 million returns and processed more than 60 million refunds, totaling more than $121 billion.

For more information, see the IRS Web site at www.irs.gov or call the IRS Tax Help Line at (800) 829-1040 from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. on weekdays and 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturdays through April 12 and Sundays through April 13.

long-term improvement will outweigh the short-term disruption," he said.

Lasater said that normally with major projects like this, the state will award a grant to police agencies that patrol the area to slow down traffic for workers.

"We have a lot of responsibilities in that nine mile stretch and it may require assigning a deputy to that area during the day to keep traffic flowing and for the safety of the workers," he said.

This project has been part of the state's five year road and bridge plan for some time. MDOT workers regularly drive state roads and log their condition. Project schedules are based on those observations.

"We don't just throw a dart and say this is where we'll do a project. It's an extensive process," Felt said.

The total project cost for the Charlevoix improvement is over $3 million.

MDOT is planning to host a public meeting from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., April 15 at the Charlevoix Township Hall to field questions about the project.

At the meeting an informational flyer will be distributed. The township hall is located at 12491 Waller Road in Charlevoix.

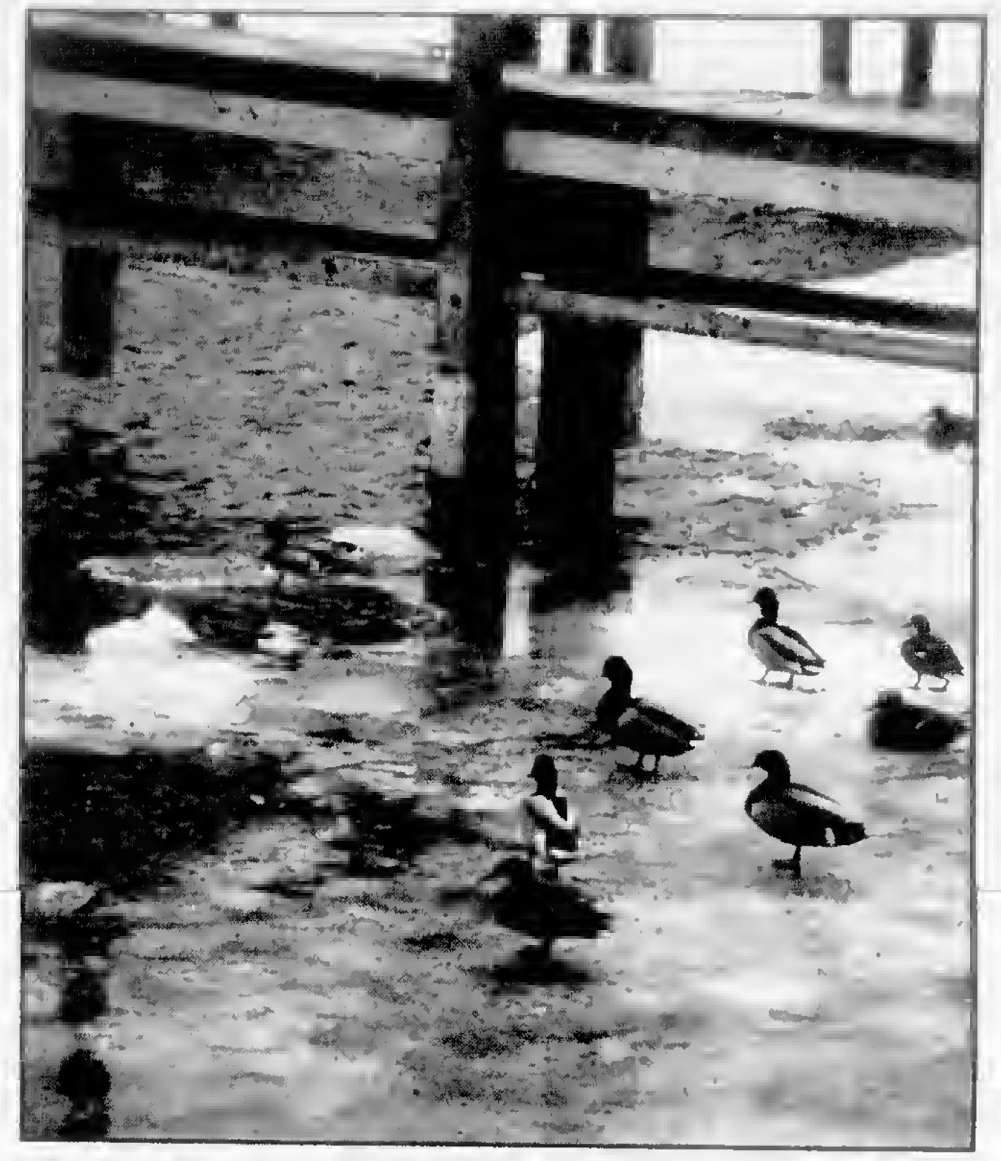
"We'll talk to people one on one about their concerns," Felt said.

He anticipates some questions about access to homes and businesses along the route.

"We will do everything we can to make sure access to businesses and residences are maintained at all times," he said.

During the construction period, those with concerns about wait time or the way the project is being done are asked to call the MDOT Traverse City Transportation Service toll free at (888) 457-6368.

This stretch of US-31, from Lewis Street, will be under construction soon. (Photo by Jeremy McBain)



Isn't it spring?

Ice flows in Round Lake made nice little resting spots for the local ducks last week. The ducks, just like the residents of Charlevoix, were tricked into spring fever by warm weather in late March, until Mother Nature brought back a burst of winter last week. (Photo by Jeremy McBain)

CHARLEVOIX BRIEFS

Area events

Easter services

Christ Episcopal Church of Charlevoix, at 200 State Street, Charlevoix, will celebrate the Liturgy of the Palms at 10 a.m. on Sunday, April 13. Weather permitting; we will proceed from the undercroft up the hack stairs, along the street, and in the front door. Sunday school at 10 a.m. and coffee hour follows the service. Holy Communion service is at 12:15 p.m. each Wednesday. A community men's breakfast at 7:30 a.m. each Saturday in the undercroft. At 7:30 p.m. each Tuesday a Caring Ministry Bible Study is given in the church. Visitors are welcome at all services. Please call 547-6322 for more information.

Easter services

Safe Harhor Baptist Church of Charlevoix will be hosting it's annual Children's Easter Party on at noon, Saturday, April 19 , rain or shine. All area children are invited to come out and share in a time of hunting for those eggs full of surprises. Lunch will be served and then on to the hunt. Children will be divided according to age groups.

At approximately 6:30 a.m. On Sunday, April 20 Resurrection Sunday, there will be a Sunrise service at Ferry Beach. We will also have a special service at 11 a.m. at the church celebrating our Lord's Resurrection. Safe Harbor Baptist Church is located south of Charlevoix near the intersection of Old U.S. 31 South and U.S. 31 South. For more information, please call 547-6283.

Easter services

The First Congregational United Church of Christ in Charlevoix, 101 State Street, one block west of the bridge on Park Avenue will have its Easter Services.

Easter Sunrise Service will be at 6:30 a.m. at Depot Beach. Bring a chair, a blanket and a friend.

An Easter Celebration Breakfast will be from 8:30 to 10 a.m. at the church. Dave Hayden of the New World Cafe will prepare eggs, rolls, fruit and coffee. The cost per person is $5. To make a reservation, please call (231) 547-9122 by Monday, April 14.

An Easter Egg Hunt for the children is from 10 to 10:30 a.m.

A traditional Easter Service will take place at 11 a.m. in the sanctuary. Choirs, bells and lilies will fill the air with joyful excitement.

Preschool registration

Kid's Corner Preschool will have registration for the 2003-2004 school year on Thursday, April 17. General enrollment will begin at 6 p.m. in the lower level of the First Congregation Church. There will be a non-refundahle $100 registration fee, however $75 is applied toward your last tuition payment. Come see and experience our school for yourself! An questions, please call 237-KIDS, or Nikki Louiselle at 547-5806.

Easter egg hunt

The Twelfth Annual Easter Bunny Lunch and Easter Egg Hunt is Saturday, April 19. Have your picture taken with the Easter Bunny between 11:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. at Stafford's Weathervane Restaurant. A special luncheon with the Easter Bunny is offered at the same time and reservations are requested please. Call 547-4311.

The Easter Egg Hunt follows at 2 p.m. downtown Charlevoix in East Park. Children will be divided into three different age categories: 3 years and under, 4 to 6 years, and 7 to 10 years before the hunt begins. Then they will search for 5,000 Easter Eggs filled with special prizes. Don't forget to hring an Easter basket to collect all of those eggs. Courier correspondents of the past and their tales

Marilyn Boss

'Days gone by'

Years ago, Charlevoixians used to keep up on the news of their neighbors through the Charlevoix Courier, in personal accounts of the goings on of those living in Norwood, Ironton, Phelps, Clark, Barnard, Hayes-Bay Shore, Ellsworth, Beaver Island, Atwood and Charlevoix.

Each area had a volunteer correspondent, and she would be contaeted to write up the news of the week. I am going to bring up some of these remembranees in this article and my next one.

The Charlevoix Courier correspondent in Norwood was Mrs. Milton Richardson. Some of the tidbits in 1963, as reported in the Courier, were: Miss Nancy Raymer of Grand Rapids and friends Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Hall of Holland, spent the weekend with Nancy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Raymer. Mrs. Hank Klooster called on Mr. and Mrs. John Boss of Atwood Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Lord and son and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Alward called on Ilsa Alward at the Louis Jablinsky home in Loeb community. Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Holecheck and family of Atwood were Saturday evening callers on his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Holecheck. Congratulations to Larry McBride on setting a new class C pole vault record in the annual track and field meet held recently at Gaylord. The community is proud of you! Mr. and Mrs. George Light Sr. were Sunday dinner guests at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Emmons and family of Charlevoix, where Mr. Light celebrated his birthday. Mrs. David Stoel was honored at a cradle shower sponsored by the Women's Society of Christian Service, given at Norwood friendship hall.

In 1963, the Ironton correspondent was Mrs. Harry Gingery, and her news was as follows: Mrs. Sam Alexander had a valentine party for her Sunday school class from the Ironton Congregational church. Sharon Neilsen, Alan Kroll, Paul Kroll, Lynn Hall, Becky Williams, Debbie Williams and Diane Alexander had dinner and later in the evening made valentines. Guy Smith, Jerry Parsel, Mickey Walker, Enos Bacon, Larry Pop, Edward Drost and Don Kanoff, who are the members of the Ironton Cub Scouts Den Three, attended the Blue and Gold dinner at the Charlevoix High School Monday evening.

In 1967, Mrs. Ross Alexander was the correspondent, and her news was as follows: Mr. and Mrs. William Cooper are building a new home in the community across from the Tom Neilsons. L. McClanathan is driving a well for them. Mr. and Mrs. Albert Edwards were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Meyers last Wednesday evening. Mrs. Helen O'Neil, a former resident and a Charlevoix teacher, is vacationing in Jamaica.

The Marion-Phelps news was sent in by Mrs. Jack Mort: MM2 Gary Curtis is home for a week's leave to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Russell (Pat) Curtis. He will return Thursday to his present base in Markab, Calif. Mr. and Mrs: Orval McGinnis and family of Flint were at their home here over the weekend. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hilton and family were Sunday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Don Bennett of Ironton. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Potter and family were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Garrett Potter. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Mort and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Drost were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Powell in Charlevoix, Saturday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Art Falting Jr. were Saturday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Don Falting. Mrs. Ben Drost and son, Eddie, visited her mother, in Petoskey for three days last week.

In the Clark Community, Mrs. William Parsons was the correspondent. Some of the news items were: Mr. and Mrs. Richard Jolliffe, Wm. Jolliffe Jr., of Kalamazoo and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jollife, James Jolliffe and Robert Jolliffe of Grand Rapids were here over the weekend to attend the funeral of Mrs. Ervin Lord, who died last Thursday morning at the Charlevoix hospital. Mrs. Jerry Paul and children and Mrs. Ted Potter and children of Charlevoix visited Mrs. Ivan Parsons Friday evening. Mrs. Clarence Way returned home Tuesday after a three week vacation in Detroit visiting relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Parsons and children were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Zitka at Ironton.

The Barnard news was written by Mrs. Jasper Warner. At that time, Mr. and Mrs. James Schrandt (Mary Roberts) of Lansing and Jr. and Mrs. Jack Roberts. Mr. and Mrs. Guy Davis and daughter, Karen of Warren are spending two weeks visiting relatives and friends here. Mrs. Tom Wieland left on Sunday to join a group of Farm Bureau youth from Lansing to attend the National Youth eonvention in Kansas. Mr. and Mrs. Nick DeYoung of Central Lake visited last Wednesday with there son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Boss and family. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stoel of Atwood were Sunday visitors of Mrs. Arthur Stoel and daughter, Shirley. Several families form this community attend 4H Achievement Day in East Jordan, Friday. Club members came home with fourteen blue ribbons and one red one. Beth Ann Boss was awarded the dress revue pin. Neighbors and friends express sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. Harold Holm and family in the loss of the former's mother, Mrs. Walter Moore, who died Feb. 15. Sixteen young 4H members attended the Winter Recreation weekend at Wilderness State Park.

In those days, people were very connected with the coming and going of their friends and neighbors. It was a special time, and brings back many memories. The chance to visit friends and family was the primary desire of many.

Fire burns 80-100 acres

Several fire departments join city in fighting blaze

Charlevoix fire crews were busy yesterday afternoon battling a large fire on Ferry Road, between Black and Marion Center roads.

The fire started as a grass fire, around 4 p.m. hut quickly grew into a large brush/woods fire as heavy winds pushed it north into a stand of pines and dry ground cover. In the end, about 80 to 100 acres were burned, according to a Michigan Department of Natural Resources spotter plane.

"It was one of the biggest grass fires I have responded to," said Charlevoix Fire Chief Paul Ivan. "But, I wasn't surprised by how quickly it spread due to wind."

Fire crews were on scene until around 9 p.m. mopping up spot and stump fires.

Besides the speed of the fire, firefighters also battled to save several houses that were being threatened. While flames came

Board wants DDA to buy school

The future of the former Charlevoix Middle School is starting to become clear.

The Charlevoix Public Library Building Committee met April 8 and voted to recommend that the library's new facility he built within the old school located off Grant Street in the city of Charlevoix.

The library board of trustees did not vote to adopt this recommendation because its members are waiting on information being compiled by library architects Engberg Anderson Design Partnership. The architects are currently producing sketches and cost information about the possibility of the library using the whole facility.

That information is expected to be ready for review this week.

At the March 24 Downtown Development Authority (DDA) meeting Mary Ann Chew, a library board trustee, said one of the board's main goals is to keep the library in downtown Charlevoix and that the only open site large enough to accommodate the new facility and its future growth needs is the middle school property.

"It's critical for us to tack down that property before it evaporates, if we want the library to stay downtown — and that's important to us as a library board," she said.

But library director Valerie Meyerson said while this is definitely the direction the library is looking to move in, one big question remains — financing. The property which includes 13 lots has been appraised at over $800,000.

Meyerson said the library has no cash available to buy the property, but does have its current Clinton Street building which is valued around $600,000, to barter with.

The board voted to request that Charlevoix's Downtown

Summer resort tops taxpayer list once again

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Once again, a summer resort community has topped the list of taxpayers in the city of Charlevoix.

For several years the Belvedere Club and the Chicago Club summer resort communities have been listed as some of the top 10 taxpayers in the city of Charlevoix, alongside residents with large homes and large companies. And again, as is the case for several years, the Belvedere Club tops that list, with the Chicago Club coming in third.

"It's just the way they structured the clubs. It is really a lot of individual taxpayers, but because they don't own the land under their homes they are grouped together," Rick Brandi, city treasurer, said.

The top ten taxpayers in Charlevoix for 2002, and their taxable value, are:

1) Belvedere Club, a summer resort community made up of many individual homes, with a taxable value of $6,822,529.

2) Harbor Industries, a manufacturing plant, with a taxable value of $3,772,300.

3) Chicago Summer Resort, a summer resort community made up of many individual homes, with a taxable value of $3,100,591.

4) Leo F. and Maureen B. Quinn, owners of Captains Corners, a retail complex, with a taxable value of $2,165,000.

5) John Winn, owner of a private residential property, with a taxable value of $1,978,380.

6) LexaLite International Corporation, a manufacturing plant, with a taxable value of $1,713,969.

7) David J. Guanci, owner of a private residential property, with a taxable value of $1,377,567.

8) CPI Products, LLC, a manufacturing plant, with a taxable value of $1,320,100.

9) Bruce H. and Susan Lynne Yuille, owners of a private residential property, with a taxable value of $920,028.

10) Joseph J. and Betty J. Gadaleto, owners of a private residential property, with a taxable value of $888,422.

These taxpayers make up a total taxable value of $24,058,886 for the city of Charlevoix. The city has a total taxable value of $178,353,555 for the year 2002.

The top 10 taxpayers list is calculated every year to show bonding agents what kind of diversity Charlevoix has in its tax base. Because Charlevoix has a nice mix of residential and commercial properties in its top ten, the city is considered diverse.

The problem with a non-diverse community — one that has only one entity, such as a large manufacturing plant, as its major taxpayer — is, if that major taxpayer leaves, it could leave the city in financial trouble.

The top 10 taxpayers are calculated based on the taxable value of the properties. The taxable value is based on the value of the property when ownership was taken based on Proposal A.

According to Charlevoix assistant director of equalization Tom Wolf, this means that a property owner with a high valued home could be paying less in taxes than a person with a lower valued home due to the time those homes were purchased. If the person with the higher valued home purchased their home in 1994, due to Proposal A, their taxable value is capped at the value of that home in 1994.

When the home is resold, the taxable value changes based on its selling price.

Therefore, the person who bought the smaller home last year could find their tax rate higher than the person with the bigger home because of the rise in home values over the years.

"Anyone hanging on to a piece of property for any length of time will have a lower tax value," Wolf said.

The average residential taxable value in the city of Charlevoix is $62,200.

The taxable value is not the amount of money the property-owner pays in taxes, but the value of their home or property that taxes can be assessed to.

Abandonment of road for development fails in vote

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

A development company's request asking the city of Charlevoix to abandon and sell part of Stover Road was rejected by city council.

City manager Mike Wiesner said the company interested in acquiring the right-of-way, Agree Limited Partnership of Farmington Hills, builds properties to suit for tenants.

The property Agree has an interest in is the former Citizens Bank property off M-66.

Wiesner would not divulge information about the interested occupants.

The part of Stover Road in question is 66 feet wide and runs from M-66 to the western boundary of the former bank.

If that part of Stover Road were abandoned as Agree requested, 33 feet would be lost and the city was asked to sell the company the other 33 feet.

Bob Kern, a Realtor with Real Estate One of Charlevoix, who has an interest in the property, said if council agreed it would allow the developer to square off the property giving them a better area to work with.

Wiesner said if council agreed to abandon the road and sell the other half it would alleviate setback issues, would help provide an area for parking and in general would gain the developer a lot of usability of the site.

Because the road is not currently classified as abandoned but is considered a public road the same setbacks required of any public street apply.

City planner Gerry Harsch said, "That leaves a fairly substantial area that would be undevelopable."

Wiesner said that in lieu of council's decision to deny Agree's request he did not know whether they would continue to pursue a project at the site.

Boats and campers are not a problem

EDITORIAL

Charlevoix is the land of recreation.

We are surrounded by beautiful blue water and vast forests giving residents and visitors a variety of ways to enjoy them. Be it boating, camping in a recreational vehicle, riding the wintry trails on a snowmobile, hiking through the woods or fishing off a pier, the opportunities for outdoor fun are endless up here.

As is the case with many communities located in the heart of outdoor heaven, many residents own tools they use to enjoy the outdoors — such as a boat or a camper. And many of them store those boats and campers for the winters, but break them out in the summer.

It is not uncommon to see a boat on a trailer outside a residence or a camper parked alongside the street in Charlevoix, as well as many northern Michigan towns.

It is just easier for the owner to have their boat or camper nearby, to lower the hassle of getting it ready every time they use it. Plus it is cheaper than paying for storage on the vehicle, thus opening up the sport to many people who could otherwise not afford it.

But, this convenience could come to a close in Charlevoix. The Charlevoix City Council is considering an ordinance change that would ban the parking of boats and other recreational vehicles along the streets or in front yards.

The argument is that these recreational vehicles are unsightly and don't belong on the street. But, this really doesn't hold water.

If we are going to start banning things some people think are unsightly, where do we stop? Do we ban unwashed cars from the streets because they are unsightly? Do we ban ugly flowers from yards because some people think they are unsightly? Do we ban children from playing outside because someone thinks they are unsightly?

Charlevoix is a city based on recreational fun. A boat or camper parked on the road outside someone's home is not hurting anyone. Besides that people who own those boats and campers also pay city taxes, which pay for those roads.

Let's hope the city council decides against this unsightly ordinance change.

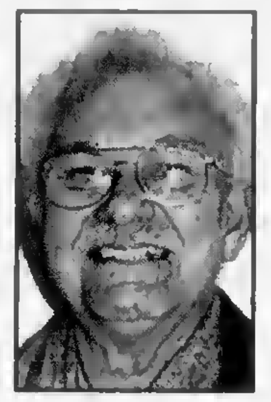
A ducky new way to promote Charlevoix



Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

I like petunias as much as anyone.

As a botanist I probably like petunias more than most. We should certainly continue to plant, nourish and advertise our petunias.

But as anyone who has ever tried to sell soap or hamburger franchises knows, something new always sells better than something that has been around for a few years. If we are going to sell Charlevoix, we should begin thinking about something new.

I have a suggestion — one that has its roots in the natural world.

Among the necessary excursions while visiting the city of Memphis, Tenn. is a trip to the Peabody Hotel; not to take a room, but to spend some time in the lobby.

As I recall, at least twice each day, a small flock of ducks comes down in one of the elevators from their pen on the roof. Hundreds of people watch as the ducks waddle across the lobby to a central fountain and pool, where they frolic for a time, then march back to their elevator and return to the roof.

All this is overseen and coordinated by an employee of the hotel, probably called the Master of Ducks.

What we need in Charlevoix is a Master of Ducks. We already have the ducks, some of them so dedicated to Charlevoix that they stay here year-round. What could our ducks do? I have some suggestions.

Training ducks is not a problem, we already know that ducks will do almost anything and go almost anywhere for a few kernels of popcorn. Once a pattern of movement is established for ducks they will follow it with all the diligence they reveal in migratory flights of hundreds of miles.

We also have a captive audience for anything that the Master of Ducks might arrange. During the high summer season, dozens to hundreds of people are temporarily stalled on the streets of Charlevoix while the bridge opens each half hour.

The Master of Ducks could capitalize on those times of paused traffic. With only the slightest of training, our home flock of mallards could waddle across the silent Bridge-Clinton intersection from East Park to an appropriate destination.

I would suggest the Townhouse as a beginning. It is close to the park, it would welcome the business, and I'll bet that on a hot day the ducks would enjoy a slurp or two of cold beer. There would probably he time for a short beer, a little popcorn and the waddle back to the park on many bridge openings.

If the ducks had to stay on the west side of the bridge for a half hour, they could be trained to perform some duckly event for the amazement and pleasure of the hundreds of onlookers.

The advantages of such a natural-born tourist attraction are many. One of the potential problems with numbers of ducks is waste disposal.

With the ducks attached to some sort of minimal confinement in a permanent enclosure in the park, that problem solves itself. Pigs can be easily trained to defecate in one particular place, maybe ducks can as well. That is a problem for the Master of Ducks to solve.

It might even be possible to arrange for a trained duck flyover on special weekends.

One additional requirement might be the control of duck numbers.

As word of this Eden for ducks spreads, we cold expect more ducks. The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce used to sell Charlevoix Maple Syrup — possibly arrangements with the DNR might allow the sale of surplus ducks.

Charlevoix Duckling sounds as good to me as Long Island Duckling. We need a Charlevoix Master of Ducks. Any volunteers?

Recall officials

Editor:

On May 5, Eveline Township will decide whether to recall its supervisor and clerk. Now the power is in the hands of the people, where it belongs.

The supervisor claims in a newspaper article that he has improved communication with the residents. At a recent special meeting the supervisor was very reluctant to let the public express their views.

At the last annual meeting he stated that the advisory motions of the residents "didn't matter." He refused to honor the written request of over 250 residents to recognize that an ordinance was improperly adopted.

The clerk claimed that he was awarded a 30 percent raise because he had served with integrity and dedication. The raise, voted on by residents, was awarded to the office of clerk, not Mr. Hayden personally. It was felt that the duties of the position, if executed properly, are extensive and deserve proper compensation. It is not a "merit" raise for Mr. Hayden.

He also claims that any errors he has made were made by him as the secretary to the Planning Commission. He admitted in open meeting that he intentionally left information out of a public notice because it was a waste of his time! Mr. Hayden, serving in any capacity, should not have told a resident to "sit down and shut up."

Does he choose when and where to serve with integrity and dedication?

Heated discussion and attempts to reason with our elected officials should not be referred to as bully tactics and disruption. A recall is legal recourse for the voters.

Vote yes to recall these officials and get Eveline Township headed in the right direction.

Support the troops

Editor:

Imagine a blistering hot summer afternoon and your car breaks down on a packed interstate ramp. You have three small children in the car are overheating, scared and crying. You cannot reach anyone on your cell phone and all the other cars are speeding by, barely missing your car, just staring but not stopping. Minutes seem like hours, darkness is starting to settle in. All efforts to stop someone have now turned to a silent prayer to God for any stranger to pull over and insist on helping you and your children out of this dangerous situation. As the black of night is coming, desperation is making minutes now seem to pass like seconds as if all time is quickly running out.

Now imagine being an Iraqi citizen where a cry for help is seen as an act against the regime possibly resulting in torture or death. Imagine having to be an Iraqi female and always being considered inferior, always walking behind your man, never being able to show your face in public and to speak out could possibly be grounds for cutting out your tongue. Imagine Iraqi children at the age of 10, not playing baseball, soccer or other things kids love to do, but being trained to fight as soldiers for a man that in most countries would be put to death for the crimes he commits.

Imagine crying for help and everyone ignores your cries. Their life is so far away from ours that it is easier to ignore the situation rather than recognize it and do something about it. You need someone brave, willing to risk all they consider valuable, even their life. Willing to help any human being that is in need without hesitation. Even a former enemy. A person that believes human rights are not just given to a chosen few but a right we were all born with. A gift, that democracies do their best to protect and provide. Whose prayers are being answered? Iraqi citizens. Who is answering their prayers? Our U.S. Soldiers.

Once again, imagine being on the side of that road. Wouldn't you be happy to see a U.S. soldier pull over and help, answering your prayer?

Support our troops, pray for our troops, they're doing what any humane person should do. They're doing what you would want them to do if it was you who needed their help.

Is this about oil?

Editor:

I personally commend you for taking opposition regarding the ongoing mayhem in the Middle East which cannot be said for the high-salaried representing the establishment media.

You covered many of the pieces of dilemma facing each of us as deeply concerned citizens as well as the future prospects for our offspring and our country. (A nation protects its borders.)

You mentioned that we must be missing some ingredient that must contribute to the rush to teach another lesson to the international community.

I would like to offer you another dimension of this conflict that the media barons will not even breathe about. It could be that we are blessed or cursed for multiple wars simultaneously.

Do not regard this report as a bird's-eye account from the scene of action as I have not been near the Middle East since serving eight months at LGH3 (landing ground) in western Iraq — part of my 17-month sojourn in 1945 with the U.S.A.A.F. All in Muslim countries.

The following quotation came to my notice in the March issue of the American Free Press. Reporter John Tiffany compiled an informative view point that all America should study.

"America once had a monopoly on the Iraq oil business, and of course the U.S. dollar was used as the currency for that trade. But in 1999, Iraq broke ranks and started to sell its oil for European euros. Little or nothing about this controversy has appeared in the establishment media. But the Internet is abuzz with the issue.

"Under an OPEC agreement, all oil has been traded in dollars since 1971, making the dollar the de facto top international trading currency. But since Iraq broke from the pack, other oil nations have been thinking about following suit, such as Iran, Venezuela and even Russia.

"Iraq currently uses three currencies: The Saddam dinar, a currency with Hussein's likeness used in most parts of the country; the "Swiss" dinar, used mostly in the northern Kurdish region; and, to a more limited but growing extent, the U.S. dollar."

If the above account is the true justification for the Gulf War II and the Bush administration is waging aggressive war to strengthen the dollar, then it is stupidity and culpability compounded. Lessons learned in our brief history as a productive, viable enterprise contains more recognizable ways.

If the formation of the European Union has once again fractured the solidarity of what is known as the western powers. It does not bode well for the extension of peace.

Just imagine the Bilderburger monster controlling the entire oil supply in the world and the will to embargo or sanction any nation who inclined to stray from conformity.

Welcome to the New World Disorder.

St. Mary School students to perform musical

An upcoming spring program at St. Mary School will showcase the talents of pre-kindergarten through fifth grade students.

The free evening show is scheduled to take place at 6:30 p.m., April 24 in the Family Center at the school located at 1005 Bridge Street in Charlevoix.

The program will include performances by the sixth grade band, the string program, the fourth and fifth grade recorders, the pre-k and kindergartners and will conclude with a multiage musical.

The musical, "Nic at Night," will tell the story of Nicodemus, based on the Bible story told in chapter three of the book of John.

The story will be told as a play within a play based on the experiences of Kathryn Sell, who plays Aunt Ellen, and her niece and nephew who go to see a musical about Nicodemus.

The musical is divided into three acts all of which take place at night.

Director Jodi Thompson said, "This musical challenges us to examine whether our own lives could be divided into these same three acts — seeking Jesus, believing Jesus and serving Jesus."

Act I tells of a Pharisee named Nicodemus who approaches Jesus at night and learns about what it means to be born again.

In Act II, Nicodemus will defend Jesus and become a secret disciple during a nighttime meeting of the Sanhedrin religious leaders.

Act III will close the show with Nicodemus' selfless ministry to Jesus on the night of his death.

Priscilla J. Johnson: Aug. 7, 1915 - April 7, 2003

Priscilla J. Johnson, 87, of Zephyrhills, Fla. passed away April 7, 2003, in Tampa, Fla.

A memorial service was given on April 12 in Zephyrhills, Fla.

She was born Aug. 7, 1915 in Rochester, the daughter of Harry and Fael (Springsted) Tripp.

She graduated from St. Joseph Mercy Hospital nursing school in Pontiac and served during World War II, in Italy and other countries with a MASH unit. After the war she returned to Rochester and moved to Midland where she worked as a nurse.

In 1972 she married Harold Johnson. They moved from Midland to Boyne City in 1979 where they lived for 20 years.

They were members of the Presbyterian Church in Boyne City.

Priscilla enjoyed playing golf at Ye Nine Olde Holes. For many years they spent winters in San Antonio, Fla., and Zephyrhills, Fla.

Priscilla loved to golf, write letters and playing cards and games with family and friends. She was well known for her wonderful pies and pastries. She enjoyed canning and cooking for family and friends and was devoted to her mother, her husband and her family. Priscilla had a wonderful sense of humor.

In 1999, Priscilla moved her permanent residence to Zephyrhills, Fla. where she attended First Presbyterian Church in Zephyrhills, Fla.

Surviving are her children, John (Barbara) Bailey of Trinity, N.C. ; Ginger (Tom) Hood of Knoxville, Tenn.; Hal (Kathy) Johnson of East Jordan; numerous grandchildren, great grandchildren, nieces and nephews and many loving friends scattered throughout the U.S.

She was preceded in death by her mother and father, a sister and brother, and her husband, Harold.

Memorial contributions may be sent to the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation in Charlevoix.

Alfred J. McEnhill: May 29, 1932 - April 12, 2003

Alfred J. McEnhill, Jr., 70, of Charlevoix, and formerly of Flat Rock, died Saturday, April 12, 2003 at Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey.

Mass of the Resurrection will be 10 a.m., today, Wednesday, April 16, at St. Rochs Catholic Church in Flat Rock.

Alfred was born May 29, 1932, in Detroit, the son of Alfred J. and Clara L. (Olfs) McEnhill. He served in the U.S. Navy during the Korean Conflict.

Alfred married Carmen Pena on Nov. 29, 1952, in Detroit, and she preceded him in death on Feb. 3, 2003.

He worked at Ford Motor Company - Woodhaven Stamping Plant as a supervisor, retiring in 1993.

He was a member of the Knights of Columbus Council in Flat Rock, Saint Mary's Catholic Church and the church choir in Charlevoix.

He is survived by his children, Alfred III (Sherl) McEnhill of New Boston, Thomas (Julia) McEnhill of Atlanta, Ga., Mary (Dennis) Camarata Wyandotte, Patrick (Carolyn) McEnhill of Flat Rock, Robert (Diane) McEnhill of Gaylord, Richard (Jerri) McEnhill of Brownstown, Carmen (Gary) Pedersen of Canton, Michael (Jennifer) McEnhill of Lincoln Park; sister, Mary Margaret McEnhill of Charlevoix.

He was also preceded in death by a daughter, Catherine Ann in 1976, and sisters Clara Amelotte, and Barbara Hines.

Memorial contributions may be made to Right To Life of Michigan, P.O. Box 901, Grand Rapids, MI 49506.

Norman Charles Smith, Sr.: Dec. 23, 1936 - April 10, 2003

Norman Charles Smith, Sr. died April 10, 2003.

Project awards to council member questioned

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

In the city of Charlevoix, city projects being performed by city council members has prompted some to question whether there is a conflict of interest.

"There certainly is an appearance of a conflict of interest with anyone who is awarded a bid from the city and is on city council," third ward council member Shirley Gibson said.

Gibson said she has been approached by Charlevoix residents who are concerned about this potential conflict.

"The public has approached me and asked what is going on here," she said.

However, she said if the bid process follows the rules, it is fair.

City mayor Gabe Campbell agrees.

"I don't think you should be punished for being on council," he said. "There isn't a conflict of interest as long as the city is using a sealed bid. And that's what they are supposed to be doing."

City manager Mike Wiesner agreed that the process is fair and there is no conflict. He said council has no more information about projects at their disposal than is available to another potential bidder.

"A lot of them (council members) do work for the city, it's a small town," Wiesner said.

Three council members often do work for the city. They are third ward councilman Sherm Chamberlain, co-owner of the surveying firm Ferguson and Chamberlain and Associates; first ward councilman Bill Haggard, co-owner of Haggard's Plumbing and Heating; and first ward councilman and deputy mayor Norm "Boogie" Carlson Jr., owner of Carlson's Home Improvements.

Most recently, a city of Charlevoix project that will bring needed repairs to the city's marina bathroom facilities, located at 408 Bridge Street, was awarded to Carlson.

The decision was made at a special meeting April 10. Gibson made the motion to award him the contract because he was the low bidder. Her motion was seconded by Chamberlain and supported by the rest of council, with the exception of Carlson who abstained and Haggard who was not present.

Carlson was the low bidder at $22,836. Jess Construction, also of Charlevoix, came in a close second for the project, bidding $24,300.

The city has included a $25,000 allowance for these renovations in its 2003-2004 budget.

Carlson said he does not feel that his work with this project presents a conflict of interest because it was a sealed bid process. He said he had no more information than any other potential bidder had.

"For the city to not let council members bid would be eliminating good contractors from the area," he said.

Carlson did vote to adopt the 2003-2004 budget in early March, but said that didn't come into play in the bid process.

"We just happened to be a little lower," he said.

He said his business is licensed to do plumbing and that is likely where he was able to save money.

Carlson started the project April 12 and is expected to be done by mid May. It will include installation of new countertops, sinks, bathroom partitions, baby changing stations and fixtures in both the upper and lower level public facilities. Both will also be repainted and repair work will be done on the ceramic tile.

City street department superintendent John Martin described the work as a face lift which will make the building more appealing.

On April 10 the building's roof was replaced for just over $4,000 as part of a separate project which was ordered during the 2002-2003 budget period.

Work began on the roof of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce/Marina building last week. This is being done by a different company than council member Carlson's and is a separate project. (Photo by Julie Witthoeft)

Commission considering ordinance change

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

The city of Charlevoix Planning Commission is looking into amending its zoning ordinance to accommodate an assisted living complex.

"We need to make an amendment to the zoning ordinance to accommodate elderly housing, which is not currently addressed in the ordinance," planning commission chairman Dennis Kusina said.

At its meeting April 14, the commission directed city planner Gerry Harsch and city zoning administrator Dianne Manore to look into allowing the use as a special use in the R-2 or R-4 districts.

Members of the commission, including John Dobulis, said they felt that if assisted living type uses were allowed as a special use in either district the city would have more control. Special uses are subject to requirements beyond those outlined for a given district in the zoning ordinance.

In spite of the commission's decision to be strict and lean toward allowing this type of development as a special use, residents who own property near where an assisted living complex is being proposed aren't happy.

Nearby property owner Ralph Doan, said "We've been down this line with zoning changes to fit this in the past. Ninety percent of the adjacent property owners within 300 feet were totally against a zoning change, period. It was finally changed to R-2 to accommodate more housing units. Now we are looking at 3 plus acres of land and 50 compact living units."

"I am strongly opposed to any change to the zoning ordinance in a residential area and any amendment to accommodate changes to the ordinance," he added.

Fellow neighboring property owner Bill Joy said he doesn't see how an assisted living complex at this site would be compatible with the neighborhood.

Sunnybank builder Lionel Thomas of DKL Construction in Traverse City, said assisted living facilities are lacking in Charlevoix and if Sunnybank were to locate here it wouldn't have a heavy impact as compared to what currently exists in that area.

Diane Gillette, co-owner of Sunnybank Retirement Community in Petoskey, approached the commission in early March with a plan to bring a similar facility to Charlevoix's north side.

The proposed unit is a single-story building spanning 36,000 square feet, covering about one acre of land. It is shaped like an X with wings containing 54 units, 32 of which are efficiency and 22 that are one-bedroom apartments.

Gillette and partner Ruth Bellissimo have been looking for property in the city for a couple of years, because the facility would be most easily serviced by its water and sewer services.

They currently have an option to purchase a piece of land in the city that fronts Petoskey Avenue and is owned by Charlevoix resident and Realtor Ed Amick.

Harsch and Manore are working on wording for the R-2 and R-4 special use provision and will bring information hack to the commission at a special meeting scheduled to take place at 6 p.m., May 12 at city hall.

Kusina stressed at the meeting this week that the work the planning commission is doing is not specific to Sunnybank's site plan or needs. He said the proposal brought to light that the current ordinance does not address this use and needs to.

Gillette does not have a construction timeline she is aiming to meet, but said if zoning accommodations are made she and Bellissimo would break ground as soon as possible.

Hospice volunteers wanted

Hospice of Northwest Michigan, in partnership with Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, is looking for caring and compassionate individuals who would like to join its family of hospice volunteers.

Hospice will be conducting a volunteer training program starting May 5.

The sessions will be for four weeks, meeting from 6 to 8 p.m., Mondays and Wednesdays. The classes will be conducted at the Greensky Hill United Methodist Church, Susan Hall off Old US-31 South in Charlevoix.

The first session will be a hospice orientation and discussion of the role of the volunteer.

Each class will deal with a different aspect of training — grief and bereavement, death and dying, communication skills, understand the family, spiritual care of the family, care and comfort measure, ethical issues and personal stress.

Hospice volunteers provide a variety of services, including respite care to the terminally ill and their family.

Anyone who has been a caregiver knows how important it is to have some time for themselves, and our hospice volunteers provide this very needed help by staying at the home so the caregiver can get away or just rest.

Call the Hospice of Northwest Michigan office at (231) 536-2842 if you are interested in becoming a volunteer.

Hospital has conference on SARS

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Severe Acute Respiratory Syndrome (SARS), a growing, global epidemic affecting 18 countries including the United States, has emerged over the last several weeks.

Three SARS cases have been identified in Michigan, including one in Wayne County and two in Kent County. All three cases were detected in people who had traveled to countries where SARS is prevalent.

Regardless of where they picked SARS up, the emergence of the mystery virus in Michigan has hospitals across the state, including Charlevoix Area Hospital, on alert.

"We want to be prepared to handle it," Caron Withers, the hospital's infection control coordinator, said.

On April 4, some doctors at Charlevoix Area Hospital attended a teleconference that brought the latest information from the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) and the World Health Organization right to the hospital.

Then, on April 9, there was a SARS emergency department conference to create proper protocol if a SARS patient shows up at the hospital.

At the conference, Withers said staff learned to identify SARS patients and what steps to take if a patient shows symptoms.

Patients suspected of having SARS are placed in a negative pressure room in the emergency department while they are screened to see if they meet the disease's case definition. This will ensure that germs are contained and can't travel elsewhere in the hospital.

Exactly how SARS is transmitted has yet to be pinpointed, but it is expected that droplets spread by sneezing and coughing are responsible. The possibility of the virus being spread by air or by contaminated objects is also still being explored.

During the screening process, Charlevoix Area Hospital health care workers and the patients themselves will both wear special masks to prevent staff and visitors from breathing in the germs.

Withers said this is the same mask and ventilation system required when interacting with potential tuberculosis patients.

Screening will look for symptoms common to SARS, which is expected to be akin to a coronavirus. These symptoms include: a fever greater than 100.5 degrees, chills, rigor, myalgia, cough, headache and dizziness. Less common symptoms include sore throat, nausea and diarrhea.

The key question hospital staff will ask during the screening is whether or not the patient has visited a "SARS area" like Hong Kong, China, Vietnam or Singapore.

Charlevoix Area Hospital will not admit a SARS patient. If a patient is believed to have SARS, he or she will be treated similarly to how tuberculosis patients are treated and transferred to Munson Medical Center in Traverse City or to Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey.

Charlevoix Area Hospital's plan follows CDC guidelines.

Linda Chiarello, a registered nurse with the CDC said to prevent transmission the disease has to be detected early and the person affected has to be isolated.

This isolation includes control of ventilation, use of masks, eye protection, gowns and gloves. Hospital support staff is also warned to take care in cleaning and disinfecting the room and in handling laundry.

So far, every drug, including antibiotics and antivirals, have been used and nothing has proven 100 percent effective in combating SARS. Further work is being done to both pinpoint effective treatments and to create a vaccine.

On Feb. 26 the first person suffering from SARS, a 48-year-old man, was detected in Vietnam after arriving from Hong Kong with symptoms that looked like atypical pneumonia with rapidly progressing respiratory symptoms.

The disease progressed from there at what Dr. Joseph Sung, a professor of medicine at the Chinese University of Hong Kong described at the teleconference as an alarming rate.

As of April 9, 2,722 SARS cases had been identified worldwide and 106 of those people have died.

The disease rarely hits people under 15 and is thought to be limited to those with close contact with SARS patients. The majority of the confirmed cases are in people between the ages of 30 and 50 and most are health care workers.

The virus has an incubation period of between two and seven days.

Dr. James Hughes, the director of the National Center for Infectious Diseases with the CDC, during the teleconference said that this rapid spread can most likely be attributed to changes in human demographics, behavior, economic development and ecosystems coupled with a significant amount of international travel and commerce.

For more information about the worldwide progression of the SARS epidemic visit www.who.int or www.cdc.gov.

Multiage classroom considered a success

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

As registration begins for a new group of first graders to enter the Charlevoix Elementary School's Multiage Classroom, teachers and administrators have reviewed the previous year and said it was a huge success.

"We are really pleased to have this choice for parents. All the parents I've talked to are really pleased to be a part of it," Charlevoix Elementary School principal Dick Swenor, said.

The program instructors, Lynn Vollmer and Shelly Novotny, implemented this alternative style of teaching for the 2002-2003 school year. It joins sections of the first and second grades in a cooperative learning environment for two years.

Under this model, elements of a second grade curriculum may be taught in the first year while elements of first grade curriculum could surface in the second year. This two year cycle is why it's vital for parents to make a two-year commitment to the program.

All of this year's 20 first graders are enrolled for a second year and the program will sign on newcomers at an information session scheduled to take place at 6:30 p.m., April 21 in the Charlevoix Elementary School library.

The two year program follows the Charlevoix Core Curriculum for first and second grades and the teachers also employ the Four Blocks Balanced Literacy Program. It is taught using 20 different themes that guide lessons and field trips. So all the lessons in one day are centered around a main idea.

"The themes really helped us integrate concepts and helped the students stay focused," Vollmer said.

This focus also allowed for sharing of information between older and younger students. More advanced lessons were often picked up by younger students who overheard math or writing lessons.

Vollmer said because of these peer learning opportunities, students in the multi-age classroom have the opportunity to go a little further.

At conference time this year, both Novotny and Vollmer received glowing reports from parents.

Novotny said one of the most common accolades from parents lauded the benefits of continuity and stability with the two year program.

The teachers are looking forward to next year as the second year students benefit from extended learning time and those coming in for the first year reap the rewards of having second year students as leaders and role models.

They said that in September they suspect first year students will be able to transition more easily into the classroom because the older students will show them classroom rules and routines.

"We can start teaching right away," Novotny said.

Vollmer has taught at the elementary level for 10 years. Novotny has taught elementary school for 11 years and taught in a multiage classroom at Central Elementary School in Petoskey for four years.

Island ferry damaged during harbor ice break

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

While breaking out the Beaver Island harbor last week, the United States Coast Guard cutter ACACIA had an accident that slightly damaged the Beaver Island ferry the EMERALD ISLE.

According to ACACIA Captain Keith Bills, the ACACIA struck the bow of the EMERALD ISLE while clearing out the harbor Thursday afternoon. He said he misjudged the power and speed needed to break the ice near the EMERALD ISLE.

"If we had backed down two seconds early, it never would have happened," Bills said. "That just kind of ruins your day."

He added, "In ice like that, you have to use full power (to break it with the ACACIA) and we just couldn't stop in time."

Damage to the EMERALD ISLE was minor and only cosmetic. The strike dented in a small portion on the bow, above the railing.

Bills said, when breaking the ice around the EMERALD ISLE, the ACACIA has to come very close to the ship. In this case, it had already made two runs within 5 feet of the ship.

On the third run, Bills said the ice gave away a lot quicker than he expected.

He said before the two ships struck, time seemed to slow down.

"You know it is going to happen and you know you are going to hit," he said. He added both he and the crew felt horrible about the incident.

Margo Marks, general manager of the Beaver Island Boat Company, said the damage was easily repairable. The strike did not cause any structural damage, she added.

"They just kissed the bow," she said.

But, due to the tonnage of the ACACIA, a "kiss" can still dent the EMERALD ISLE.

She stressed both the Beaver Island Boat Company are the residents of Beaver Island and "very grateful and pleased" with the service the Coast Guard supplies to the island each spring.

"Accidents do happen when you are going through ice that thick and in that shallow of water," Marks said.

Every spring the ACACIA makes a trip to Beaver Island to break the ice in the harbor, essentially freeing up the ferry to make runs to the mainland.

This year, the ACACIA got underway to Beaver Island around 9:30 a.m., Thursday. However, about three miles away from the island, it encountered very thick ice that took a while to get through.

"When we finally made it to the harbor, it was probably about 12 inches of plate ice, with about 6 inches of snow ice," Bills said.

The ACACIA finished its work in the harbor around 3 p.m., Thursday.

He said, while the warm weather has helped melt the ice on Lake Michigan, there are still some very large pieces floating around. And, when the wind is blowing, those large pieces tend to clump together.

"There is dangerous ice still out there," he said.

within a few hundred yards of some homes, ultimately fire crews won out and knocked out the threat.

No buildings were lost in the fire.

Additionally, no injuries were reported as a result of the fire or efforts to put it out.

The cause of the fire is still under investigation.

Charlevoix was joined at the scene by the Charlevoix Township Fire Department, Banks Township Fire Department, East Jordan Fire Department, Central Lake Fire Department, Torch Lake Fire Department, Resort/Bear Creek Fire Department and the Department of Natural Resources out of Gaylord and Bellaire.

Many local residents also assisted the fire crews in controlling and extinguishing the fire.

The Charlevoix Fire Department was called out to the scene during the night to extinguish several spot fires.

This was the second grass fire the city fire department had responded to within a two day period. On Sunday, the department was called to a grass fire around 6 p.m. near the intersection of Gennet Road and Old Dixie Highway in Norwood.

Zonta to have scholarship in honor of Mary Feindt

Charlevoix Area Zonta Club is currently accepting applications for its first annual Mary Feindt Memorial Scholarship.

The scholarship awards a $300 scholarship to one female high school senior who will be attending college following graduation and who plans to pursue a math or science related major in college.

The scholarship recipient will be chosen based on financial need and her involvement and interest in the math and/or science fields not on her grade point average or academic record.

In order to be considered for the scholarship, the student must complete the Mary Feindt Scholarship application, submit a written essay and provide two letters of recommendation from a math or science instructor who confirms the student's involvement and interest in the math and/or science fields.

Applications are available at the counselor's office at all Charlevoix County high schools or may be obtained by calling Maura A. Snabes at (231) 547-9969.

The deadline for receiving applications is May 16.

They should be sent to the Charlevoix Area Zonta Club c/o Joan Buday, Scholarship Committee Chairwoman, 104 St. Mary's Drive, Charlevoix, MI 49720. The winner will be announced at the Zonta meeting in early June.

City Hall moving

Health department reminds to get children vaccinated

"Love Them. Protect Them. Immunize Them" is this year's theme for National Immunization Week, April 13 through 19.

Children need multiple vaccinations in their first 24 months of life to protect them from 11 serious diseases that can cause disability and even death.

"Infants and young children are particularly vulnerable to infectious diseases; that is why it is critical that they are protected," said Patricia Fralick, director of Family Health of the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency.

Outstanding progress has been made in immunization rates for children younger than two years old.

Nationwide, immunization levels are high for most vaccines and most vaccine-preventable deaths have been reduced by more than 99 percent since the introduction of vaccines. However, there is still much to be done.

More than 900,000 of our nation's children are not fully immunized. Every day, 11,000 children are born, each in need of protection from vaccine-preventable diseases before age two.

Vaccines not only save lives and unnecessary suffering, they save money.

Infant immunization is a simple and inexpensive way to protect children from 11 potentially deadly infectious diseases.

For example, our nation saves $14.50 in direct and indirect costs for each dollar invested in giving the Hepatitis B vaccine to infants at birth and two months of age. Each dollar on the measles-mumps-rubella vaccine generates about $23 in total savings-or about $9 billion each year.

In the four-county district served by the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, childhood immunization rates are among the best in the state.

"It takes continuous effort from parents and health care providers to keep children protected," Fralick said. "Parents need to remember that additional immunizations are needed when their child is 15-18 months of age."

For additional information regarding infant immunizations, contact your child's physician or the local office of the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency.

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is the local health department serving Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, and Otsego Counties.

Soccer season opens

The young Rayders dropped their season opener to a very good Petoskey team on Friday.

Charlevoix started five sophomores and three freshmen and Petoskey capitalized early with four quick goals.

As the game progressed, Charlevoix settled down, holding the Northmen scoreless during the last 15 minutes of the first half.

Junior Goalkeeper Brooke Blanchard stopped 20 tough shots and was awarded the Rayders' Player of the Game. Charlevoix managed four shots against the Petoskey keeper.

"It is difficult to open up against an experienced opponent, but our girls responded well and will only get better as the season progresses," Coach Carol Madison said.

Charlevoix traveled to Big Rapids for a non conference game on Saturday.

Big Rapids built a 5-0 halftime lead and then hung on as the Rayders improved markedly in the second half.

The team's defense played much better after the break, led by Madison McKenzie, Madison Ramsey and Brittini Whittaker. Freshman Laura Nitchman played very well in her first start in goal for the Rayders.

Offensively, the Rayders were sparked by Jaime Pettis and freshman Chantelle Dionne.

Dionne scored on an assist by Pettis in her first varsity game. Pettis notched the second Rayder goal off a free kick assist from senior captain Kelly Zimmerman.

The young team was encouraged by the strong second half play. The final score was Big Rapids 5, Charlevoix 2.

Middle school wrestlers get 14 medals at Manton

The Charlevoix Middle School wrestling team traveled to Manton on Saturday competing with eight other schools.

Of the 16 wrestlers attending, 14 took medals.

First place winners were Zeke Daman, Mat Golovich, Joey Left, R.J. Moore, Nate Golovich, Spencer Hankins, Jacob Wimmer, Nick Gotshall and Scott Plude.

Second place was awarded to Brandon Darrah, Sean Kieman, Pat Russel and John Aimsbury.

Zach Scharenbroch took third place.

WEED CONTROL NOTICE
City of Charlevoix

Pursuant to Section 6.71-6.74 of the City of Charlevoix Weed Control Ordinance, Chapter 63 of the Code of the City of Charlevoix:

NOTICE: No grass shall be permitted to grow higher than twelve (12") inches. No growth of noxious weeds is permitted on property within the City. The cutting, removing or destroying of such weeds or grasses at least once every three (3) weeks between June 1 and September 15 is deemed compliant. After June 1, 2003, the City may cut, remove or destroy grass or noxious weeds on property which is not in compliance with this Ordinance. The actual costs of compliance by the City of Charlevoix may be charged against the owner of the property pursuant to Section 6.73 of the Ordinance, and may be a lien against the property. A property owner who refuses to destroy noxious weeds may be subject to a fine of up to $100.00 or, if applicable, a municipal civil infraction. Flower gardens, shrubbery plots, vegetable gardens, small grain plots, easements, public lands and lands of indefinite ownership are exempt from this Ordinance.

Softball team splits night

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

The Charlevoix Rayders varsity softball team opened its season with a doubleheader split against Mackinaw City.

The Rayders dropped game one, 3-8, but recovered to win the nightcap, 7-6.

In the opener, Natashia Kleiber paced Charlevoix hitters with two hits. Katie Sheldon and Sally Haselschwardt each had one hit. Kleiber took the loss on the mound.

Erin Burns tallied the victory in the finale, striking out four.

Brittany Niswander doubled while Amanda Boss, Kleiber and Sheldon had singles.

"Considering that it was our first game and our first day playing outside, I thought we did real well," coach Liz Grunch said. "We didn't hit well in game one, but got more aggressive and our bats came alive in the second game."

Baseball team finally gets on the field for first game

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

The weather finally cleared enough for the Charlevoix baseball team to get outside and begin its schedule.

Charlevoix finished last week with a 2-2 mark, getting swept by Suttons Bay, 8-5 and 4-3, recovering to sweep visiting Mackinaw City, 22-7 and 11-5.

In the opener, the Norsemen only managed one hit, but took advantage of shaky Rayder defense in the victory. Kreg Weger was the hard-luck loser on the hill, despite yielding only one earned run.

Matt Kilkenny was two for three with a run scored and two RBI. Nate Teuscher was one for three with a walk, two runs and two stolen bases. Matt Kochanny added an RBI single and Jake Teuscher doubled for the Rayder cause.

The nightcap saw more of the same as Charlevoix outhit Suttons Bay, 5-2, but errors led to the loss. Jake Teuscher took the loss but pitched well in his five innings of work, giving up only two hits and two earned runs while striking out six.

Kilkenny again led the hitters, going two for two with two runs scored, a double and an RBI. Weger was two for three while Kochanny was one for two with an RBI.

"We showed our inexperience, along with some first-game nerves," coach Bryan Hawkins said. "I was very pleased with our pitching, as well as our production from the top half of the lineup. Defensively, we have some work to do, but overall I was en-

Council votes against plan to abandon Stover right-of-way may have produced, council decided it wasn't worth it.

Mayor Gabe Campbell said the property could extend the life of the cemetery which is adjacent to the road and is expected to be full in 50 years.

Wiesner said the city currently has water and electrical lines that run down that road and the possibility of a sanitary sewer being installed has been explored.

And that because of the location of those utilities he questions the practicality of the right-of-way being used for grave sites.

While council did vote unanimously to retain the property, not all of its members were dead set against the sale.

First ward councilman Bill Haggard said he would like to see a site plan and if it looked like the project would benefit the city he would consider the proposal.

But area residents who attended and spoke at the meeting felt there was nothing left to consider.

Charlevoix Township resident Dale Boss said, "You are wise in keeping it. I wouldn't abandon that for all the tea in China. That road has been there for 150 years. It would be a disservice to get rid of it."

City resident Patty Sitzema agreed that the sale was not a good idea.

She said the road provides needed cemetery parking.

Representatives of Agree did not return calls by press time.

Building committee wants old middle school

LIBRARY

Development Authority purchase all 13 lots, including the school, and the library could buy what they need from the DDA or possibly swap out their building.

"Like they did with the movie theater. The DDA bought the property and sold it to Bill Supernaw at a reasonable rate," she said.

The library has said its new 20,000 square foot building would require eight lots which would accommodate future expansion and open space needs.

She estimated that the school sits on approximately three lots.

This would leave five open lots. In the past the DDA has expressed interest in buying three of the open lots to build marina overflow parking.

Library board and building committee representatives have tentatively scheduled a meeting with the DDA to take place at 5:30 p.m. April 21 at city hall to make their financing request.

At the March DDA meeting, the possibility of the DDA financing this purchase was discussed. At that time it was clear that most members of the DDA agreed the best future for the property is to be kept in public ownership.

But the majority of the DDA also said the library would get the greatest support if it chooses to use the building.

However, members were also told by city manager Mike Wiesner that funds may be tight with the upcoming marina project and an undertaking like this is likely not possible.

If this plan doesn't get DDA support the library will make a proposal to the school board inquiring about purchasing the school and five of the 10 open lots.

It will also ask for one year to come up with funding.

But this request of the school board may also be a tough sell. At past meetings the school board has said time is money with this building and it isn't entirely supportive of splitting the property.

The city and library are currently funding costs to heat and maintain the building through the winter, but whether or not this agreement would stretch another year has not been decided.

This fall the school board had put a six month moratorium on the sale of the property while the library decided its direction. That moratorium has since expired.

Meyerson said when she recently met with Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools Dr. John Sturock he gave the library until May 31 to decide its direction.

couraged."

The Rayders christened the new "Rayder Field" with the sweep over Mackinaw City in the first games ever played there.

In the opener, the Rayders had many hitting heroes with Nate Teuscher (three for four, two RBI, four runs), Kilkenny (two for two, two RBI, three runs), Matt Burtt (three for three, two RBI, three runs) and Taylor Fisher (two for three, two RBI, two runs) leading the way.

Kochanny was the winning pitcher, striking out four in over two innings of work.

Hal Foster's two-out, two-run single broke game two open and was the key in the Charlevoix win.

The Teuscher brothers handled the pitching with Jake starting and striking out seven and surrendering only one hit in over two innings. Nate picked up the win in relief, striking out five in over two innings.

Nate also was two for two at the plate with two runs scored. Kochanny was doubled and tripled, plating two runs and scoring two more himself.

"It was fantastic to be out there on our own diamond," Hawkins said. "It was a good turnout and a real good atmosphere for baseball."

The Rayders host Maple City Glen Lake at 4:30 p.m. on Thursday, April 17 and the Charlevoix Tournament begins at 10 a.m. April 19.

LEGAL NOTICE 210

STATE OF MICHIGAN
DEPARTMENT OF ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY
SUPERVISOR OF WELLS

IN THE MATTER OF
THE PETITION OF O.I.L. ENERGY CORP. FOR AN ORDER FROM THE SUPERVISOR OF WELLS ESTABLISHING A UNIFORM SPACING PLAN CONSISTENT WITH ORDER NO. (A) 14-9-94 AND COMPULSORY POOLING ALL INTERESTS INTO THE UNIT. THE PROPOSED UNIT CONSISTS OF PARTS OF SECTIONS 26, 27, 28, ALL OF SECTION 33, PARTS OF SECTIONS 34 AND 35, T32N, R4W, HUDSON TOWNSHIP, CHARLEVOIX COUNTY, MICHIGAN.

NOTICE OF HEARING

Take notice that a contested case hearing will be held before the Supervisor of Wells (Supervisor) in the city of Lansing, Michigan, on the FIFTEENTH DAY OF MAY (MAY 15) 2003, BEGINNING AT 9:00 A.M., IN THE DEPARTMENT OF ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY STEPHEN NISBET HEARING ROOM, ATRIUM LEVEL, SOUTH TOWER, CONSTITUTION HALL, 525 WEST ALLEGAN STREET, LANSING, MICHIGAN. The hearing will be conducted pursuant to Part 615, Supervisor of Wells, of the Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Act. 1994 PA 451, as amended (NREPA); MCL 324.61501 et seq., the administrative rules, 1996 AACS, 2001 MR 2, 2002 MR 23, R 324.101 et seq., and the Administrative Procedures Act, 1969 PA 306, as amended, MCL 24.201 et seq.; MSA 3.560 (101) et seq.

The hearing is for the purpose of receiving testimony and evidence pertaining to the need or desirability of issuing an order in the matter of the petition of O.I.L. Energy Corp. (Petitioner), 954 Business Park Drive, Suite 5, Traverse City, Michigan 49686.

Petitioner seeks an order of the Supervisor, pursuant to R324.302 to establish a Uniform Spacing Plan (USP) consistent with Order No. (A) 14-9-94, and pursuant to R324.304 to compulsory pool all interests into the proposed USP. The proposed USP consists of the SW 1/4 of SE 1/4, Section 26; N 1/2 and SW 1/4, Section 27; S 1/2 and S 1/2 of NE 1/4, Section 28; all of Section 33; S 1/2, S 1/2 of N 1/2, NW 1/4 of NE 1/4 and N 1/2 of NW 1/4, Section 34; S 1/2, S 1/2 of N 1/2, N 1/2 of NE 1/4 of NW 1/4, Section 35; Section 35 T32N, R4W, Hudson Township, Charlevoix County, Michigan. Take note that the final USP boundary will be determined by the Supervisor and may be different from the USP proposed.

You can obtain a copy of the written petition by requesting one in writing from Mr. Dennis T. Couturier, 954 Business Park Drive, Suite 5, Traverse City, Michigan 49686, telephone number 231-933-3600.

Take note that if you wish to participate as a party in the hearing by presenting evidence or cross-examining witnesses, you shall prepare and mail or otherwise deliver to the petitioner and Supervisor, not less that 5 days before the hearing date, an answer to the petition in the manner set forth in R 324.1204 (6f). Proof of mailing or delivering the answer shall be filed with the Supervisor on or before the date of the hearing. The answer shall state with specificity the interested person's position with regard to the petition. Failure to prepare and serve an answer in a timely manner shall preclude you from presenting evidence or cross-examining witnesses at the hearing. If an answer to the petition is not filed, the Supervisor may elect to consider the petition and enter an order without oral hearing. Mail the answer to the petition to Mr. Dennis T. Couturier at the above address, and to the Supervisor in care of the Assistant Supervisor of Wells, Mr. Harold R. Fitch, Geological and Land Management Division, P.O. Box 30256, Lansing, Michigan 48909-7756.

Take further note that you may request a change in the location of the hearing to the county in which the proposed USP is located. If the majority of the owners of the oil and gas rights, which are listed in the Petition as not voluntarily pooling their interests into the proposed USP, include in their timely filed answers a request to hold the hearing in the county where the proposed USP is located, the Assistant Supervisor of Wells shall: (i) at the time and place scheduled in this notice adjourn the scheduled hearing; (ii) reschedule the hearing for a location in such county, and (iii) provide, by first-class mail, notice of the rescheduled hearing date, time, and place, prior to the rescheduled hearing date to all persons who filed an answer in response to this notice.

Questions regarding Notice of Hearing should be directed to Ms. Maul, Geological and Land Management Division, Michigan Department of Environmental Quality, P.O. Box 30256, Lansing, Michigan 48909-7756, phone 517-241-1552.

Persons with disabilities needing accommodations for effective participation in this hearing should call or write Ms. Maul at least a week in advance of the hearing date to request mobility, visual, hearing or other assistance.

Community Reformed Church
100 Oak St. • Charlevoix
Easter Celebration
April 19, April 20 at Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix

If the Christian Faith has a high Holy Day it is Easter. This Easter, the Sermon theme will be "Easter Matters!" where Pastor Larry Grooters will connect the dots between that amazing event centuries ago and the impact that event has on each of our lives in 2003. His text will be Matt 28 : 1-10.

Both the Praise Team and the Choir will provide the music and Marie Volovsek will be featured in a liturgical dance to the music of "Through the Torn Curtain." The movement of the worship service that morning will be from the quiet soberness of Good Friday to the joyous celebration of the discovery of the empty tomb on Easter morning.

This Easter Service will be held 3 times:
Saturday, April 19, 6:57 p.m.
Sunday, April 20, 9 a.m. & 11:15 a.m.

NEW BOAT ON BEAVER ISLAND MAIL ROUTE

Capt. Leroy Allers Brings Diesel-Powered Mary Margaret Here

Passenger, mail and freight service between Charlevoix and Beaver Island is being provided by Captain Leroy Allers with the diesel-powered Mary Margaret, which he recently purchased at Benton Harbor.

The craft is 61.5 feet long, has a beam of 17.9 feet, and draft of 6.6 feet. She was built at Bay City and is powered with a 120 horsepower diesel motor. The boat was formerly operated on an excursion run between Houghton and Isle Royale, and more recently as a fruit carrier between Benton Harbor and Milwaukee, Wis.

Despite its short length, the craft has surprisingly ample passenger accommodations and freight storage. It has a large upper open deck and pilot house and cabin quarters on the upper deck. A galley is located on the lower deck. The boat can handle four automobiles and has large deck and below deck freight storage.

The craft has passed inspection since being brought to Charlevoix and is licensed to carry 46 passengers, it is understood.

MUNICIPAL PLAYGROUNDS STARTED

WILL DEVELOP PROPERTY ON ROUND LAKE HARBOR

Plan Construction Concrete Tennis and Shuffle Board Courts, Installation Playground Equipment

Work on a revised plan for developing property acquired by the city for parking purposes on the east side of Bridge Street between Clinton and Mason streets was started Tuesday morning as a WPA project.

The plan, backed by the Board of Commerce and approved by the city council, calls for the establishment of a municipal playground equipped with various recreational facilities, centrally located in the business district on Round Lake.

Following completion of grading operations, two regulation concrete tennis courts will be constructed on the second terrace below the street level. At least four and perhaps additional shuffle board courts will be built. The courts will be lighted for night play.

Other facilities will include sand boxes and playground equipment for the children and other equipment deemed advisable.

The upper terrace will be sodded and the entire frontage will be landscaped and planted to shrubbery. Cement stairways will lead from the street down into the park and gravel walks will be constructed throughout the grounds.

Strenuous effort is planned to being about approval of a WPA project providing for driving of steel sheet piling along the waterfront. Plans of this project include straightening out the waterfront line, providing a fill behind the sheet piling to extend the south property line into Round Lake about 20 feet.

If approval is given and when the work is completed, the city will build yacht slips along the lakefront.

Action by the council in establishing a playground on Round Lake is considered by many as one of the most progressive moves taken here in many years.

How to get your news in the Courier

If you have a news item you think would be perfect for the Charlevoix Courier, feel free to call 547-6558, e-mail charlevoixcourier@charlevoix-courier.com or visit the Courier office located at 112 Mason Street in downtown Charlevoix.

News items include events sponsored by non-profit organizations. Please inform us of your event at least two weeks in advance.

Our coverage area is the city of Charlevoix and its immediately surrounding areas, including Beaver Island.

Because of space limitations in the newspaper, we generally try to avoid publishing "check-handing" pictures or "ribbon-cutting" pictures. However, we will work with your organization to get a picture that reflects the event and is visually interesting to our readers.

We cannot attend every event we are notified of due to time constraints on the staff. If you have a picture of your event, we will gladly consider it for publication. But, please, contact us before your event.

It should be noted, each story and picture is dealt with on its individual merits. Any policies outlined above may be suspended by the editor or general manager of the Charlevoix Courier if necessary.

Baseball team young but ready

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

With a strong group of seniors providing their leadership, the Charlevoix High School varsity baseball team is hoping to get by problems with youth and inexperience.

Coach Brian Hawkins said he will specifically looking to seniors Nate Teuscher, Matt Kilkenny, Matt Kochanny and Kreg Wager. Other seniors on the team are Nick Pizzouro and Hal Foster.

Teuscher will be playing shortstop and pitcher. Kilkenny is a catcher and outfielder. Kochanny is on first base and is a pitcher. Wager is going to play first base and the outfield.

There are 14 players on the team.

Hawkins said the team lost a lot of talent to graduation last year. Because of this, Hawkins is looking at a different style for the team this year.

"We are going to build the team more around pitching and defense," he said.

But, the team's weakness is its inexperience. Hawkins said he has five players who have come out this year for the first time.

With these new players and a talented crop of players that were on the junior varsity team last year, Hawkins said it will allow him the ability to fill some of the holes created by last year's graduation.

Hawkins added junior Matt Burtt and sophomore Jake Teuscher are proving to be solid additions to the team this year. Burtt is a catcher and Teuscher is a pitcher, who Hawkins says has real potential.

Hawkins will need to call on these talents as he faces a tough Lake Michigan Conference this year. He said Kalkaska, who is the reining champion, is the team to beat.

"We are going to try and do our best each week and see where we are at," he said.

Softball team has a lot of drive to win

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

With only three seniors out of 15 players, the Charlevoix High School varsity softball it going to field a very young team this year.

"We are still rebuilding from the last couple of years," Coach Liz Grunch said.

But, while they are young, the team has drive.

"They are learning a lot, hopefully we can put it all together," Grunch said.

The team's strength is in its hitting and defense, Grunch said. But, it is fighting a need for playing time — the cold and snowy weather has been keeping them off the field — and trying to find a good pitcher.

"We need playing time and experience base running," Grunch said.

The Rayders three returning seniors are Natashia Kleiber, Erin Burns and Katie Sheldon. They are also returning juniors Amanda Boss, Andrea Ruhlman and Jessica Pettis.

Grunch said Kleiber has a great glove, is fast and is a good line drive hitter.

Ruhlman is also very quick and can hit the ball very well. She is expected to play third base.

Boss is a middle infield player. Grunch said she has good range and a good field sense.

Burns is doing well in the outfield and has good hitting skills.

As for Pettis, Grunch said, she is the fastest player on the team. This year she may switch positions from the outfield to catcher.

Kleiber and Burns are in the running for the pitching position.

Another strong player Grunch said, is Sam Kupka, who has been doing well in the outfield.

Boys', girls' track teams expect good seasons

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Another good season is expected for both the boys' and girls' Charlevoix High School track teams.

According to boys' coach Ken Plude, the boys' team is very talented this year, but in other areas than last year.

"Where we had strong distance and middle distance runners, we are now strong in field events and sprints," Ken said.

The boys' team has 45 students on it, with people still "coming and going."

"This is about what we ended up with last year," Ken said.

Once again, Ken will be looking for a strong performance from Peter Gorkiewicz, a state final's qualifier from last year in the mile and two mile run.

Also returning is Todd Carey, who qualified for state finals last year in a couple of events and is one his way to trying some new events this year, Ken said.

Spencer Bryan, who also qualified for state finals last year, will also he returning. He will be running the 400 meter relay and is the team's top hurdler.

Ken said the nucleus of the team is made up of juniors, such as Kyle Kramer, who is an all state pole vaulter who is multitalented. Kramer is also the number one discuss thrower and the top relay man.

Jeff Urban is also a member of this group. He qualified for the state finals in three events last year as a sophomore and is the top sprinter and long jumper.

Josh Carter is also expected to be a good member of the team, Ken said. Carter was a 51 foot shot putter as a sophomore and is called the "king of the throws."

With these strong numbers and talented people on the team, Ken said Charlevoix is definitely a contender against strong conference teams like Harbor Springs.

"Harbor Springs is the focus right now. They only lost a couple of people (from last year)," Ken said.

Like the boys' team, the girls' team is also expecting great performances.

According to coach Mary Plude, the girls' team is 30 strong, which is up from last year's 20.

"The girls' team is very well balanced," Mary said. "There is no one area we are standing out in. We have a good group of sprinters."

Once again this year, Liz Ulrich is expected to show her talent on the track. The senior Is a three time all stater in a number of events and is expected to do well in the two mile relay this year.

Mary will also be looking for the leadership and talents of three other seniors who have been a part of the track team for four years.

First is Katie Lieberman, who qualified for the state finals in the past. She is the team's top sprinter.

Second is Lauren Silberhorn and third is Jake Mailloux, both middle distance runners.

Mary will also be looking for strong finishes from junior Michelle Rowe, who is a two mile relay runner and state qualifier.

"Other than that, we are young and green. Two thirds of the team are sophomores and freshmen," Mary said. "Building for the future is our plan."

But, included in these young and green members are a couple of seniors who have come out for the team for the first time and are showing promise as throwers, Mary said. They are Lorna Kilborn and Kelly Ward.

Adding to this throwing talent is freshmen Caitlin Cole and Michael Sayward.

"We haven't had a strong thowing crew (in the past). We already have five of them throwing farther than last year," Mary said.

Mary also has a core group of girls who are multitalented. They are Theresa Martin, Sonya Plude, Liz Madison, Amy Drew and Betsey Dennis.

"They are very open to trying other events to help fill out the team," Mary said.

Lots of competition for tennis team spots

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

With 23 students out for the Charlevoix High School varsity tennis team, and many of them young, coach Eric Lundteigen has a good feeling about this year.

"All of the spots are pretty much wide open," he said. "When you have a young team, you have good competition for spots."

Each position on the varsity team is up for grabs throughout the year. While one player may be on the team for one match, he may be beaten by a fellow Rayder for his spot the next week.

Whoever does not get a varsity spot, will compete on the junior varsity team.

"I am real optimistic about it. I am happy about competition," Lundteigen said. "We are only going to get better. This year, by May, we should be stronger."

So far, the singles positions are filled by: Nate Turner, Mitch Klooster and Josh Fassett. This leaves the fourth spot wide open, with a lot of freshmen fighting for it, Lundteigen said.

In the doubles, Taylor Martin, Matt "Sparky" Nitchman and Cody Wheat are in. However, there are a lot of doubles positions open.

"We have some hard workers, that is the only thing you can ask for," Lundteigen said.

While he has a lot of talent to pick from, Lundteigen said the team's weakness is the amount of time it has spent on the court this year due to the weather.

"We have been shoveling the courts," he said.

Before spring break, the team did get a chance to go to North Central Michigan College to practice in its recreation center. The college has three courts in the center.

"We need to get outside as soon as possible," Lundteigen said.

While the team's emphasis is getting ready for the regionals, they will have to face some pretty tough teams throughout the season.

Lundteigen said Elk Rapids was the conference champion and the team should be tough this year again. He added Harbor Springs will also be a strong team.

Girls' soccer team faces rebuilding year

Having lost six seniors to graduation in 2002, the Charlevoix High School varsity girls' soccer team plans to rebuild with a returning corps of sophomores and juniors and lone senior Kelly Zimmerman leading a promising group of incoming freshmen.

"We will be learning as the season goes along. We will rely a great deal on speed to recover while we learn from our mistakes," coach Carol Madison said.

Leading the way will be the team's tri-captains:

- Zimmerman, starting sweeper, who was second team all conference and all district in 2002. Madison said, this is Zimmerman's year to provide leadership and experience to the young team.
- Alyssia McDonough, junior, who will be moving up to midfield from the back. Madison said she is hardworking and leads by example.
- Shayna Drost, junior forward. She was honorable mention all conference and all district in 2002. Madison said she is very fast and a scoring threat and holds the school record for goal in a game with five.

The juniors are:

- Brooke Blanchard, goalkeeper and forward. She was an honorable mention in the all conference in 2002. Madison said she works hard to improve in the net and has become an improved field player.
- Maggie Romig. Madison said this is her first year on varsity, but she is learning fast.

Sophomores are:

- Sarah Cross, stopper and middle field. Madison said she is anticipating great things from Cross this year.
- Grace Farrell, a first year player, but a great athlete, according to Madison.
- Meghan Lame, middle field and forward. Madison said she works hard and has earned a starting role.
- Mallory Mahoney, forward. Madison said she is improving and hopes to earn more playing time this year.
- Madison McKenzie. Madison said she is the team's spark plug who she hopes to give more time in the midfield to this year.
- Jaime Pettis, forward. She is very fast and a scoring threat, Madison said. She is also used as a marking back on strong opponents.
- Brittini Whittaker. Madison said she has shown the greatest improvement over the off season.

Freshmen are:

- Caitlin Cole. Madison said she is very strong and is developing into a positive role player.
- Chantelle Dionne. She is a first year player.
- Stevie Murray. She has good skills for a young player, Madison said.
- Laura Nitchman, goalkeeper. Madison said she is also skilled and fast.
- Madison Ramsey. She has earned a starting middle field role, Madison said.

"We have a difficult schedule beginning with Petoskey. Our goals are to improve on last year's .500 record and to improve our conference finish while learning from mistakes and improving for the state tournament," Madison said.

She added, "This is a great group of kids who have worked hard on their conditioning through the off season. Another goal is to continue our success at maintaining our all state academic standing, second in our division in 2002."

One lane for US-31 sections

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Community members and Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) representatives agreed to work together to limit the intrusion a huge project planned for US-31 might have on Charlevoix.

Residents met with representatives of the state transportation department at a public meeting April 15 at the Charlevoix Township Hall.

"Overall it was a good exchange of information," Bob Felt, spokesperson for MDOT's North Region in Gaylord, said.

MDOT workers will begin the project April 28. It will include milling and resurfacing 9 miles of US-31 from just west of Lewis Street in the city of Charlevoix to Townline Road, near the Emmet County line.

The road work, which is expected to be complete in mid-July, will address joint and road surface issues along part of US-31, likely producing a smoother ride.

However, bordering that 9 mile stretch are numerous businesses and residences that may be disrupted while construction is underway.

Some of the people who could be affected attended the recent meeting MDOT hosted.

Tom Heid, manager of the Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course, "Mr. Petunia" Dale Boss and a representative of LexaLite International all voiced concerns.

Heid said he is worried about being able to access both sides of the golf course which extends across Petoskey Avenue. He said he recognizes there will likely be times when it isn't possible for golfers to play the whole course, but would like to be kept informed.

Boss was worried he wouldn't be able to water the petunias between Lewis Street and Mercer or that curb work would negatively impact the flowers.

He found out that the petunia truck will not likely always be able to water the flowers and that during that period of time Boss may need residents to pitch in.

"We'll still get the petunias in. We'll work around it. It might need a garden hose or two, but we'll work around it no problem," Boss said.

Bob Felt said LexaLite representatives were concerned about truck access in and out of their driveway near Burgess Road.

During the congressional Easter recess, United States Senator Debbie Stabenow made stops in Charlevoix and Petoskey to discuss issues of local importance.

Debbie Stabenow

In Charlevoix on April 16 she met with local business and civic leaders at an afternoon luncheon at the Weathervane sponsored by the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce. The meeting was by invitation only, thus it was closed to the public.

She said major issues affecting Charlevoix that were discussed included economic development, the need for affordable housing and the effects of rising property costs.

Students give lawmaker ideas for new bills

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Charlevoix High School students may be the impetus behind major changes to state laws.

Students in Annmarie Conway's global studies class at the high school hosted a Michigan Youth Caucus hearing April 18.

Each group of students chose a topic, did research, anticipated questions and built logical arguments to present to state representative Doug Hart of Rockford.

Hart is co-chair of the House Civics Commission, which is made up of 21 legislators who hold hearings across the state to better engage kids and to get them connected legislatively and to search out real bill ideas.

Based on comments he made while in Charlevoix, some of the students may just see changes as a result of their hard work.

"I'm convinced that in the next couple of years, bills will be introduced and laws enacted as a direct result of this exercise," he said. "I really want a law to come out of this meeting."

Some of the topics that were touched on included amending the law that punishes school districts for authorizing more than two snow days annually, increasing the age limit for the state's sexual consent law and changing Merit Scholarship funding and distribution.

High school students Dan Buday and Anna Taylor offered a convincing argument to change current legislation allowing two snow days without penalty for Michigan public schools.

"It (the current law) unfairly punishes schools for a situation beyond their control," Buday said.

Taylor said in Charlevoix between 30 and 170 inches of snow falls annually and two days is not adequate.

"It doesn't seem fair that we should lose money because of days it was too dangerous to come to school," Taylor said.

Hart told the students that in lieu of the current deficit in the school aid budget this is a very timely issue. And, "This could be a way to cut the schools some slack."

He suggested that the students follow up with the School Board Association and the Michigan Education Association.

Hart was also impressed with a presentation presented by Lexie Evans, Amanda Towsley and Brittni Whittaker that argued in favor of raising the age of consent for teens from 16 to 18.

They said at 16 teens have little responsibilities, but are empowered to make a life altering decision like having sex.

"(At 16) Teens need parental consent to have an abortion, but not to do the act that got them into that situation," Whittaker said of the current consent law.

Hart agreed that this is a real problem and asked that the group check where prosecutors stand on the issue.

"This could pass muster in the house this session," he said.

The final presentation by Tom Aepelbacher, Mitchell Klooster and Chris Golski looked at the Merit Award which is a scholarship given to students who perform well on the Michigan Educational Assessment Program (MEAP) test.

They proposed to reduce the scholarship from $2,500 to $2,000 and to distribute the funds in annual payments of $500 to those students who maintain a 3.0 grade point average or better.

Hart thought the group's idea to add in an accountability factor was a good idea and encouraged all the students to continue to pursue these issues.

"I think there are a lot of really good ideas here for legislation. Now, its a matter of connecting with the right people in Lansing," Hart said.

Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools Dr. John Sturock said he was very proud of the students' performance.

"I wish people who bash public education would come in and see what the students can do. They used technology, research and surveys to get at issues that are important to them and to the community," he said.

Conway said the students will follow up with Hart's recommendations.

Time for community to look at housing

EDITORIAL

A problem plagues the Charlevoix area.

Every day it grows bigger. Every day it harms the community we live in.

The problem is lack of affordable housing.

Last week, at a meeting with Senator Debbie Stabenaw, several area business people talked about how this issue is affecting the community. In fact, affordable housing was the top issue that was discussed at this meeting. (See page one for more information on the meeting.)

One of the business people, the president of Charlevoix Area Hospital, Bill Jackson, told the senator how the hospital is having trouble trying to get workers due to this issue.

Furthermore, it was pointed out affordable housing is an issue with keeping the Coast Guard Cutter ACACIA docked in Charlevoix. Simply put, if there is no affordable housing in the area for crew members, the Coast Guard can not afford to keep the ACACIA in Charlevoix.

This issue is also affecting the children in our schools. According to Charlevoix Superintendent John Sturock, because young families are having trouble finding affordable housing in Charlevoix, they are moving outside of the district, thus taking tax money with them.

Charlevoix cannot let this problem continue to grow. It is time to start looking at solutions.

In a series of stories on affordable housing in the Charlevoix Courier over a year ago, we learned one solution is clustered housing. This enables more people to live in a certain area, thus lowering the property costs and in turn lowering the cost of the homes.

It would also benefit the environment. Clustered housing and clustered developments limit the impact of sprawl on a community.

To do this, a community would need to allow higher density areas and smaller lot sizes. Plus, it would need developers, realtors, government officials and residents working together to find locations and other solutions.

While it is an honor for Charlevoix to be considered such an affluent community, we need to start looking at ways to help those who cannot afford a million-dollar residence. Without affordable homes, we have no workers, a lower tax base for our schools and a hurting community.

North Central Michigan College benefits many

Edith Gilbert

'Behind the news'

There are no ivy covered walls nor long held traditions at North Central Michigan College.

Founded a mere 45 years ago in neighboring Petoskey, it's more of a "let's roll up our sleeves and get-to work" kind of school and it has grown mightily (30 percent) in the last few years. You'll be interested to know that almost 20 percent of the 2,600 student enrollment stems from Charlevoix County — even though the two year college receives its tax dollars solely from our adjoining Emmet County.

In the next three years, the thrust for the college is to become a four year college offering a full master degree.

. For those who have never visited the campus, go to the corner of J.C. Penny's in Petoskey and proceed half a mile up the hill on Howard Street. Located off the beaten path, the rolling campus covers a scenic 305 acres, with 14 buildings including a beautiful library building.

Jennifer Prater, director of marketing, gave me a tour of the brand new Student and Community and Resource Center. Here literally hundreds of area residents have taken advantage of the new indoor walking and running track, and according the NCMC president Cameron Brunet-Koch, the enrollment of the physical education course has exploded.

The three indoor tennis courts, open to the public for a fee, are also popular with Charlevoix residents, and may be readily converted into student basketball or volleyball courts. The center also houses a computer lab with 75 stations and internet access that is open to the public.

Forty academic programs are taught by a hundred instructors and most students go on to earn a four year degree in colleges and universities scattered around the country.

Two popular new programs have been introduced at NCMC. One is the nursing program that invites students to earn their associate degree of nursing in six semesters instead of four, so that they can hold a part time job while pursuing their education. Another popular new model program that is being copied by other colleges is the Microsoft Academy, computer technology for working systems.

Tuition for full time students averages almost $1,000 a semester, which compares very favorably with other colleges. The cost of living in the 100 room Student Residence Hall is $1,050 per semester. The dorm attracts students from all over Michigan as well as out of state. A resident director organizes social activities.

Under the Presidential Scholarship Program a full scholarship worth $4,000 is awarded each year to a high school student for academic achievement. Students are selected by each high school principal from local area counties. Last year's winner from Charlevoix was Jennifer Mosoryak, who lived on campus and said, "There were some amazing people right next door and the highlight of my semester was building friendships in the Resident Hall."

Travel opportunities are not overlooked, either. For example the Anthropology Department has taken a two week field trip to the Yucatan Peninsula in Mexico. The English Department has gone to the Shakespeare Festival every year in Stratford, Canada. The Photography and Biology classes have jointly visited the Everglades in Florida.

One of the largest student clubs has produced a newspaper called The Informer, which won 12 state awards last year. Talented Trish Wright of Boyne City serves as adviser.

Editor:

After reading much of the information published in the press in regard to the recently settled lawsuit against Charlevoix County and Prosecutor Mary Beth Kur, we feel that the taxpayers deserve more information.

We are inspired to write after reading the articles and a letter to the editor from John Jarema where he congratulated himself for suing.

First, he claims that a settlement is an admission of guilt and therefore we can all assume that there are "acts of fraud and misuse of county funds" happening in the prosecutor's office.

Well, it is a fact that it was the taxpayer's benefit for the insurance company to settle what was left of the lawsuit before trail because it cost over $150,000 just to present the evidence that caused the Judge to dismiss the first two claims Mr. Jarema made! You do the math.

It is also a well known fact that insurance companies call the shots in lawsuits like this. All of us have car insurance and we know that if we get into an accident (even if you did nothing wrong) that it's the insurance company who decides if the car gets fixed or if we get paid off. If you disagree with their decision, you pay the bills. Same thing is true here — Mary Beth had no real choice.

Mr. Jarema said he's gotten another job now and that "this case was never about money." Well, if that's true, why not give the money back to the taxpayers?

While the words he uses "acts of fraud and misuse of county funds" grab headlines, ask yourselves a few simple questions:

1) If this was going on in our prosecutor's office, wouldn't you think as an attorney Mr. Jarema would know the proper procedure? What we mean is, isn't it strange we haven't read about him going to the police or requesting a copy of the county audit?

2) Also, wouldn't a prosecutor who committed fraud be disbarred?

Without more, it looks to us that he wants Mary Beth's job. We believe that Mary Beth has proved herself over the last 10 years. She has integrity, is sincere, honest and has a clear picture of how to do her job with the right blend of courage and compassion. People who know her, know she and her husband have two great kids and are committed to both their family and the community.

We know she has worked hard to get new laws passed to better protect crime victims. She has also been involved with many state and even national committees and has been active in the prosecutor's association in Lansing.

We are lucky to have Mary Beth as Charlevoix County Prosecutor and we will do what we can to make it stay that way. We hope the taxpayers will recognize Mr. Jarema's tactics for what they are.

Wal-Mart location wrong

Editor:

The Wal-Mart Corporation is making plans to locate a "big box" retail store in Charlevoix. Most people in the area would probably support the store (a fact that the marketing department of the company is already aware of).

Most of us, here in Charlevoix, would object to the present planned location just south of town on US-31 because:

1) Traffic safety may be a problem at that location.

2) Should the store fail — Which is a possibility. Take a look at the vacant McDonald's building on Bridge Street — the town would be left with a large unused building and parking lot on an important entry way.

3) The current plan poses environmental problems regarding Stover Creek and will increase the speed of water run off to Lake Charlevoix (water cannot slowly "seep" into the water table through an asphalt parking lot).

The above (and other) issues are important to those of us who live in Charlevoix. The Wal-Mart corporation has worked with other communities to meet the needs of both the company (to make money) and the people (to enjoy the town they have built).

Some recent examples are:

1) Purchasing Kmart property — the Buy Low property in the same plaza is available as well. This would prevent Charlevoix having tens of thousands of unused retail square footage on the south end of town when Kmart (a bankrupt corporation) can no longer compete with Wal-Mart. Doing this would have no further impact on traffic patterns and water run off as both traffic and blacktop are already in place.

2) Designing retail stores which fit into the community rather than building another "big box" on eleven acres.

Charlevoix does not have to welcome the Wal-Mart corporation to come into our community. We can insist that the company work as hard (or even harder) as it has in other places in order to become part of our community.

Remember that Wal-Mart is expecting (and probably will get) many of our retail dollars. In exchange we can expect that they will provide good and competitive products in a safe, environmentally and culturally respectful location.

Thank you

Editor:

I am writing to commend the actions of a man named Mike, who works for Dry Harbour Motor Sports on US-31 South. A few days ago my Irish Setter ran off from the pole barn where I was working, and I was very worried about her, as she has no sense about cars and the area is full of trucks and cars. She was inside the barn, but ran out when I didn't see her.

After searching for her on foot. I got in my truck and drove around the area and came upon Mike working at the shops of Dry Harbour.

I asked if he had seen an Irish Setter, and he said no, but asked me for her name in case she came by that way. I continued looking for her, and about a half hour later, here was Mike with my dog on his "make-shift" leash.

He took the interest and time that most likely saved a dog's life and surely relieved mine of guilt had something happened to her. I once saw a quote that read, "You can't live a perfect day without doing something for someone who can never, in anyway, repay you." Mike, thank you again.

Junior Golf program to offer FSU scholarships

Several lucky youngsters that participated in the Charlevoix County Junior Golf Association's 2002 summer program will be awarded scholarships to attend the prestigious golf camp at Ferris State University this summer.

Dean Davenport, executive director of the summer program, announced that the association's board members recently approved renewing the scholarship program with FSU. He added that upwards to six golfers will be selected soon to receive the full scholarships enabling winners to spend a week at the campus of Ferris State.

Applicants must have participated in more than half of the past summer's sessions and be at least 12 years of age to be eligible. Application packets were mailed recently to nearly 70 youngsters that qualified for consideration.

During the past six years, 42 junior golfers from the Charlevoix area have been awarded scholarships.

Local PGA professional from the Belvedere Golf Club, Steve Braun, again added greatly to the camp "kitty" by raising over $8,000 by playing 100 holes in a single day and receiving pledges from local Junior Golf supporters.

Dennis LaCroix, board president said, "Steve's effort is greatly appreciated by all of us connected to the program. His dedication and interest in young golfers is typical to the excellent cooperation we get from everyone including the courses that host our golfers....."

Sam Supernaw, board treasurer added, "Our major fund raiser the Supe Classic Golf Tournament has helped fund this project through the years and last year we again sent several area youngsters to a week's golf camp. It's been a great experience for them not only to learn more about the game but to do so at a great setting like a college campus."

More information regarding this year's program and the June 16 registration procedures will be announced soon.

Wedding

Cross — Norton

On June 8, 2002, at the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix, Robin K. Cross and Matthew B. Norton were married.

The Rev. William A. Michael, a long time family friend of the bride, performed the ceremony in the presence of 160 guests.

The bride is the daughter of Julie and Neil Cross of Charlevoix. The groom's parents are Dave and Mary Lu Norton of Petoskey.

The bride was escorted down the aisle by her father.

Karen Gross of Glenview, Ill. served as the maid of honor and bridesmaids were Sylvia Alsens of Skokie, Ill.., Beth Norton of East Lansing, Alison Polack of Boyne City, Robin Lufek of Shelby Township and Sarah Norton of Petoskey.

The bride's niece, Lauren MacNaughton was the flower girl, and Matthew Cross, brother of the bride was the ring bearer.

Jesse Beatty of Detroit was the best man and groomsmen were Jeff Joy of Manchester, Dan Jackson of South Bend, Ind., Jason Voorheise of Marquette and Tom Lewis of Royal Oak. Gregg MacNaughton and Shawn MacNaughton both uncles of the bride, seated the wedding guests.

Following the ceremony the couple was escorted by carriage to the Belvedere Casino and guests were greeted by the music of violinist John VanPatten of Petoskey. A sit down dinner was catered by Coburn MacNaughton of Lake Leelanau, who is the uncle of the bride. DJ the DJ's music filled the room for dinner and dancing.

Family and friends flew in for the special occasion from Alaska, Chicago, Tennessee and Connecticut. The couple flew to Hope Town in the Bahamas for their honeymoon.

Matthew is the head packaging engineer for Letica in Rochester and Robin is in sales and marketing for Intier Automotives in Novi. The couple resides in Royal Oak.

Obituaries

Mary C. Minor: Died Feb. 27, 2003

Mary C. Minor, (nee LaFreniere), 71, lifetime resident of Beaver Island, passed away Feb. 27, 2003, at Munson Medical Center in Traverse City.

A Mass of the Resurrection will be at 11 a.m., Saturday, May 3, at Holy Cross Catholic Church on Beaver Island. The Rev. Patrick Cawley will officiate and burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery.

Mary was born on Beaver Island, the daughter of Patrick and Elizabeth (Floyd) LaFreniere. She graduated from Beaver Island School.

Following graduation she worked at the Shamrock, then for McDonough's Store. She then worked for the U.S. Post Office on Beaver Island, retiring as postmaster in 1992.

She married Archie Minor in January of 1961, and he preceded her in death after 34 years of marriage.

Mary was a member of Holy Cross Church and a very active member of the Holy Cross Altar Society, and she served as church secretary for several years.

Beloved wife of the late Archie Minor; loving sister of Patrick (Marcia), John, Joseph (Lois) LaFreniere and Jean (Harry) Frazer; dear sister-in-law to many; special aunt to numerous nieces, nephews, great-nieces and great-nephews; cherished cousin, friend and godmother, all of whom she considered close family members.

Mary was preceded in death by her parents, Patrick and Elizabeth; sisters, Isabel and Margaret Ann Polhemus.

Visitation will be at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix from 2 to 9 p.m., Thursday, May 1, and at the Holy Cross Church on Beaver Island from 5 to 9 p.m., Friday, May 2, where a rosary and prayers will be recited at 8 p.m.

In lieu of flowers, contributions may be made to Beaver Island Hospice, c/o Lois Williams, Beaver Island, 49782; or to the Alzheimer's Association, Northwest Chapter, 1040 Walnut Street, Traverse City, MI 49686.

Mary Keith Freyhof Morris: Died April 21, 2003

Mary Keith Freyhof Morris, 78, of Charlevoix died April 21, 2003 at Boulder Park Terrace.

The funeral is at 2 p.m., Friday, April 25, at Christ Episcopal Church. The Father Jim Gunn will officiate and burial will be in Brookside Cemetery immediately following.

Grief support program planned

Losing a spouse, parent or child due to death is sometimes more than we can bear.

Also emotionally taxing is getting divorced, losing your job, moving, dealing with a chronic illness or even losing a pet. Loss of any kind is the focus of a series designed to help people cope.

A series of five weekly sessions for those coping with a loss will be held from 6:30 - 8 p.m. on consecutive Thursdays from May 1 through May 29 at St. Joseph's Catholic Church, 207 Nichols Street, in East Jordan.

The Grief Support program is sponsored by Hospice of Northwest Michigan (formerly the Charlevoix County Hospice), Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, Charlevoix Area Hospital and Northern Michigan Community Health Agency. The program is designed to help those grow through grief and learn the five tasks of grief work.

The Pastor Carl Litchfield, spiritual advisor; Margaret Lasater, bereavement coordinator and Jean Bedell, social worker will facilitate the sessions.

Anyone is invited who has suffered a loss or who is helping a loved one deal with a loss and who would benefit from the support of others.

We would appreciate anyone interested in attending these classes to pre-register by calling the hospice office at 536-2842. There is no charge for this program.

Easter rememberance

Members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association had their annual cross processional as part of Good Friday Services on April 18. Those in attendance carried the cross from Oleson's parking lot on Antrim Street to the Community Church of God on Hurlbut Street. (Photo by Jeremy McBain)

Resident: Enforce mining ordinance or face lawsuit

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

If the Charlevoix Township Board doesn't take strict action soon at the local cement manufacturing plant Cemex, Inc., it may face a lawsuit.

A group of Boulder Park residents say the board is not enforcing its mining ordinance at Cemex and have said if something doesn't change soon, they plan to sue the township.

"The township is not interested in dealing with the problem (at Cemex). The trouble is, this is not going to just go away. There are serious problems there," Richard Maddin, a part-time resident of Boulder Park, said.

Residents are concerned with air pollution, water pollution, solid waste disposal and the mining operation at Cemex.

Maddin has been after the township since 2001 to make a change in the way it deals with Cemex.

He requested to be on the board's regular meeting agenda April 14. There, he addressed what he refers to as "the township's total refusal to enforce its (mining) ordinance."

"They have a responsibility to the community to enforce it," he said. "From here the township will probably get sued if they don't want to do what they're supposed to do."

Township representatives said they do plan to respond to Maddin's concerns and those of other residents by addressing the ordinance and exploring their enforcement options.

Township supervisor Oscar Stroud said, "We thought we were doing what we were supposed to do. We thought we were doing all right."

But, after further investigation, township officials found Maddin's claims were merited.

Township clerk Carol Martin said, "They (residents with complaints) found we are slacking off and we are on some things. We thought for too many years it wasn't our responsibility to enforce what goes on around there. We thought it was the DEQ's (Department of Environmental Quality's) responsibility. But we are supposed to also."

Maddin said its time for the township to throw its weight around.

"The board is sleeping at the switch. It's unacceptable and they can't be allowed to do it anymore," Maddin said. "The real power rests with the township."

Dave Thorley, environmental engineer with the Air Quality Division of the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality, who deals with Cemex, said townships can be more stringent and can impose more requirements than other state and federal agencies.

Currently both the DEQ and the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) penalize Cemex for non-compliance with fines. Both Martin and Maddin agreed the fines are not enough.

"We are not interested in the fines, we are interested in making sure they are doing the right thing," Martin said.

In its quest to be a Cemex watchdog, the township is currently exploring how it can enforce its mining ordinance.

Thorley said the township can have tighter control by making new rules and regulations for the company to follow. However, the key is enforcement, neither the DEQ or the EPA will enforce township rules and regulations.

While the township has made no definite decisions about the approach it will take, Maddin has a few ideas of what major changes he wants to see.

He is looking to see the township issue annual permits and if those permits are violated, having the board follow through and shut down the plant until it operates in compliance with the ordinance.

"The permit gives the community the opportunity to find out what the operator intends to do," Maddin said.

He urged the township to "grab onto its power and force them to behave."

In "forcing them to behave" Thor-

Drost to retire after 25 years with schools

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Charlevoix High School students call Pat Drost "the adult superfan" and more importantly, a friend.

Drost's close relationship with students at Charlevoix High School made her decision to retire from her position as principal's secretary, after over 25 years of service, a tough one.

But at 61 she said the work load was getting to be too much and she is ready to explore new challenges and to have her day to herself.

Pat Drost

Drost is a mother of three, a grandmother of eight and a great-grandmother of one. But, if you ask her, she'll tell you she feels like a mother of hundreds. Over her years with the school system, she has watched students grow and offered them support, encouragement and a shoulder to cry on.

"My vision of a secretary is a tall, thin, professional type — totally the opposite of me. The kids are drawn to me. I've heard them say, 'If you want a good friend, hang around Mrs. (Barb) Miller (fellow high school secretary) and Mrs. Drost,'" she said.

Drost moved to Charlevoix in 1959 from the Detroit area during her senior year of high school and graduated that spring a Rayder.

She started working for Charlevoix Public Schools in 1974. Her career began at the middle school, where she worked for 10 years as a playground attendant, an office assistant and the secretary.

During the 1984-1985 school year, former middle school principal Dave Smith accepted the job as high school principal. Drost and Smith were a package deal and both moved to the high school.

"When Dave and I first came to the high school, one of our objectives was to lighten things up, to bring some humor and fun. I think we accomplished that," she said.

Over the past 19 years, the community has come to know Drost as the friendly voice on the line when you call the high school or the friendly face you are greeted by at the front desk.

She is also part of the glue holding the high school together — helping organize life for principal Gary Grundman, getting together daily bulletins and helping coordinate clubs and classes.

Grundman said, "This office runs very well because of these two (Drost and Miller). There will be a big challenge next year for whoever sits in her chair."

After tying things up in the office, Drost turns into the adult superfan. She works all home boys basketball games and attends all the away games.

"It's my favorite sport," she said.

After her official retirement June 30, she plans to stay in Charlevoix and to keep in touch with students by continuing to live up to her nickname working football, volleyball and basketball games.

She said she'll also pop in once in a while to say hello to students and staff. The only real difference will be not having to get up at 4 a.m. to start the day and having this coming summer and fall to herself.

After the fall she is considering accepting a part-time position at Charlevoix State Bank.

Recreational vehicle ordinance unchanged

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

A Charlevoix city council member's attempt to change the city zoning ordinance to prohibit long-term parking of recreational vehicles in the city street right-of-way proved futile at a meeting this week.

Third ward council member Shirley Gibson recently brought the issue to council's attention. She claims that by parking motor homes and boats on trailers in the city streets for extended periods of time a safety hazard is posed and an element of visual blight is caused.

"I don't think recreational vehicles belong on city streets for months at a time," she said.

The current ordinance allows parking of these vehicles in the street right-of-way for 48 hours. However, enforcing the 48 hour rule,has proved difficult for the city police and Gibson said some city residents have taken advantage of this lack of enforceability.

City police chief Dennis Halverson suggested that if council wants to move in a direction to make the recreational vehicle issue more enforceable, that it prohibit parking of those vehicles in the right-of-way from 2 to 6 a.m. This same time restriction exists in Boyne City.

City mayor Gabe Campbell said if the current rule is unenforceable it doesn't belong in the zoning ordinance and a change needs to be made.

But after hearing public comment, the majority of which supported the ordinance's current status, council ultimately unanimously decided that the current rules are adequate.

City resident Lynette Grahams said, "We cannot forget our citizens — those are the people who will lose — families who take kids boating, teach them how to snowmobile or take kids camping. Please don't forget the people who want to have good quality family time."

A motion was passed asking city manager Mike Wiesner to write a memo to the city police suggesting a line of action be taken when a complaint about long-term parking of these vehicles is received.

First, the city police department is asked to contact the vehicle's owner and try to mediate the situation. Then, the vehicle will be stickered. If it is still not moved the city will treat the vehicle as an abandoned vehicle and tow it.

Wiesner said, "We will do that; we have been doing that."

While the action taken by council is no change from the status that existed before it acted, Gibson said she is satisfied.

"My main goal was public awareness and that was accomplished. This should help enforcement with the few that abuse the law. Forty-eight hours on the street shouldn't mean six months," she said.

The city planning commission is still considering changing how the ordinance addresses parking of recreational vehicles on private property. At its April meeting the commission moved to set a public hearing to discuss parking of these vehicles in front yards but a date has not been set in this matter.

It is not considering changing the ordinance to prohibit parking is side and rear yards.

After the public hearing, the planning commission will make a recommendation to city council.

If a change is recommended council will schedule another public hearing.

The commission's next meeting is scheduled to take place at 6 p.m., May 12 at city hall.

BUSINESS

Deli, bake shop opens downtown

Scott and Vi Keller Forreider have opened a new deli in downtown Charlevoix. (Photo by Jeremy McBain)

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix residents and visitors have a new source for fresh baked goods, sandwiches and refreshments with the April 17 opening of Scovie's Gourmet downtown, near the bridge.

Scovie's Gourmet is a deli and bake shop that offers customers a variety of goodies, such as: Blue Bunny Ice Cream, Michigan Wines, Boyd's Coffee, fresh baked goods, salads made daily, soups and take out home-meals.

The business also offers catering and special occasion cakes and baked goods.

Scovie's Gourmet is owned by the husband and wife team of Scott Forreider and Vi Keller Forreider. Scott is a native to northern Michigan.

The Forreider's, have worked for Staffords restaurants, Bay Harbor Yacht Club and Vi opened the Red Mesa Grill as a general manager. Scott also was a pastry chef at the Little Harhor Club.

Most recently, the Forreiders spent four years in Arizona. Scott was a food broker and Vi was a district restaurant manager.

"Our parents live in Charlevoix County and we have always loved skiing and lakes; it was hard to break away from it," Scott said.

But, after seeing a need in Charlevoix for a catering and pastries business, as well as an upscale, but affordable, deli, the Forreiders returned.

"We are filling a nitch that was open in the area," Scott said.

Scovie's Gourmet is located at 111 Bridge Street. It can be contacted by calling (231) 237-7827 or by e-mailing scovies@earthlink.net.

Winter hours of operation are 7 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday through Friday and 7 a.m. to 3 p.m., Saturday. As of June, the hours of operation are 7 a.m. to 10 p.m., Monday through Saturday and 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., Sunday.

Charlevoix students return from trip to France

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

A group of students from Charlevoix High School spent spring break exploring a new culture.

After a two week European adventure, the students returned April 14 from France with a new appreciation of French style, cuisine, architecture, history and customs.

"They were so adventurous, it was absolutely remarkable," Charlevoix High School French instructor Sue Kessler, who was a chaperone, said.

After landing at Charles de Gaulle Airport they became immediately aware that life in Paris was quite different from life in rural Charlevoix.

They said it was interesting to be in the midst of a crowd engaged in fast spoken French side conversations. They also had to make adjustments to affectionate greetings.

Brenna Bergmann a third year French student who went on the trip, said, "They brush cheeks, it scared me to death the first time."

Other unfamiliar aspects of French culture popped up all over as they left the airport with their luggage.

The students laughed as they reminisced about the street signs, tiny cars and the driving norms.

"They drive like maniacs," Denise Barta said.

They spent the first week in Paris touring the Eiffel Tower, Notre Dame, the catacombs, l'Arche de Triomphe and other well-known monuments.

Brittany Hernden was especially impressed by the Chartres Cathedral, where the group learned to read the stories told in its stained glass windows.

While in Paris, they even got to see first hand what a citywide transportation strike is all about. The one day strike shutdown many taxis and most of the metro trains, slowing city life down.

Kessler said the strike was "very French."

After leaving Paris, they traveled

Tennis team has good start to season with wins

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

While rain canceled most of the late week matches, the Charlevoix High School tennis team showed some good promise for the year by winning matches on April 14 and 15.

"We had a good start on the season. We are just trying to get as many matches in (that we can). The weather hasn't helped much," coach Erik Lundteigen said.

On April 15, Charlevoix beat Grayling 7-1.

Individual results were:

- First singles — Nathan Turner won 6-0, 7-6.
- Second singles — Joshua Fassett won 6-2, 3-6, 6-1.
- Third singles — Mitchell Klooster won 6-2, 6-1.
- Fourth singles — Ben Scheelk won 6-4, 1-4.
- First doubles — Cody Wheat and Adam Wager won 6-1, 6-2.
- Second doubles — Matt Nitchman and Taylor Martin won 6-0, 6-0.
- Third doubles — Joshua Saur and Matt Novotny won 6-1, 6-2.
- Fourth doubles — AnnaKate Trubilowicz and Lindsay Withrow lost 1-6, 3-6.

On April 14, Charlevoix beat Traverse City Christian 5-3.

Individual results were:

- First singles — Turner lost 6-8.

Fisher doing well

Tiffany Sloan Fisher, a junior at Princeton University, is again competing on their ski team. This year she took first place individually in her Ivy League USCSA conference. Her team also took first place at the conference to qualify for the Mid-Atlantic Regional Collegiate Championships at Seven Springs in Sommerset, Pennsylvania Feb. 19-22. The Princeton team took second place out of 17 colleges and universities at the regional competition qualify to compete at the USCSA Nationals held at Lake Tahoe in March. Fisher was a 4 year All-State skier as an individual for Charlevoix High School and former Junior Olympian. She was valedictorian of her class in the year of 2000. She is an honor student at Princeton University earning her degree in architecture. (Courtesy photo)

Students learned a lot about French culture

to Reines, stopping off to visit the Chateau de Blois in the Loire Valley and Giverny for afternoon adventures.

Once in Reines the group split up and spent their second week with host families. All the families had high school age children and some spoke English. But the students said their experience was totally French.

"The students were most nervous about their family stay. In general, I think it was a good experience. There were a lot of tears at the train when they left (to return to Paris)," Kessler said.

The Charlevoix crew dined on crepes, tried to interpret French television and even attended school for four days with their host "brothers and sisters."

At French high schools the students found it interesting that most students would take cigarette breaks, that classes lasted one to two hours and that students would go to school until noon on one day and 6 p.m. on the next.

Other than that, the chemistry classes were doing typical experiments and English classes were similar to the foreign language classes offered in Charlevoix.

A couple of the Charlevoix temporary transplants helped their new French friends with challenging English homework and offered them a handful of American slang phrases to throw into their vocabulary.

During their time in Reines, students found English safe havens like some radio stations, MTV and the BBC channel which was filled with coverage of the war with Iraq. The war prompted interest from the host families.

"They thought it was comforting for me to watch it," Barta said.

While the students watched the programs, the families watched the students for any reactions. And some of them asked how their American student felt about the conflict.

In spite of France's position not to support the war with Iraq, students said they were treated well.

"Everyone was really nice," Amanda Locke, said.

They did run into a protester here and there, a couple of bumper stickers about boycotting American products and "Americans go home" graffiti.

But none of the tame anti-American sentiment made any of the students think twice when asked if they would go back.

Through this immersion program, the students said they have already seen some amazing benefits and everyone said they want to return and may even study French in college.

"My speaking and comprehension skills went up a lot," Locke said.

This week they will present their experiences to the rest of the high school French students and then will give the presentation to eighth and ninth grade students.

They plan to use their new skills and European friendships to continue pen pal correspondence with their host families. Some of the new French friends are even planning visits to Charlevoix.

Grief program offered

On April 30, Charlevoix Area Hospital, Hospice of Northwest Michigan and Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency will host the Hospice Foundation of America's tenth annual bereavement teleconference, "Living With Grief: Coping With Public Tragedy."

This live via-satellite televised broadcast will examine factors that define a public tragedy and look at ways health care and other professionals can appropriately respond and offer support.

ABC news correspondent Cokie Roberts will moderate the event.

"This is a wonderful opportunity for caring organizations across the country to present a program that will resonate strongly with diverse communities because the theme is so universal," Jack Gordon, chairman of Hospice Foundation of America said.

It has been several months since the nation marked the one-year anniversary of Sept. 11, 2001, yet lessons to be learned from this tragedy continue. The effects of other events such as Hurricane Andrew, Oklahoma City and Columbine will also be discussed.

Roberts will lead a panel of noted authorities to include: Kenneth J. Doka, consultant to HFA and professor of gerontology at the College of New Rochelle; Marcia Lattanzi-Licht, consultant and noted authority regarding loss; LaVone Hazell, a funeral director from New York, N.Y.; Nadine Reimer Penner, a hospice social worker from Wichita, Kan.; and Marlene A. Young, executive director of the National Organization for Victim Assistance.

The teleconference will take place at 1 p.m., April 30 at Charlevoix Area Hospital in Classroom B. Preregistration is required. To register contact Linda Parsons at (231) 547-8569. The program is offered free of charge.

IIN LOVING MEMORY...

RONALD HAGGARD

APRIL 18, 1977 · APRIL 27, 2000

During these trying times when the coalition forces are fighting for freedom and democracy we want to remember all the courageous soldiers who have made the ultimate sacrifice. These fine people have undoubtedly left behind family and friends whose lives will be forever changed by their loss.

Our son, Ronald, died three years ago and our family continues to miss his wonderful presence. Ron grew up in Charlevoix and was a standout on the Rayders wrestling team. He also loved nature, hunting and camping. He loved to write poetry. He worked at Haggard's Plumbing and Heating where he would have had a wonderful career working with family and friends.

We want to share one of Ronald's poems that meant a lot to him, and we hope may be of some comfort to the families of military personnel so very far from home.

Family is the forgotten key
For life without them shall show no sympathy
No open doors along the way,
And trouble lurking with every day
For there's no guidance to show the way,
With only emptiness along the way.
Without my family no love shall come my way
I love them more with each passing day.

- WE LOVE YOU RON. THE JOHN HAGGARD FAMILY

STATE OF MICHIGAN
DEPARTMENT OF ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY
SUPERVISOR OF WELLS

IN THE MATTER OF

THE PETITION OF O.I.L. ENERGY CORP. FOR AN ORDER FROM THE SUPERVISOR OF WELLS ESTABLISHING A UNIFORM SPACING PLAN CONSISTENT WITH ORDER NO. (A) 14-9-94 AND COMPULSORY POOLING ALL INTERESTS INTO THE UNIT. THE PROPOSED UNIT CONSISTS OF PARTS OF SECTIONS 26, 27, 28, ALL OF SECTION 33, PARTS OF SECTIONS 34 AND 35, T32N, R4W, HUDSON TOWNSHIP, CHARLEVOIX COUNTY, MICHIGAN.

NOTICE OF HEARING

Take notice that a contested case hearing will be held before the Supervisor of Wells (Supervisor) in the city of Lansing, Michigan, on the FIFTEENTH DAY OF MAY (MAY 15) 2003, BEGINNING AT 9:00 A.M., IN THE DEPARTMENT OF ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY STEPHEN NISBET HEARING ROOM, ATRIUM LEVEL, SOUTH TOWER, CONSTITUTION HALL, 525 WEST ALLEGAN STREET, LANSING, MICHIGAN. The hearing will be conducted pursuant to Part 615, Supervisor of Wells, of the Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Act. 1994 PA 451, as amended (NREPA); MCL 324.61501 et seq.; the administrative rules, 1996 AACS, 2001 MR 2, 2002 MR 23, R 324.101 et seq., and the Administrative Procedures Act, 1969 PA 306, as amended, MCL 24.201 et seq.; MSA 3.560 (101) et seq.

The hearing is for the purpose of receiving testimony and evidence pertaining to the need or desirability of issuing an order in the matter of the petition of O.I.L. Energy Corp. (Petitioner), 954 Business Park Drive, Suite 5, Traverse City, Michigan 49686.

Petitioner seeks an order of the Supervisor, pursuant to R324.302 to establish a Uniform Spacing Plan (USP) consistent with Order No. (A) 14-9-94, and pursuant to R324.304 to compulsory pool all interests into the proposed USP. The proposed USP consists of the SW 1/4 of SE 1/4, Section 26; N 1/2 and SW 1/4, Section 27; S 1/2 and S 1/2 of NE 1/4, Section 28; all of Section 33; S 1/2, S 1/2 of N 1/2, NW 1/4 of NE 1/4 and N 1/2 of NW 1/4, Section 34; S 1/2, S 1/2 of N 1/2, N 1/2 of NE 1/4, and NE 1/4 of NW 1/4, Section 35; T32N, R4W, Hudson Township, Charlevoix County, Michigan. Take note that the final USP boundary will be determined by the Supervisor and may be different from the USP proposed.

You can obtain a copy of the written petition by requesting one in writing from Mr. Dennis T. Couturier, 954 Business Park Drive, Suite 5, Traverse City, Michigan 49686, telephone number 231-933-3600.

Take note that if you wish to participate as a party in the hearing by presenting evidence or cross-examining witnesses, you shall prepare and mail or otherwise deliver to the petitioner and Supervisor, not less that 5 days before the hearing date, an answer to the petition in the manner set forth in R 324.1204 (6f). Proof of mailing or delivering the answer shall be filed with the Supervisor on or before the date of the hearing. The answer shall state with specificity the interested person's position with regard to the petition. Failure to prepare and serve an answer in a timely manner shall preclude you from presenting evidence or cross-examining witnesses at the hearing. If an answer to the petition is not filed, the Supervisor may elect to consider the petition and enter an order without oral hearing. Mail the answer to the petition to Mr. Dennis T. Couturier at the above address, and to the Supervisor in care of the Assistant Supervisor of Wells, Mr. Harold R. Fitch, Geological and Land Management Division, P.O. Box 30256, Lansing, Michigan 48909-7756.

Take further note that you may request a change in the location of the hearing to the county in which the proposed USP is located. If the majority of the owners of the oil and gas rights, which are listed in the Petition as not voluntarily pooling their interests into the proposed USP, include in their timely filed answers a request to hold the hearing in the county where the proposed USP is located, the Assistant Supervisor of Wells shall: (i) at the time and place scheduled in this notice adjourn the scheduled hearing; (ii) reschedule the hearing for a location in such county, and (iii) provide, by first-class mail, notice of the rescheduled hearing date, time, and place, prior to the rescheduled hearing date to all persons who filed an answer in response to this notice.

Questions regarding Notice of Hearing should be directed to Ms. Susan Maul, Geological and Land Management Division, Michigan Department of Environmental Quality, P.O. Box 30256, Lansing, Michigan 48909-7756, phone 517-241-1552. Persons with disabilities needing accommodations for effective participation in this hearing should call or write Ms. Maul at least a week in advance of the hearing date to request mobility, visual, hearing or other assistance.

Senator meets with community leaders

ISSUES

— making sure year-round residents have quality affordable housing is a big concern," she said.

At the meeting, she heard comments from Bill Jackson, president of Charlevoix Area Hospital, who voiced concerns over hospital employees and other community workers who are having a hard time finding a place to live.

He told Stabenow that because workers can't find an affordable place to live, younger families often move to other communities making recruiting employees a difficult task.

Stabenow said this same problem also prompted a discussion about declining enrollment in schools. Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools Dr. John Sturock was there to address that issue.

He told Stabenow that with fewer young families being financially capable of living in Charlevoix, enrollment is declining which could result in a future budget crunch for the schools.

Stabenow said those who attended are also worried about another possible loss as a direct result of the pricey housing market — the Coast Guard.

With Charlevoix trying hard to keep the local cutter the ACACIA in its Round Lake harbor, the price of housing Coast Guard personnel may be factored into the final decision whether the boat stays, goes or is replaced.

Stabenow said she understands the need to keep the cutter here and has made lobbying in favor of its continued presence, a priority.

"There needs to be a presence here — that's crucial. I'm committed to doing whatever I can in order to help make that happen. We've got a lot of work to do," she said.

She added that the decision to remove the local cutter was made before the Sept. 11, 2001 terrorist attacks, which could work in favor of a positive outcome for Charlevoix.

"Now, given the new nature of security, I think the Coast Guard needs to take another look and change that," she said.

Stabenow said she could help the local housing crunch through two committees she works on, the Banks, Housing and Urban Development Committee and the Agricultural Committee. She said there may be financing for a housing development out there.

"There are resources that can help," she said.

In terms of other economic stimulus she discussed the possibility of a conference center locating here. She said it was explained to her that the facility would be to be used in the spring, fall and winter, Charlevoix's shoulder seasons, to promote year-round commerce.

A draft of the second part of the conference center study is complete and was presented at the meeting, which was closed to the media. City Manager Mike Wiesner said he wants to wait for a final draft of the report and to present it at a town meeting.

That meeting will be at 7 p.m., April 28, at City Hall.

Stabenow said she was particularly interested in the new library project.

"I'm very supportive of the effort to bring more technology in so there are more opportunities here in Charlevoix," she said.

In general, she said the Charlevoix meeting brought her up to speed on local issues and projects. And that she came away from it with ideas as to how she can work with the community.

After the Charlevoix meeting she traveled to North Central Michigan College where she met with local law enforcement personnel including police, fire and emergency medical service representatives to discuss Homeland Security.

Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater and City of Charlevoix Police Chief Dennis Halverson said local law enforcement concerns with the new Homeland Security program centered on two issues, guidelines and communication.

Lasater said the federal government has allocated funds to law enforcement agencies to buy equipment. However, these funds are distributed with limited guidelines.

He and others said guidelines would help get individual departments on the same page. Halverson said the federal government is currently working on these guidelines.

Communication was another issue. Lasater said he and other local law enforcement often hear about changes in the security level or wanted persons on television or in newspapers. They told Stabenow, they want to see better communication from the federal level to local authorities.

"Debbie was very receptive and seemed to want to help," he said.

The Homeland Security meeting was also closed to the media. Stabenow said the decision to close both meetings was made so those who attended could speak freely about their interests and concerns.

Legion and auxiliary to have annual spring dinner

The American Legion and its Auxiliary, Leslie T. Shapton Unit 226, of Charlevoix, will host its annual spring Salad and Casserole Benefit Dinner from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m., Tuesday, April 29, at the American Legion Post Hall.

The hall is located at 106 E. Garfield in Charlevoix and can be contacted by calling 547-9203.

The "All-You-Can-Eat-Dinner" costs $6.50 for adults, $3.50 for children ages 5 to 12 and children 5 and under eat free. Take-outs are available.

This fund-raiser by the Legion and Auxiliary is open to the public. Proceeds will assist with insurance, maintenance and repairs on the Post Home Building.

The dinner will feature ham, chicken, tuna, Polish sausage and sauerkraut, vegetable and meat casseroles, varieties of potatoes, beans, gelatin salads, and all types of other salads, vegetables, relishes and desserts.

All Post and Auxiliary members will be contacted for their contributions of food for the dinner.

If you are a member and for some reason are not contacted, or if you can assist with the dinner, please contact dinner chairmen Auxiliary President Katie Curtis at 547-6943 or First Vice President Rosalyn Goldstick at 547-2636, to assist.

State trying to minimize traffic troubles

ROAD

LexaLite's needs, Blaine Delmotte, the project foreman of H & D who MDOT has contracted with, noted peak truck traffic times.

MDOT plans to approach the project on an expedited basis, meaning they plan to work the whole 9 mile stretch at once.

Delmotte said this approach produces a cleaner job.

"There won't be a lot of hig messes. It will be put back together as it's torn up," he said.

In the city of Charlevoix, where there are four lanes to work with, two way traffic will he maintained.

"There should be no delay at all where it's four lanes. It's going to slow them down because of lane funneling. But there should be no stoppage at all," he said.

MDOT anticipates no speed reductions over the 3,100 foot city stretch of the project.

Where it narrows to one lane traffic in each direction, near Mercer Boulevard, road closings will extend a maximum of two miles with two open miles after each closing.

To address the traffic hackup concern, Felt said work will he done during daylight hours only, will not generally be done on weekends and definitely won't be done during festival times and holidays.

No detours are planned for the closed route, but motorists are encouraged to take an alternate route.

The total project cost for the Charlevoix improvement is over $3 million.

During the construction period, those with concerns about wait time or the way the project is heing done are asked to call Rise Rasch at MDOT's Traverse City Transportation Service toll free at 888-457-6368.

To check for project updates visit www.michigan.gov/mdot.

The city of Charlevoix will also be working on $50,000 in resurfacing projects to take place on Meech Street from Petoskey Avenue to Division, on Prospect from Petoskey Avenue to Dixon Avenue, Nettleton from Petoskey Avenue to Dixon Avenue and Robinson Street west of Grant Street.

Lawsuit threatened over Cemex

ley said the township can not impose requirements that make an activity illegal at the plant that is legal at similar industrial sites across the state.

Martin said the current ordinance does require permits, but the township has not actively collected and enforced those.

Along with the permit, Maddin wants to see the township collect an annual detailed operating plan that is a road map for what will be done during the year the permit is issued. He feels the current one page annual plan the township does receive from Cemex is inadequate.

Martin agreed and said the township is interested in collecting a more detailed plan.

Maddin isn't only concerned about current problems at the industrial site, he also wants to see the township plan for its future by requiring a reclamation bond.

He said the state reclamation bond that ensures funds are in place to pay for land restoration after Cemex is no longer operating there, is not enough. He wants to see the township establish its own reclamation bond.

"There are hundreds of acres that will be a wasteland if it costs more money to clean up than anyone is willing to put in," Maddin said.

Township board trustee Nancy Rajewski and township mining inspector Murray Gillis of Houghton are investigating the reclamation issue. Gillis said the current township bond is set at the $10,000 minimum.

"Which does nothing in this day and age," Gillis said of the current bond.

Martin said so far the township has been responsive to citizens' concerns by hiring Gillis and working with the DEQ.

Gillis said he is still investigating whether Cemex currently complies with the township's mining ordinance. He added ordinance is definitely outdated and the township is working to bring it up to date.

Maddin plans to follow the township board's actions and by summer to have another meeting with the board. At that time, if he is not satisfied with the board's enforcement plan, he plans to move forward with a lawsuit, hiring council out of the Traverse City area.

Environmental manager at Cemex, Michele Buckler said, "Cemex is fully committed to being a good neighbor and complying the township's ordinances."

City misses 2005 window

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Charlevoix has missed its window of opportunity for marina construction to begin any earlier than 2006.

According to John Winn, a Charlevoix resident and Chairman of the Michigan Waterways Commission, Charlevoix's municipal marina and East Park renovation projects will definitely not happen in 2005 and the earliest they could start is 2006.

Waterways is expected to help fund at least 50 percent of the marina project and city officials have expressed their hope that 75 percent of the funding could come from them. Winn said he anticipates the Charlevoix project costing between $4 and $5 million.

The level of funding Waterways will provide has not been decided, because applications for the project have not been submitted.

Winn said planning for the Charlevoix project started two years ago, at the same time planning for the Traverse City marina began and Charlevoix has "really dragged its feet."

"We don't even have applications in yet and the Traverse City marina will be dedicated in June and it was a $9 million project," he said. "We (Charlevoix) could have been started this fall if we had gotten going."

Instead of being part of the Waterways 2004 funding cycle, which includes construction this fall, the best Charlevoix can hope for is 2006.

Township officials to face recall vote May 5

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Eveline Township voters will head to the polls next week to decide the fate of two elected officials, clerk Don Hayden and supervisor Dan Skreczkoski.

After a long battle to bring the issue to a vote, the recall election will take place from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m., May 5 at the Eveline Township Hall, located at 08525 Ferry Road in East Jordan.

The recall effort started in August of 2002. Petitioners who worked to bring the issue to a vote claim they want to unseat Skreczkoski and Hayden because they have "not been responsive to the people."

Many of those working toward the recall are members of the Eveline Township Preservation Group, which has pushed for a zoning ordinance change banning wind turbine generators from the township.

But they have said this recall isn't about wind turbines, it's about things

Meeting facility considered viable

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

A consulting group found a meeting facility located in Charlevoix could thrive during the off season.

Charles Skelton, president of Hospitality Advisors Consulting Group of Ann Arbor, presented the second half of a study at a public meeting April 28 at city hall.

Skelton's consulting group initially found that such a facility would accommodate between 110 and 135 event days. But this would be if it were operational during the peak summer season as well as other times of the year.

The Downtown Development Authority (DDA) ordered this second study to focus on the facility's draw during early spring, fall and winter excluding July and August.

The intent is to bring business to Charlevoix when business is typically slow — during January through the third week of June and September through December.

After surveying event planners Skelton found that the facility could bring in between 70 and 100 event days annually. This includes social events and meetings and conferences.

Meeting planners said they would be willing to come if a facility were made available and expressed particular interest during the months of June, September and October.

The study found that 60 percent of the events a facility would accommodate would be social such as banquets, receptions and fund-raisers and 40 percent would be meeting related, such as conventions.

Fiedorek uses family business to help kids

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Charlevoix native John Fiedorek uses his business to do more than make money, he uses it as a tool to reach out to area children.

John, 41, has owned the Flight Deck Bar and Paul Bunyan Lanes since September of 1989 when he bought the business from his parents, Stan and Jean.

The bowling alley had been operated by the Fiedorek family since 1960 and the bar history stretched back to the 1920s.

In 1982 Stan and Jean came across the opportunity to purchase the attached bar. At that time, both were in their 60s and the thought of starting a new business venture was daunting. But they knew with John's help anything was possible.

At the time John was getting his feet wet in the world — trying out college and traveling coast to coast. But he said when mom and dad called he knew it was time to come home.

"My family brought me back," he said.

Since then, John said he has learned something new every day.

"I really enjoy being around people," he said.

The latest treasure he has discovered in being a business owner is the happiness that comes from helping the community and its youth. This is the same joy his parents relished during their years of ownership.

In the late 1960s Jean and Stan worked with the Bergmann Center to provide children it serviced the opportunity to bowl.

"That really is the best part of the business — being able to offer something to kids who are limited in what they can participate in," John said.

Now, John sponsors kids bowling nights and students in Char-Em Intermediate School District's programs are often at Paul Bunyan Lanes enjoying a carefree afternoon of fun.

This year, John has decided to embark on a new venture with Big Brothers Big Sisters of Northwestern Michigan — Bowl for Kids' Sake.

He started working with Big Brothers Big Sisters about 10 years ago offering free bowling coupons to groups that came in.

Last year, he learned about the bowling fund-raiser which is one

Kur, county sued again

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix County and its prosecuting attorney, Mary Beth Kur, have been sued again.

This time, two employees in Kur's office have filed a lawsuit claiming a violation of the whistle blowers act and claimed Kur has created a hostile work environment. The employees, Sandra Ward and Jacqueline Rozema are currently out on medical leave.

The lawsuit is connected with the recently settled lawsuit filed by former chief assistant prosecutor John Jarema. At the county insurance provider's insistence, the lawsuit was settled in late March with a $50,000 award to Jarema.

Earlier this winter, Ward and Rozema filed a complaint with the Charlevoix County Commission's Personnel Committee claiming Kur had created a hostile work environment in the prosecuting attorney's office. At a meeting with the committee, the two women said Kur harassed them because they gave depositions in the John Jarema case.

Kur denied this. The county commissioners on the committee found that the conditions in the prosecutor's office were bad, but ruled the women were not being harassed because they were not being discriminated against. Plus, because Kur is an elected official, the committee said legally they have no say in what happens in her office.

The committee suggested the women find positions elsewhere in the county building. The committee

OPINIONS

Is it a just recall or about one issue?

Jeremy McBain

'Just a thought'

While recalls are nasty, distasteful business in American democracy, let's examine this issue as a tool of democracy.

First let's talk about the negatives of a recall.

The Charlevoix Schools went through one just a few years ago over the school board's decision to build a new high school on Marion Center Road. There are still a few people in town who will not talk to each other because of it.

Recalls divide a community and a majority of the time, they are based on one issue and pushed by a group concerned about one issue. Essentially, most recalls are started because a special interest group does not like a decision by an elected board.

Recalls are always sad periods in the history of any community.

Plus, recalls seem to be used too frequently in our communities. It almost seems that whenever someone doesn't like something their local government decides, they start talking recall.

Take for example a decision by the Charlevoix City Council around December to not give funding to the Charlevoix Community Pool.

Some people in the community were ticked. Even though many of the council members they were mad at had just been elected or are facing reelection next year, recall talk surfaced.

Thankfully, it hasn't come to fruition...at least not yet.

It used to be that when someone didn't like what their local government was doing they would run for office. That doesn't seem to be the case anymore.

What ever happened to people deciding to run against an incumbent in office?

For some reason, many people find it is very easy to say their elected officials are crooks, but not so easy to have the courage to run against them.

Now let's discuss positive aspects of recalls.

If used properly, a recall can remove an elected official who has committed a crime or done a series of extremely reprehensible acts which come close to breaking the law. Those acts are usually not based on one subject and affect a majority of the people of the community this elected official represents.

For example, let's say you have a township board member who keeps giving all the plum township construction contracts to his buddies. Let's say this same township board member starts dismissing the good of the township in his decisions and starts trying to pass ordinances that hurt the community to appease these buddies.

To make matters worse, let's say this township board member starts routinely breaking the Open Meetings Act and refuses to give up public information to the public.

Here we have a perfect case for a recall that would be just.

On the other hand, let's say we have an upstanding township board and a toxic waste disposal company wants to relocate to this fictional township. But, the township board says they can't because of ordinances and the good of the community.

So then, this toxic waste company starts a recall petition.

Here we have a misuse of the recall tool.

Basically, I have a dislike for recalls. I think the negatives outweigh the cons in most cases.

Furthermore, I think if people dislike their government, they should run against seated officials in regular elections.

But, what I think is meaningless most of the time. Recalls will still happen in this community and many others. In fact, there is a recall election happening next week in Eveline Township.

So, taking this pro and con approach to recalls, let's consider the Eveline Township recall that is taking place.

I am not going to take a position on the recall, but I will ask you this:

- Is this a just recall? Is this a recall over one issue or do these two township officials deserve it?
- Do we have a situation where public officials committed a crime or a series of extremely reprehensible acts?
- Is this recall worthy of the divisiveness that it will create in the community?

If you think it is, by all means vote yes. If you think it isn't, vote no.

No matter what the outcome of this recall election, I encourage those who were pushing for it to consider running for public office.

If you think the government is representing you wrongly, then perhaps the government needs someone like you.

Be patriotic, but keep the health of your trees in mind

Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

Arbor Day is upon us and it's time to talk about trees.

Most of Arbor Day emphasis has been on the planting of trees, but the protection and care of trees is equally high on the agenda. We also need to talk about the relationship of tree health to yellow ribbons.

Among the first ordinances passed by the governing body of the village of Charlevoix after its incorporation was one that forbade tying your horse to any streetside tree. What the city fathers had in mind was the protection of the hundreds of young maples they had bought and planted along the city streets. They knew that it is uncommonly easy to damage the soft, new bark of such trees, and wanted to be sure that their investment in the long-term future of Charlevoix was protected.

With the very best of patriotic intention, our community has recently followed the words of the old song (I think Civil War) to "Tie a yellow ribbon 'round the old oak tree." Our ribbons have been tied in many cases with a wrapping of thin, green wire. The important word in the old song is not "tree" or "oak" but "old." You can wrap thin wire around an old tree without much thought to damage. A young tree with smooth, tender bark will indeed be damaged, maybe severely, by wrapping a piece of wire around it and leaving it there. As the tree puts out new leaves in the spring, the trunk begins to grow rapidly in diameter. If there is a wire around it, the wire will cut into the new growth, causing some serious disruption of the transport of important things from leaves to roots.

Please do not consider it unpatriotic to remove a wire-bound

Letters to the editor

Vote yes on recall

Editor:

On Monday, May 5, I urge you to go to the polls and vote "yes" to recall Eveline Township Supervisor Dan Skrzeczkoski and Township Clerk Don Hayden.

The following are some of the reasons why Mr. Hayden should be recalled. In just one set of meeting minutes, 10 corrections were made. He has written misleading and intentionally incomplete newspaper notices, continuing even after the errors were pointed out to him. He shows a lack of respect for the citizens he is supposed to represent by his sarcastic comments, going as far as to tell one citizen to "sit down and shut up."

A few months ago, Don resigned as the recording secretary to the Planning Commission. I think he stopped one resignation too short. Vote "yes" to recall Don Hayden as Township Clerk.

One of Supervisor Dan Skrzeczkoski's campaign issues was to improve communications and "to maintain a good working relationship with .... the residents of Eveline Township. Your comments, concerns, suggestions, and yes, even complaints are important to me because I believe .... we are here to serve our residents."

Although Mr. Skrzeczkoski campaigned on having better communication with the people, it has not happened. When the board was asked by a landowner about installing wind turbine generators, it was decided they needed to write an ordinance so they put a six month moratorium in place. This was good. But, was any word sent to the citizens of Eveline about this writing of a new ordinance concerning a huge new project? No. Not in the newsletter, which is sent out at least semi-annually and not in person, although I live only 1 mile down the road from Dan. No one knew anything about this "stealth" ordinance until it had been passed and incorrectly noticed in the newspaper.

When 250 letters were sent requesting a renotice and new hearing on the ordinance, they were ignored, until finally a lawsuit was filed. At this point, the great communicator, Dan, cut off any discussion with those concerned and did all he could to discourage or ignore them at meetings, including directing the Planning Commission members not to speak with them about wind turbines. Does this sound like improved communication?

Dan likes to say he has followed the letter of the law, but we have legal counsel that disagrees. He has definitely not followed the spirit of the law which would have allowed him to better represent the interests of the citizens who elected him.

For these reasons, I urge you to vote "yes" to recall Dan Skrzeczkoski and Don Hayden.

Vote no on recall

Editor:

To the voters of Eveline Township. Vote "no" on the recall election for Dan Skrzcczkoski, Supervisor and Don Hayden, Clerk.

Speaking from the past 25 years, as trustee and supervisor of Eveline Township, I believe for the past three years Dan Skzeczkoski has done a good job and has been hard working as supervisor of Eveline Township. He researches issues thoroughly and acts on them lawfully and honestly.

Dan served the township as trustee for 12 years before being elected supervisor and I believe he has a good knowledge of the issues concerning the township. Dan is doing a good job in regards to road issues. He conducts orderly meetings while allowing input from the audience with pertinent concerns.

Don Hayden has been the township clerk for six years and in my opinion is doing a good job. Don served as zoning administrator before being elected clerk and did a good job in that position also. Don has always been available when information is asked of him. Don has also served as secretary of the Zoning Board of Appeals, Planning Commission and the Charlevoix County Chapter of Michigan Township Associations. He keeps on being reappointed to or reelected to these jobs. He must be doing something right.

The issue of Wind Turbine Generators has been resolved after months of research and work by the planning commission, township board, township planner and township attorney. The resulting ordinance regarding turbines gives the township board and the planning commission very good guide lines to control turbines in Eveline Township. The issue of the rezone of property along Brock Road has also been resolved, it was turned down by the Charlevoix County Planning Commission, Eveline Township Planning Commission and the Eveline Township Board.

I would strongly urge you, the voters of Eveline Township, vote "no" on the recall election on May 5.

Vote yes on recall

Editor:

Should the Eveline Township recall efforts push on? Yes! Why? Because Township Supervisor Dan Skrzeczkoski and Clerk Don Hayden do not have the best interests of the citizens in mind. In Dan's case, many of these are the same citizens who campaigned for and helped elect him to the position he currently holds.

They don't seem to like conflict. That's a bad thing not to like if you get involved with politics. When 250 township residents signed letters of concern about wind turbine generators and began attending township meetings, it was as though we were throwing a monkey wrench into their operation. What has happened since is that Skrzeezkoski has cut off all communications with dissenting residents.

When he didn't get his way with the wind turbine generators, he went to a property owner that had requested them and suggested that he have his property rezoned to R-4, high density housing. Why? Because of conflict. This would provide a way to get back at those who were in opposition to his policies. I now feel that he is no longer a suitable choice for township supervisor.

Township Clerk Don Hayden is also not a good choice any longer. He, too, has problems with conflict. He does not provide minutes or agendas to citizens who have requested them, even in writing. He has admitted to writing the minutes at meetings the way he thinks they should be done, leav-ribbon from any of our young trees. Put the ribbon around the nearest power pole or street light support. Charlevoix's founding fathers knew what they were talking about. A wire around the trunk of a young tree can be at least as damaging as tying a horse to it. The damage from a tightly wrapped wire cannot easily be undone. Let's get those ribbons off the trees before new growth begins.

Some time ago I wrote about trying to find any trees in Charlevoix that predated settlement. There have been some candidates, but I haven't found any trees yet that are much more than 100 years old. That is old for a tree, but since the clearing of the area and settlement were well under way before 1870, we need to find a tree, not planted by the hand of man that was at least a few years old when the Civil War began. I'm still looking.

In honor of Arbor Day and as a gift to the distant future, plant a tree somewhere this spring. Don't expect to sit in its shade. Trees are almost always planted for generations not yet born.

Give your grandchildren a gift. Plant a tree.

ing out parts he feels are not necessary and subtly editorializing others. This may have been okay 50 years ago, but things are not that easy any more. At one meeting, he told a citizen to "sit down and shut up." This is America. The right to stand and speak at a public meeting is a right that Americans have fought and died for over hundreds of years.

The reasons I have given in this letter are why the voters of Eveline Township should vote "yes" on May 5 to recall Supervisor Dan Skrzeczkoski and Clerk Don Hayden. Remember, anybody can be replaced. Let's make sure they are!

Vote no on recall

Editor:

We have a recall election coming up and I urge you to vote "no" on the recall of the supervisor and the clerk.

I think a recall campaign is one of the most divisive things that can happen in a community. I believe the only time a recall should happen is when there is a criminal action or a criminal intent. Neither of these has occurred. Everything, every action taken by the township boards, has been legal. The township attorneys have so stated.

A focus group takes one or two items and beats them to death without regard to what else is happening. If blame is to be laid it should be on the preservation group. They have used delaying tactics month after month. At every meeting they have gone over the same subjects time after time. This has created many hardships on the boards. They needed many more meetings to accomplish the very goals that the group wanted.

If they feel so strongly about issues they should pick a candidate and run him or her at the next election and do things in an ordered and democratic way.

I for one have heard enough half truths and innuendos to last me a lifetime.

The supervisor and the clerk are dedicated people and they don't need to be recalled. They have done a good job representing the total population of Eveline Township. I urge you to vote "no" on the recall.

As a long time former resident of the Chicago, Ill. area, I am aware of how a local government can be taken over by a few people for their own benefit and the financial gain of their supporters.

Our community is not exempt from the same problem that plagues any community that ignores the majority of voters who are responsible for their election.

When a small control group takes over the administration and documentation of local ordinances that will change an entire community, they must not stonewall the complaints of those neighbors who might be adversely affected.

Recall Skrzeczkoski and Hayden!

Thank you firefighters

Editor:

We would like to extend our heartfelt thanks to the men and women firefighters from several fire companies who responded to the brush fire in Marion Township on Monday, April 14.

This fire came precariously close to our home and the resolve of all the hardworking firefighters kept our home from being involved in a potentially horrific fire.

We sincerely salute you for your hard work and dedication to your craft. We know that many of you are volunteers who selflessly donate your time to help your fellow citizens and neighbors. God Bless you all.

This year we celebrate the thirtieth anniversary of National Volunteer Appreciation Week, April 27 through May 3. The Retired and Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) of Charlevoix and Emmet Counties, administered by the Friendship Centers of Emmet County has over 280 volunteers, who over the past year have generously volunteered over 39,000 hours.

These volunteers make a difference in nearly every aspect of society such as the environment, health care, monitoring, the arts and our senior centers. Our volunteers not only save non-profits resources, they enhance our way of life.

We are thankful for their efforts and appreciate all they do. Hats off to all our wonderful volunteers, we appreciate you every day.

Esme E. Beals, 79, formerly of Charlevoix, died April 24, 2003.

Beals was born March 12, 1924 in Saginaw. She was a member of Grace Fellowship Church of Haslett and a resident of Haslett for the past 10 years.

She loved music, singing and laughing.

Beals was preceded in death by her husband, Earl W. Crandall former police officer from Charlevoix.

Surviving are one daughter, Deborah Crandall of Lansing; two sons, Ronald Crandall of Lansing and Scott (Jeri) Crandall of Texas; step-son, Rodger (Jeannne) Crandall of Texas; six grandchildren; six great-grandchildren; one brother, Jack Blohm of Bay City; one sister, Lucy Leighton of Flint; many nieces and nephews and former husband, Charles Beals of Pennsylvania. Cremation has taken place. A memorial service will take place at a later date. The family is being served by the Gorsline-Runciman Co. Lansing Chapel.

Franklin C. Cellner: Dec. 7, 1925 - April 24, 2003

Franklin C. "Runt" Cellner, 77, of Charlevoix, died Thursday, April 24, 2003, at Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey.

A funeral was Monday, April 28, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The Rev. Harold E. Kruse officiated and burial was in Brookside Cemetery.

Franklin was born Dec. 7, 1925, in Marion Township, Charlevoix County, the son of August and Ida (Pierce) Cellner. He served in the U.S. Army during World War II.

On January 24, 1948, he married the former Irene Sutliff in Charlevoix. Franklin was a dairy farmer and farming was his vocation. He retired from Medusa Portland Cement Company in 1990, after over 20 years.

He was a member of Charlevoix County Farm Bureau and Charlevoix County Soil Conservation, the Michigan Milk Producers Association and was 4-H leader. He was also a member of the American Legion Leslie T. Shapton Post 226, the Barnard Grange and the Charlevoix Senior Center.

Franklin is survived by his wife Irene; daughters, Judy (William) Goldsmith of Petoskey, Sandra (David) Jeltema of Rockford, and Laurie Cellner of Ann Arbor; grandchildren, Matthew, Adam, David, Brett and Erin; great-grandchildren, Marcus and Zachary.

He was preceded in death by his parents; brothers, Kenneth and Charles; sisters Irene and Marion.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Barnard Grange, or to the Charlevoix Senior Center (Building Fund).

Fern Mae Clark: Died Jan. 21, 2003

Fern Mae Clark, 75, of Charlevoix, died Jan. 21, 2003, in Leesburg, Fla.

A memorial graveside service will be at 1 p.m., Saturday, May 3, at Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Robert G. Craig: Sept. 8, 1923 - April 24, 2003

Robert G. Craig of Ann Arbor and Charlevoix, died April 24, 2003 at 79 years of age.

He was born Sept. 8, 1923 in Charlevoix, the son of H.A. and Ione (Swinton) Craig.

On Sept. 29, 1945 he married Georgine Dean.

They have three daughters: Susan Craig, Barbara (Jack Burgess) Craig and Katherine Craig. He is also survived by two grandchildren; Allyssa and Andrew Burgess and two sisters; Martha Wigglesworth and Marion Rogers.

Robert was a professor at University of Michigan Dental School from 1957 until becoming professor emeritus in 1993. He was a world-renowned author and educator. He was truly a well-rounded man who loved his profession, his friends and his family.

Funeral services were Tuesday, April 29, at the Muehlig Funeral Chapel in Ann Arbor. Internment followed at Washtenong Cemetery.

Memorials suggested to the Alzheimer's Association, American Heart Association or Towsley Village of Chelsea.

John Cornelius Eckhold, III: Sept. 28, 1979 - April 20, 2003

John Cornelius Eckhold, III, of Midland died Sunday April 20, 2003 in East Lansing.

John was born in Bay City Sept. 28, 1979 the loving son of John and Margaret (Peggy) Eckhold. He was a graduate of Herbert H. Dow High School in Midland and was a senior at Michigan State University completing a bachelor of arts degree in psychology.

John was an accomplished athlete in hockey, baseball and skiing. Always loving and loyal to his family and friends John had a big heart and was giving of himself and generous to all who knew him.

John will be loved and missed by his parents John and Peggy; sister Erin and brother Patrick; his cat, Hobie; grandmothers Barbara Eckhold of Charlevoix and Madeline Slykerman of Taylor; Uncle Scott and Aunt Carrie Eckhold and cousins Reed and Duncan of Petoskey; Uncle Dennis and Aunt Gail Manthey and cousins Chris Reynolds and Chad Manthey of Wyandotte; Uncles Thomas Slykerman of Taylor, James Slykerman of Hollywood, Fla. and numerous cousins and good friends.

He was predeceased by grandfathers John Eckhold, Sr. and Francis Slykerman.

A funeral Mass for John was Friday, April 24, at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. John Johnson celebrated the Mass with burial that followed in Charlevoix Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were made through Winchester Funeral Home. Contributions should be directed to the John C. Eckhold, III Endowed Scholarship Fund at the Midland Area Community Foundation, PO Box 289, Midland, MI 48640.

Mary Keith Freyhof Morris: Sept. 4, 1924 - April 21, 2003

Mary Keith Freyhof Morris, 78, of Charlevoix, died April 21, 2003 at Boulder Park Terrace Nursing Home in Charlevoix.

A funeral was given Friday, April 25, at Christ Episcopal Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. James Gunn officiated and burial was in Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Keith was born Sept. 4, 1924, in Cincinnati, the daughter of Dr. William and Mary (Owens Keith) Freyhof.

She graduated from Wellesley College in Massachusetts in 1946. On Dec. 14, 1946, she married Joseph G. Morris, II, in Cincinnati, and he preceded her in death on August 30, 1982.

Keith was a member of the Christ Episcopal Church in Charlevoix, was a devoted wife and mother and loved flowers, golf, bridge, church and entertaining.

She cherished her children and grandchildren. She believed you only needed three things in life: love, faith, and a sense of humor. But above all, she was a lady.

She is survived by her son, Joseph G. (Nancy) Morris III of Cincinnati, Ohio; daughters, Mary (James) Larimer of Granville, Ohio, and Melissa (Floyd) Mishoe of Winter Park, Fla.; seven grandchildren; sister, Betty Johnson of Cincinnati, Ohio.

Contributions to Christ Episcopal Church or Charlevoix Area Hospital. The family is being served by the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

City may buy old middle school alone

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

The City of Charlevoix may go in alone and purchase the former Charlevoix Middle School property located off Grant Street.

At a special meeting of Charlevoix's Downtown Development Authority (DDA) that took place April 28, city manager Mike Wiesner offered the DDA some food for thought.

Wiesner told the board that it could under Act 99 of Michigan law buy the property using loans. Act 99 allows a municipality to borrow up to a certain percentage of its taxable value. This is the same way $1.5 million of the Bridge Park project was paid for and $200,000 of the airport terminal renovation was funded.

"We have the ability to borrow at the asking price that is going around," Wiesner said.

The 13 lots, which include the school have been appraised at $835,000. Verbal offers for the school property that have come from the private sector have ranged between $560,000 and $750,000.

Wiesner said he feels this purchase fits with a potential DDA project because of its goal to keep the property in public ownership.

The DDA agreed to consider this option and said it was a good way to buy the city and library some time.

It voted unanimously in favor of requesting that the school board extend the May 31 deadline for making an offer on the property to July 1 to give it time to sort through the Act 99 option.

Wiesner spoke with Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools Sr. John Sturock who said the issue will be brought to the school board at its May 12 meeting.

The DDA then met again at 5:30 p.m., April 29 to discuss the property acquisition and negotiation guidelines. Results from that meeting were not available by press time.

At a April 24 meeting between the DDA and the library's board and building committee two things were clear. One, the library needs a new facility set on a larger site, but doesn't have money to buy the middle school property. And secondly, the city needs to find property near downtown to use for marina overflow parking.

At that meeting the library requested that the DDA buy the middle school property and sell it to back to the library at a low rate.

"We are coming before you asking for big bucks. But we feel you support us. I think if we work together we can preserve the old middle school," library board member May Anne Chew said.

Chew explained that if and when a millage vote passed, the library would buy the property back from the city.

At that time the DDA's support waned somewhat with the library's request for "big bucks."

Wiesner said, "Quite frankly, this is money the DDA doesn't have."

He suggested that the school would likely be receptive to a joint offer from the DDA and library with some money down.

"I don't get the impression it would be a lot," he said.

He said the way to go might be a nonrefundable down payment that would be applied to the purchase should the vote pass.

Mason suggested the DDA front the money for the three lots it needs for parking as the down payment.

But at the next special meeting the Act 99 mechanism of funding became the key player with the city buying all the property and making a sidebar agreement with the library to acquire the property it needs.

Wiesner anticipates this agreement including shared costs of utilities and maintenance before the building project gets underway.

"This would get the school out of the property business, would give the DDA control of the property and would work with the library toward the ultimate goal of public ownership," Wiesner said.

DDA member Dan Barron said he sees benefits for the community with this option.

"In order to give the library the opportunity to move forward with plans we have to ensure the property remains available," he said.

And chairman Hugh Mason said if the DDA and library "dilly dally" too long the school may sell it.

The Act 99 decision requires city council approval.

Library building committee member Connie Saltonstall said the library board and building committee hope that if the city buys the property it will swap the library for its current site which has been appraised at $595,000.

In the past Wiesner has suggested that the library dispose of the property on its own.

Big Rock union rep moving on to new job

Jeff Bakker has been part of Consumers Energy's Big Rock Point Restoration Project's team for 22 years.

Now he's moving on – and up.

Bakker has accepted a full-time position as a National Representative for the Utility Workers Union of America. He will be handling contract negotiations and administration, grievances, arbitrations and some organizing from his Charlevoix home and during meetings at utilities around Region 4. He officially leaves Big Rock Point in mid-April.

"The job is going to be a good challenge for me," Bakker said, noting that he'll be dealing with a greater number of people and industries than he did as President of Utility Workers Union of America Local 346. In addition to Consumers Energy representatives, he will be coming to the table with county, road commission and water works officials.

Bakker has represented union members at Big Rock Point since being elected Local 346 president in the mid-1980s. In August 1991, he was elected vice president of the Michigan State Utility Workers Council, a part-time position. Since then, he's split his duties between working at the plant and decommissioning project and union responsibilities.

In the new non-elected position, he will oversee 46 local unions in 11 states, including Michigan. The announcement of his departure from Big Rock Point was met with mixed emotions.

"My first reaction when I heard he was leaving was 'Oh, that's terrible, oh, that's wonderful,'" said Ellen Zienert, Big Rock Point human resources director. "He's just a great human being. I consider him a friend, and I wish him well."

In accepting the national position, Bakker will resign as Local 346 president. Vice president Ron Siwarga, also a Big Rock Point employee, will serve as acting president until the next election is held.

Big Rock Point was the world's first high power-density boiling water reactor and an important research site for the nuclear power industry. The plant was shut down on Aug. 29, 1997, after 35 years of service; making it the nation's longest running nuclear plant. Big Rock Point was named a Nuclear Historic Landmark by the American Nuclear Society because of its many contributions to the nuclear and medical communities.

PUBLIC HEARING NOTICE

The City of Charlevoix City Council will hold a public hearing on Monday, May 19, 2003 at 7:00 p.m. at City Hall, 210 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan 49720 regarding proposed amendments to Chapter 51, Zoning and Planning of the City Code.

It is proposed to make subsection 5.12(7) of the Charlevoix City Code relating to the yard projections and encroachments a regulatory provision of the Code, renumbering it as Section 5.173. It is also proposed that building eaves may project into a front, side or rear yard for a distance of 24 inches.

It is also proposed to amend Section 5.92 (18) of the City Code, which addresses second and third story individual apartment units in the CDB. Section 5.92(19) is proposed to be deleted in its entirety.

A complete copy of the proposed amendment language is available at the City Planner/Zoning Administrator's Office.

Interested citizens can make comments at the public hearing or written comments may be sent to the City Clerk's Office, 210 State Street, P.O. Box 550, Charlevoix, Michigan.

Murdick's students donate to library

Marci Murdick's first grade students, the "M&Ms," love to read and love their community.

The Quiltmakers, a Charlevoix Quilting group offered to donate a quilt to the Charlevoix Elementary School. Each square would represent a classroom that fulfilled a community service project. The students fulfilled their project by collecting money to donate to the Charlevoix Public Library.

"I was delighted by their choice," Val Meyerson, director of the Charlevoix Public Library, said.

Meyerson purchased two new children's books for the Library in honor of Murdick's students: "Beautiful Blackbird," by Ashley Bryan and "Millions to Measure," by David Schwartz.

Meyerson brought the books and read them aloud to Murdick's students.

"They really seemed to like the choices I made," she said.

Bergmann Center to have Starlight dinner

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

The Bergmann Center is hosting its First Annual Starlight Dinner, Dance and Auction.

The benefit will help fund the center's operational expenses and community integration program.

"The money will help make our clients' wishes come true," Suzanne Muma, executive director of the Bergmann Center, said. "It's important in order for us to provide quality services. The center is always striving to give them the best we can — quality services and quality of life."

Muma said the non-profit organization was founded in 1965 to provide services that enable the mentally and physically challenged to become active, involved members of the community.

The center currently serves 52 people from Emmet and Charlevoix counties providing them community integration and work skills to help them get into competitive employment. Training includes teaching of daily living skills in an attempt to help each personachieve independence.

Area residents and visitors are asked to help the center meet its goals by attending the Starlight evening and enjoying good food, dancing and a spirited live auction lead by auctioneer Sam Kosc.

The event will begin at 6 p.m., May 1 when the cash bar at Giuseppe's Italian Grille opens. Dinner will be at 7 p.m. and the auction is expected to begin by 8 p.m.

Some of the many unique items that have been donated by area businesses include: golf packages, a Persian rug and an overnight trip to Mackinac Island.

The center also hosts an annual garage sale, which will take place in August this year, bake sales and Pizza Hut tip nights to help make financial ends meet.

The nonprofit service provider currently runs on an annual budget under $500,000. The majority of its funding is derived through North Country Community Mental Health, Char-Em United Way and public and private donations.

Muma said these fund-raisers are especially important with the bleak status of the state economy.

She said budget cuts at the state level will likely impact the center.

"The future for us is unknown at this time," she said. "Our operating expenses continue to increase with utilities and insurance. Yet the revenue is not coming in."

Over the past three years the center has also lost workshop revenue it derived from placing clients in the work force. Muma said with the closing of some local plants and downsizing at others, fewer opportunities are available.

And Muma said that means the center has to look more toward fund-raisers to make up for the lost revenue.

They have not set a dollar figure goal, but auction coordinator Kim Brock said, "The stars are the limit."

There are 45 tickets still available for the event. To purchase tickets contact Aimee VanderArk at 547-2979.

Annual breast cancer walk to be May 10

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

On May 10, Charlevoix residents and visitors will participate in the Sue DeYoung/Judy Edger Memorial Breast Cancer Walk, a 2.5 mile trek through Charlevoix to support the fight against cancer.

One in every eight women is the victim of breast cancer. Sue DeYoung and Judy Edger are two, well-known Charlevoix women who lost their battle with the disease in the 1990s.

DeYoung was a young mother of four when she died in 1992 and Edger, an ardent supporter of the fight against breast cancer and a mother of two, succumbed to the disease in 1999.

Charlevoix residents and area visitors have since decided to become proactive and fight back.

This year, proceeds from the walk will be placed in the Charlevoix Area Memorial Cancer Fund established through the Charlevoix County Community Foundation. The board will distribute those funds throughout the year to assist in meeting the needs of cancer sufferers right here in Charlevoix.

Since its beginning, nine years ago, the walk has raised over $100,000 for the American Cancer Society and cancer research. But, difficulty tracking the funds through the cancer society prompted the decision to open the local fund. Now, each dollar donated assists a Charlevoix area resident.

A portion of the funds raised are used for immediate support and part go toward building an endowment, which will help ensure that financial resources are available for this important work into the future.

This year, the board gave grants to institutions and people that met requirements for assistance. These included the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency to fund advertising costs for breast and cervical screening, Camp Quality and Hospice of Northwest Michigan who then made individual donations to cancer patients in need.

"The primary purpose is to meet the needs of cancer patients," Linda Moore, a member of the Charlevoix Area Memorial Cancer Fund Board, said.

A donation to this cause for endowment building, qualifies for a special State of Michigan tax credit in addition to the standard income tax deduction.

Last year the walk raised over $20,000 and the board is hoping to meet that number again this year.

The walk begins with registration at 8:30 a.m. which will be accompanied by musical entertainment provided by the Northwest Academy Jazz Band.

Sneakers hit the pavement at 9 a.m. To participate, meet up with fellow walkers in Charlevoix's East Park, off Bridge Street in the central business district.

Donation forms are available in Charlevoix at Vacation Properties Network located at 203 Bridge Street and the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce located at 408 Bridge Street or at the East Jordan and Boyne City chambers.

For those who can't make the walk, but would like to donate to the fund, make checks payable to the Charlevoix County Community Foundation with a memo to the Charlevoix Area Memorial Cancer Fund and mail it to, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, 507 Water Street, East Jordan, MI 49727.

Legion not requesting donations by telephone

Several citizens in the Boyne City area have received calls from telephone solicitors advising they are representing American Legion Auxiliary and requesting donations.

According to Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater, the Boyne City American Legion Auxiliary advises this is an unfounded solicitation and the American Legion Auxiliary do not use telephone solicitations.

If citizens receive calls of this nature, please deny any requests for contributions, Lasater said.

Wheelway to open with biking event

Join the Top of Michigan Trail's Council and the Charlevoix Area Convention and Visitor's Bureau in the annual National Trails Day ride on June 7 on the Charlevoix-Bay Harbor segments of the Little Traverse Wheelway.

Bicyclists all around the county will be riding on this date to promote this year's theme of "Healthy Trails, Healthy People."

The Trails Council, an advocacy group for trails in an eight county area of northern Michigan, endorses the health benefits that using trails can bring.

The ride also marks the first formal event along the 7.6-mile Charlevoix-West Park (Bay Harbor) segment of the Wheelway that was dedicated last October.

"We're anxious for the public to use this trail and see how beautiful it is," Jerry Corley, a Top of Michigan Trail's Council board member, said.

"We hope for a big turnout on the inaugural ride."

Registration for the ride will take place from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m., at Shanahan Field in Charlevoix Township.

All travel will be along the paved Little Traverse Wheelway between the start point and anywhere along the trail that the riders choose to turn around.

To participate, riders must register up to the start point on ride day.

The cost is $10 per person or $25 per family by May 23 or $15 each and $35 per family after May 23.

All registrants will receive T-shirts and will be eligible for prizes.

For more information call Jerry Corley at (231) 547-1945 or the Charlevoix Area Convention and Visitor's Bureau at (800) 367-8557.

There is also a registration form on the group's web site at www.topofmichigantrails.com.

Mail registration with your payment to: Top of Michigan Trails Council, 445 East Mitchell Street, Petoskey, MI 49770.

Beaver Island School play

Beaver Island Community School will have a fifth and sixth grader's play, "The Vile Veterinarian." This melodrama will be performed at 7 p.m., Friday, May 2 at the Holy Cross Hall on Beaver Island. Proceeds from the play will help finance the trip to Camp Hayo-Went-Ha for 15 students later in May. The students are: (Front, from left) Briana Maudrie, Lindsey Kenwabikise, Alexandra Kuligoski, Cassie Paisley, Jenna Butler, Kristy Bousquet, (back) Maeve Green, Ceven Cook, Hannah Connor, Caitlin Boyle, Signe Thomas, Bryan Timsak, Cameron LaVasseur, Cereck McDonough and Patrick Cull. City discussing benefits of meeting facility training and continuing education.

MEETINGS

Meeting events last from two to three days with each attendee spending between $220 and $240 a day. Social events typically are 1 to 1.5 days with attendees spending $90 to $100 a day.

With these numbers, Skelton said the group found the facility would bring an economic impact to the area of about $6 million a year in the 70 event scenario and $8 million a year if 100 events were planned.

"This would be a regional impact with the bulk of that felt here in Charlevoix," he said.

Mayor Gabe Campbell asked if the bulk of the events are social events what impact another facility would have on private entities who currently service this need like the Knights of Columbus, Dunmaglas, the Charlevoix Country Club and Castle Farms.

Skelton said the study did not get into private competition.

"That certainly is an issue. There is no doubt about it. The intent is not to take away business, but to create business in the community," Skelton told Campbell.

DDA member John Yaroch asked what would make this facility competitive with Bay Harbor and Grand Traverse Resort.

Skelton said during the survey process he found Charlevoix has a mystique other communities do not have which stems from its small town atmosphere and natural beauty.

"When talking about Charlevoix you almost get a warm, fuzzy feeling from people," he said. "The whole town of Charlevoix is like a resort."

The study looked at three possible sites for the facility, the Bridge Street Inn Bed and Breakfast, a city owned parcel west of the Weathervane Restaurant off the Pine River Channel and the Charlevoix Middle School.

Both the channel site and the bed and breakfast were found to be locationally appropriate.

"We believe the middle school site is located too far from major thoroughfares, downtown amenities and the guest room supply," the report's authors state.

However, both downtown sites also have their limitations. The study found the inn is a very tight site and would require costly parking as would the channel site.

"If the facility were serving 200-300 people for an event problems could arise," the report's authors state.

And this is precisely the size advocated by the consulting group. The authors of the study suggest constructing a facility that is 8,000 square feet that can accommodate a minimum of 200-300 event attendees.

However, Skelton said it is a toss up between the two sites as to which would work better.

The group found construction of this facility with underground parking would cost $2.2 million, excluding the cost of purchasing the site. He estimated construction taking one year. And said the social events would roll in immediately with meetings stabilizing in four to five years.

Charlevoix City Manager Mike Wiesner said he has no idea where construction funding would come from.

If 70 event days were scheduled Skelton's group estimated a shortfall in revenue of $20,000 before debt service and if 100 events were accommodated a possible profit of $40,000 a year available to pay on the debt.

"It certainly wouldn't be a wise private investment because you can't service the debt," Wiesner said.

DDA member Dan Barron said you can't always look at a facility generating enough money to pay the debt you also have to look at what it will do for commerce.

Skelton did not know how many facilities of this type are publicly owned in northern Michigan.

Key components of the facility's success that were discussed include: hotel guest room coordination, effective marketing and the creation of more off season events to stimulate interest and create activity for meeting/event attendees including shops and restaurants being open.

"What would kill the facility would be to have groups come to town and all the doors are locked," Skelton said.

Now, Skelton said the community needs to identify whether the potential investment is worth the return.

Conference center committee members, which include members of the DDA, city council, the Convention and Visitors Bureau and the chamber of commerce will meet at 4 p.m., April 30 at city hall to discuss the results.

PUBLIC NOTICE

If it's not in the newspaper, how will the public notice?

Zoning changes. Tax increases. Legislative proposals. These are just a few topics where government actions can affect your life and community. Imagine if government no longer had the legal obligation to publish this information in your newspaper. How would public notices get noticed? In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. It should not be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look, when to look or even to know what you're looking for to be informed. It is government's responsibility to publish and deliver public notice information as it becomes available. So take notice. Your right to know is being served... right here in your newspaper.

Supervisor, clerk fighting recall

moving in a different direction.

"This recall is not about wind turbine generators, but about them not being responsive and representing the interests of township residents," Nancy Ferguson, a member of the preservation group and an ardent opponent of wind turbine generators in northwest Michigan, said.

"There are elected officials that get by versus those that do the maximum to help people. I don't think they want to go the extra mile for their residents. We need to get someone in there that is responsive to us."

The preservation group saw the township moving in a direction it didn't agree with in October of 2001, when the township zoning ordinance was changed to include wind turbine generators. The next month a wind turbine project proposal for property near Ferry and Brock roads was submitted and the group started its fight against what it saw as a project that would bring negative ramifications for area residents.

"You don't buy in a farm area to have industry next to you," Ferguson said.

A lawsuit filed by the resident group against the board, this recall campaign and major zoning ordinance changes have since kept the board and residents busy.

Changes that have been made to the master plan and zoning ordinance are Skreczkoski and Hayden's primary example of how they have been responsive to residents' concerns.

"We held another public hearing and produced another ordinance. We didn't ignore them, we did exactly what they asked us to do," Skreczkoski said.

Hayden said, "We created a zoning ordinance revision that addresses wind turbine generator questions and problems. I seriously doubt we will ever see wind turbines in Eveline Township because of the restrictions and controls we put on it."

But their work to change the ordinance and make it more restrictive isn't enough to change the minds of some residents about the officials. Ferguson said the resident group and the planning commission are to be credited for the changes.

"If it hadn't been for us, they would have never looked at it. Have we produced a better ordinance? Yes. And we thank them for their work," she said. "The planning commission has been responsive, not the township board. The board grudgingly said we'll work on a new one. The planning commission did all the hard work."

Ferguson said a recent example of Skreczkoski's unwillingness to be responsive to residents was the board's adoption of the revised zoning ordinance without accounting for recommendations for change that were made by the Charlevoix County Planning Commission.

"Dan is not responsive to representing the interests of the township residents," she said.

However, Skreczkoski said the township planning commission did consider those recommendations in making its recommendation to the board to approve the ordinance. He said the board took action based on the township planning commission's recommendation.

Ferguson claims Hayden's lack of representation was most obvious when he refused to respond to 250 letters from township residents.

"Are 250 people reacting to something you did inconsequential?" she said.

Hayden said the preservation group mailed 1,000 form letters to township registered voters, 250 of which were returned. At a township board meeting the letters were accepted and accounted for.

"We have to consider all 1,560 residents of the township, not just a small select group, especially when using a form letter as the basis of activity," Hayden said.

The group also claims that during this ordinance revision process Skreczkoski has not communicated with residents and that Hayden's communication has been inappropriate.

Skreczkoski said he returns between 10 and 20 phone calls every day from residents.

"No matter what question or complaint a resident brings, I try to find a solution. I spent hundreds of hours with these people talking about the issues," he said.

Ferguson on the other hand sees things differently.

"As far as opening the lines of communication, I don't see it at all. And by not keeping those lines open he (Skreczkoski) can't represent the citizens of Eveline Township," she said.

Hayden's method of communication has been criticized by the group. Ferguson said his "snippy little comments" are inappropriate.

"Don took such offense to us being there right from the beginning," she said.

Hayden did admit to telling a male resident who he described as "disruptive and combative" to "sit down and shut up." But said he did that to keep order at the meeting.

They further claim that Hayden was negligent in his position as clerk when he improperly posted a public hearing notice in the classified section of the Petoskey News-Review.

Hayden admitted to not properly noticing the public hearing in 2001, but said he doesn't feel that was a major issue.

"That's a moot point. The attorney for the township studied this and said the error had no effect on the approval of the ordinance," he said.

In spite of the accusations that have been made against Hayden and Skreczkoski both hope to retain their seats in the election.

"I've enjoyed working with the people on all phases of township government. I feel I've done a good job and I'm entitled to continue doing my job," Hayden said.

Skreczkoski wants to continue to serve the people because he feels he owes it to them and because this recall is not justified.

"A lot of people worked very hard in support of me to be elected. I owe it to the residents to continue doing a good job," he said.

"I think recalls are just, but this particular recall I don't feel is. It seems that lately every time a local government has to deal with an issue and some people don't like the way the decision is going, the first thing out of their mouths is recall. Because of that government can't proceed in an orderly fashion and get things accomplished."

Ferguson said the preservation group and other recall supporters do not currently have candidates in mind to fill the positions if the recall effort is successful.

She did say she hopes a replacement will represent the citizens of Eveline Township in a courteous and respectful way.

"There is a difference between hearing and listening," she said.

Rayder baseball team busy kicking off season

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

The weather finally broke and the Charlevoix Rayders were able to get their baseball season kicked off in earnest last week, including two conference doubleheaders.

The Rayders split twinbills with East Jordan and Elk Rapids and were swept in non-conference action by Maple City Glen Lake.

Against both East Jordan and Elk Rapids, Charlevoix won the opener, fell behind in the nightcap, rallied late, but came up short.

"They were almost identical scripts," coach Bryan Hawkins said. "In both games we had the bases loaded with the winning run at bat but couldn't get it done."

In game one against Elk Rapids, Kreg Wager went the distance for a 9-4 victory. Wager struck out seven in his six innings of work.

Matt Kochanny led the hitting with a 4 for 4, three RBI performance. Matt Burtt was two for three and scored three runs. Jake Teuscher was two for two, walked twice, stole two bases and scored a run. Matt Kilkenny was one for three with a run and two RBI.

The Elks jumped out to an 8-2 lead after two innings and held on to win, 8-5. Nate Teuscher came on in relief to stymie Elk Rapids. The Rayders trailed 8-3 headed in the sixth but scored twice and left the potential tying run on first base to end the game.

Kochanny was the starter and closer for Charlevoix. Nate Teuscher was one for three with a steal and two RBI. Matt Burtt was one for two with an RBI. Hal Foster was one for three with an RBI.

In the non-conference opener, the Rayders used another of Wager's complete game to defeat East Jordan, 7-3. Wager walked only two and struck out seven en route to the win.

Foster, Jake Teuscher, Taylor Fisher and Jake Burns all had two hits to key the Charlevoix hitting attack. Foster scored two runs and stole three bases. Jake Teuscher also drove in three runs. Fisher stole three bases and scored and drove in a run.

Another Charlevoix rally came up short in the nightcap as the Rams got a strikeout with the bases loaded in the bottom of the sixth to preserve a 9-6 win.

Burtt took the tough loss on the hill. Nate Teuscher was two for four with two runs, two steals and an RBI. Fisher was again two for three with a run, RBI and a steal. Kochanny was two for three with a walk and an RBI.

"It was a solid effort," Hawkins said after the game. "I like the way we battled back at the end."

Glen Lake defeated the Rayders, 14-3 and 10-0 in the non-conference tilt.

Kochanny and Burtt were the losing pitchers. Bright spots were Kilkenny's two for four performance in the opener, including an RBI double, and Nate Teuscher's three-walk, two run performance at the plate.

Charlevoix (4-6 overall, 2-2 conference) hosts Harbor Springs in Lake Michigan Conference play this Thursday, May 1 and Harbor Light Christian in non-conference action on Friday, May 2.

Middle/elementary wrestling wraps up season

Charlevoix Middle/Elementary Wrestling Team completed another successful season.

"All the kids did a great job this year. They worked real hard," Coach Craig Golovich said.

Several of the wrestlers have extended the season in the Freestyle Wrestling program, with all of the tournaments being hosted downstate. Although it is a different style of wrestling than scholastic wrestling, it has proven to strengthen the kids and expose them to more moves and strategies, which will in turn make them stronger wrestlers.

The last two tournament standings are as follows:

• At Rudyard — first place winners were Nick Gotshall, Zach Scharenbrock, Zeke Daman, Mat Golovich, Brandon Darrah and R.J. Moore. Second place was John Aimesbury, Spencer Hankins, Scott Plude, Jacob Wimmer, Nate Golovich, Cliff Jones, Lynzie Gotshall, Thomas Rich and Dylan Sladek. Third place winners were Patrick Russell, Nicholas Courier and Eli Daman.

• At Kalkaska — First place went to Zach Scharenbrock, Nick Gotshall, Nate Golovich, Clinton Longley, Mat Golovich, R.J. Moore, Ryan Penfold and Lynzie Gotshall. Second place finishers were John Aimesbury, Spencer Hankins, Zeke Daman, Brandon Darrah, Thomas Rich, Joseph Rich and Eli Daman. Third place went to Patrick Russell, Tony Filizetti and Nicholas Courier.

Track teams running well in competitions

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The Charlevoix High School track teams have been busy.

Both the boys' and girls' teams are coming off of a week filled with competitions, that also resulted in some fantastic individual results for many of the competitors.

On April 25, the girls' and boys' teams took part in the Clare Invitational.

According to girls' coach Mary Plude, outstanding performances were recorded by Jasmine Witthoeft in the long jump, Caitlin Cole in the discus and Amy Drew in the 1600 meter relay.

All of Witthoeft's jumps were over 15 feet, which is a personal record by 2 inches.

Other individual results on the girls' team were:

- Discus — Cole finished in eighth place with a distance of 74 feet, 6 inches.
- High jump — Katie Lieberman finished in fifth place with a height of 4 feet, 4 inches.
- Shot put — Cole finished in fifth with a distance of 27 feet, 3 inches. Michael Sayward finished in seventh place with a distance of 26 feet, 6 inches.
- 3200 meter relay — the team of Liz Madison, Christine Bradley, Theresa Martin and Liz Ulrich finished in sixth with a time of 10 minute, 59 seconds.
- 100 meter dash — Lieberman finished in fifth with a time of 13.4 seconds.
- 800 meter relay — The team of Witthoeft, Drew, Lieberman and Liz Madison finished in second with a time of 1 minute, 56 seconds.
- 1600 meter run — Ulrich finished in third with a time of 5 minute, 52 seconds. Martin finished in seventh with a time of 6 minutes, 12 seconds.
- 400 meter relay — The team of Witthoeft, Caitlin Ernst, Drew and Lieberman finished in fourth with a time of 54 seconds.
- 200 meter dash — Witthoeft finished in fifth with a time of 30 seconds. Ernst finished in seventh with a time of 30.4 seconds.
- 3200 meter run — Ulrich finished in fifth with a time of 12 minute, 43 seconds.
- 1600 meter relay — Drew, Lauren Silberhorn, Martin and Madison finished in fifth with a time of 4 minutes, 36 seconds.

Individual results for the boys' team were:

- Pole vault — Kyle Kramer finished in first with a height of 13 feet. This was a meet record. Brian Christiansen finished in sixth with a height of 11 feet.
- High jump — Philip Steen finished in fourth with a height of 5 feet, 9 inches. Todd Carey tied for fourth with a height of 5 feet, 4 inches.
- Long jump — Ryan Seeley finished in fourth with a distance of 19 feet, 3 inches.
- 3200 meter relay — The team of Nate Turner, Cody McCary, John Wilkinson and Nate Sotuyo finished in third with a time of 8 minutes, 54 seconds.
- 110 meter hurdles — Kramer finished in first with a time of 15 seconds. Ben Bergmann finished in sixth with a time of 17 seconds.
- 800 meter relay — The team of Carey, Seeley, Turner and Bergmann finished in third with a time of 1 minute, 38 seconds.
- 1600 meter run — Brandon Stevens finished in seventh with a time of 5 minute, 8 seconds.
- 400 meter run — Mike Castiglione finished in sixth with a time of 56.30 seconds. Wilkinson finished in seventh with a time of 56.40 seconds.
- 800 meter run — Saytuyo finished in eighth with a time of 2 minutes, 17 seconds.
- 1600 meter relay — The team of Castiglione, McCary, Christiansen and Wilkinson finished in fifth with a time of 3 minutes, 59 seconds.

The girls' and boys' teams also had strong showings on April 24 at the Boyne Invitational.

Individual results for the girls' team are:

- Long jump — Witthoeft finished in second with a distance of 14 feet, 7 inches.
- Discuss — Silberhorn finished in fifth with a distance of 80 feet, 5 inches.
- Shot put — Cole finished in sixth with a distance of 27 feet, 11 inches.
- 800 meter relay — The team of Witthoeft, Drew, Lieberman and Madison finished in second with a time of 1 minute, 55 seconds.
- 400 meter relay — The team of Jake Mailloux, Ernst, Witthoeft and Lieberman finished in fifth with a time of 56 seconds.
- 1600 meter relay — The team of Drew, Martin, Ulrich and Madison finished in third with a time of 4 minutes, 26 seconds.

Individual results for the boys' team are:

- 800 meter run — Peter Gorkiewicz finished in fourth with a time of 2 minutes, 6 seconds.
- 1600 meter run — Isaac Matchett finished in thirteenth with a time of 5 minutes, 52 seconds.
- 110 meter hurdles— Spencer Bryan finished in second with a time of 16.32 seconds. Bergmann finished in third with a time of 16.73 seconds. Ethan Winchester finished in sixth with a time of 18.45 seconds.
- 300 meter hurdles — Bergmann finished in second with a time of 43.29 seconds. Winchester finished in eighth with a time of 49.12 seconds.
- 400 meter relay — The team of Carey, Bergmann, Bryan and Kramer finished in first with a time of 46.01 seconds.
- 800 meter relay — The team of York Smith, Rob Shutley, Dan Elliot and Kamal Orazbayer finished in seventh with a time of 1 minute, 44 seconds.
- High jump — Carey finished in fifth with a height of 5 feet, 6 inches.
- Pole vault — Kramer finished in first with a height of 14 feet. Christiansen finished in third with a height of 10 feet.
- Long jump — Carey finished in fifth with a distance of 18 feet.
- Shot put — Luke Whitley finished in sixth with a distance of 40 feet, 9 inches.
- Discuss — Kramer finished in third with a distance of 127 feet.

The girls' started off the week with a Lake Michigan Conference meet at Boyne City, that also had some great performances in it.

Individual results for the girls' team in this meet were:

- Discuss — Silberhorn in first with a distance of 78 feet, 5 inches.
- 100 meter dash — Lieberman finished in second with a time of 13 seconds. Ernst finished in fifth with a time of 15 seconds.
- 800 meter relay — The team of Witthoeft, Drew, Lieberman and Madison finished in second with a time of 1 minute, 55 seconds.

Soccer team ends week with big win

The Charlevoix High School girls varsity soccer team has been busy on the field lately and ended a disappointing week on a high note with a win over Glen Lake 5-1 on Friday.

The Rayders roared back from a lackluster performance against Roscommon to dominate Glen Lake. Charlevoix out-shot the Lakers 26 to 3, with 14 on net and five in the goal.

Junior Tri Captain Shayna Drost scored a hat trick and lone senior captain Kelly Zimmerman added two. Jaime Pettis managed two assists and freshman Madison Ramsey three assists.

Missing third tri captain Alyssia McDonough, Zimmerman moved up to midfield and effectively controlled the play. Sophomore Sarah Cross filled in for Zimmerman at sweeper and controlled the defensive end with help from fellow sophomores Madison McKenzie and Brittini Whittaker and freshman Stevie Murray.

Meghan Lame also had her strongest game in the midfield.

"The girls came out strong and began learning how to win the 50 – 50 balls, which at this level, makes a world of difference. We hope to continue to build on this effort," coach Carol Madison said.

The Roscommon Bucks handed the Rayders a disappointing loss in Charlevoix on Wednesday, 2-1. Charlevoix outshot Roscommon 20 to 15, but couldn't find the back of the net.

Charlevoix opened the scoring early when Drost sent home a left foot shot off an assist by freshman Laura Nitchman. The Bucks answered with two quick scores, the first on a missed clear of a corner kick and the second again on a missed clear rebound about 15 minutes into the match.

Both teams were scoreless the rest of the way with the Rayders coming out strong in the second half, but unable to score on many opportunities.

Charlevoix received strong midfield play from McDonough, Madison Ramsey and Cross and a good defensive effort from Stevie Murray and Laura Nitchman in goal in the second half. Drost had her best effort of the season, but was heavily marked by the Bucks.

On April 21, the young Rayders played their best game of the season to date in dropping a conference match to the traditionally strong Elks, 5-0.

"We were unlucky that their goals came on individual miscues in a game where our young defense played well together," Madison said.

Zimmerman began taking control of the defensive end in her sweeper position. Cross earned Rayder "Player of the Game" honors with inspired play working into the midfield from her stopper spot. McDonough also had a strong game at center midfield.

Junior Brooke Blanchard and Nitchman shared goal-keeping duties, both playing well with 17 combined saves.

Charlevoix managed just four shots, in great part due to Pettis being taken out by a hard tackle early in the game. Sophomore Grace Farrell continued her improved play on the forward line.

On April 17, Charlevoix, fell behind to Harbor Springs and the conditions in the first half and the young Rayders were unable to recover and lost 8-1. Charlevoix keeper Blanchard made some good saves, 18 for the match, but the team's inability to challenge the Harbor Springs shooters in the first half ultimately put too much pressure on her.

Midway through the second half, the Rayders finally found some spirit, led by inspired play from Freshman Madison Ramsey and Cross and put some pressure on the Harbor Springs defense.

The Rayders managed six shots, scoring when Ramsey sent a nice cross the Drost for the goal.

Defensively, Charlevoix was led by Cross, Brittini Whittaker and Madison McKenzie.

Charlevoix, 2 – 6 overall, hosts Houghton Lake on Friday and travels to Alpena for a tournament on Saturday.

Softball team has tough week in play

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

The softball team had a tough start to the non-conference schedule, dropping doubleheaders to East Jordan, 2-0 and 7-0, and to Elk Rapids, 10-0 and 12-2.

"We're improving every day," coach Liz Grunch said. "But it's a slow process."

In game one against the Elks, Natashia Kleiber, Amanda Boss and Sally Haselschwardt had the Rayder hits. Kleiber took the tough loss on the hill, despite yielding only two hits.

Charlevoix pounded out five hits in the nightcap, but couldn't push across a run.

Nicole Higdon had two hits to lead the Rayders. Erin Burns, Andrea Ruhlman, Sam Kupka had one hit apiece.

Burns took the pitching loss. Monica Comell threw three innings of one-hit relief.

Elk Rapids tossed a no-hitter against the Rayders in game one. Cornell took the loss as despite yielding only four hits, she was victimized by eight Charlevoix errors.

In the nightcap, Kleiber, Burns and Ruhlman each had hits for the Rayders. Cornell again pitched for Charlevoix.

"We played much better defense in the second game," Grunch said. "But unfortunately they (Elk Rapids) hit the ball real well."

Charlevoix's record stands at 0-4 in the conference and 1-5 overall. The Rayders host Harbor Springs, Thursday, May 1.

Maintain your vehicle and help the environment

Properly maintaining your car is a great way to protect the environment.

You can become the first line of defense against pollution and save money too. AAA Michigan offers driver a few tops to do just that:

- Properly dispose of used oil. According to some U.S government estimates motor vehicles use a billion gallons of motor oil per year, 350 million gallons of which are not recycled or are sent out the exhaust of poorly maintained vehicles. You can change your own oil and recycle it, or take your vehicle to a professional for service to prevent spills. Many oil change shops will accept, at no charge, used oil in a safe container for reclamation.
- Be sure emissions-control devices on your vehicle all work properly. Follow your owner's manual service recommendations for changing the PCV valve, air and oil filters and spark plugs. Don't ignore that "service engine soon" warning light. You could be wasting fuel and your money with an engine problem that could be quickly fixed.
- Combine trips. A cold engine is less efficient and gets lower mileage than one at normal operating temperatures. Doing several errands on one trip will ensure you get the best mileage for your fuel dollars.
- If you have an old battery in your garage, recycle it. Nearly all of its components can be reused and it helps keep lead and acid out of landfills and drinking water. That goes for old tires, too, which are increasingly used in everything from pavement and football fields to power plants.
- Be careful with gasoline. Flammable and toxic, gasoline also contains benzene, a cancer causing chemical that can be inhaled or absorbed through the skin. To protect people and the environment, do not overfill small engines and clean up spills immediately with cat litter or absorbent pads. Store approved containers away from combustible materials. Do not use gasoline or kerosene as a solvent, paint thinner or weed killer.

Ward, Rozema file suit against county and Kur

LAWSUIT

also said the women could appeal this decision to the full board. They did not.

Instead, last week, Ward and Rozema filed a lawsuit against the county and Kur. They have retained Traverse City lawyer Grant Parsons to represent them.

Parsons was the attorney for Jarema in his case against the county.

According to paperwork filed by Parsons, on behalf of the two women, Ward and Rozema were subjected to "retaliatory action at work, including harassment, assignment manipulation, verbal comments, gestures, threatening conversations and confrontation" due to depositions they gave in the Jarema case.

Furthermore, the paperwork states the women filed a "grievance" against Kur with the Charlevoix County Commission. They say the commission found the workplace conditions "intolerable" but the commission refused to fix this problem.

Because of the hostile environment she says was in the office, Ward claims to have suffered "serious stress, including shakes, and was reduced to tears on numerous occasions, such that she had to seek treatment."

Rozema also claims to suffer from "serious stress."

Both women want a judgment in their favor and "compensatory economic and noneconomic damages in and amount that is fair and just exceeding $25,000, in addition to costs, attorney fees and any other relief...."

In response to the new lawsuits, Kur issued a written statement saying, "This is a gross misuse of an already overburdened legal system. Sadly, it's an expensive nuisance that the county has to deal with. Unfortunately, this is the price we all pay when people who have no case are paid off by insurance companies. All it does is encourage others who have no case to sue too so they can get some money that they too don't deserve."

Ward has been an employee of the county for 10 years. She is the Victim Assistance Coordinator in the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's Office.

Rozema has been an employee of the county for 22 years. She is the office manager for the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's Office.

The county has 21 days from last week's filing to respond to the lawsuit. Kur has been given permission by the county commission to hire an attorney.

of the organization's most important fund-raising events of the year, and immediately looked into how he could sign on.

"So many kids need someone in their lives for guidance. You see it all the time. I admire the heck out of anyone who steps into a program like that and will take on a child," John said.

The fund-raiser will take place at Paul Bunyan Lanes in Charlevoix from 7 until 9 p.m., May 7. All of the money bowlers raise will help match northern Michigan kids with mentors. In 2002, 612 kids received a big brother or big sister through the program.

Eight lanes will be open for four to six person teams. Three lanes still need to be filled. Each participant is asked to raise a minimum of $25 for the cause but are encouraged to each raise at least $125 in pledges. Shoes and bowling are free.

Pledge sheets for each bowler on the team are available at the bowling alley which is located at, 06966 US-31 South in Charlevoix, or on the Internet at www.bbbsnwmi.org.

Lane sponsors are also still needed. Lane sponsorships cost $250 and allow the sponsor to put together a team to bowl on that lane. For more information about sponsoring a lane contact Peggy Ellibee at (800) 968-2447 ext. 203.

Bowlers are asked to come to the bowling alley with their pledge sheets to register by 6:30 p.m. at the latest.

I'm Free

Don't grieve for me, for now I'm free.
I'm following the path God laid for me.
I took God's hand when I heard the call:
I turned my back and left it all.

I could not stay another day
To laugh, to love, to work or play.
Tasks left undone must stay that way,
I found that place at the close of day.

If my parting has left a void,
Then fill it with remembered joy.
A friendship shared, a laugh, a kiss.
Ah yes, these things, I too, will miss.

Be not burdened with times of sorrow,
I wish you the sunshine of tomorrow.
My life's been full, I savored much,
Good friends, good times,
a loved one's touch.

Perhaps my time seemed all too brief;
Don't lengthen it now with undue grief.
Lift up your heart and share with me -
God wanted me now, God set me free.

Thank you for your love and support.

City will not get a new marina until 2006

MARINA

Winn said in order to make the commission's 2005 funding cycle, engineering and applications for the marina and park project had to be ready by this month.

"I told (city manager) Mike (Wiesner) it had to be done by April, he has known that for two years," he said.

Winn said missing the April cutoff for 2005 funding does not hurt the city's chances of receiving funding, but does push the project back.

"Charlevoix is a top priority because of safety and the condition of the seawall and docks," Winn said.

Because the Charlevoix facility is in dire need of repair, Winn said the sooner the project gets started the better.

"It's crazy how long we take to get things done in Charlevoix," he said.

Wiesner said he does not know when construction will begin, but he is comfortable with the pace at which the project has moved forward.

"We have to be. The consultants are working on it and it takes time to develop a good plan," he said.

Peter Pollack, principal designer with Pollack Design Associates of Ann Arbor who is working on engineering for East Park, said he anticipates applications being submitted to Waterways in early fall of 2003.

Before this application process can move forward, preliminary engineering which is currently underway must be completed and permits from the Army Corps of Engineers and the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality have to be secured.

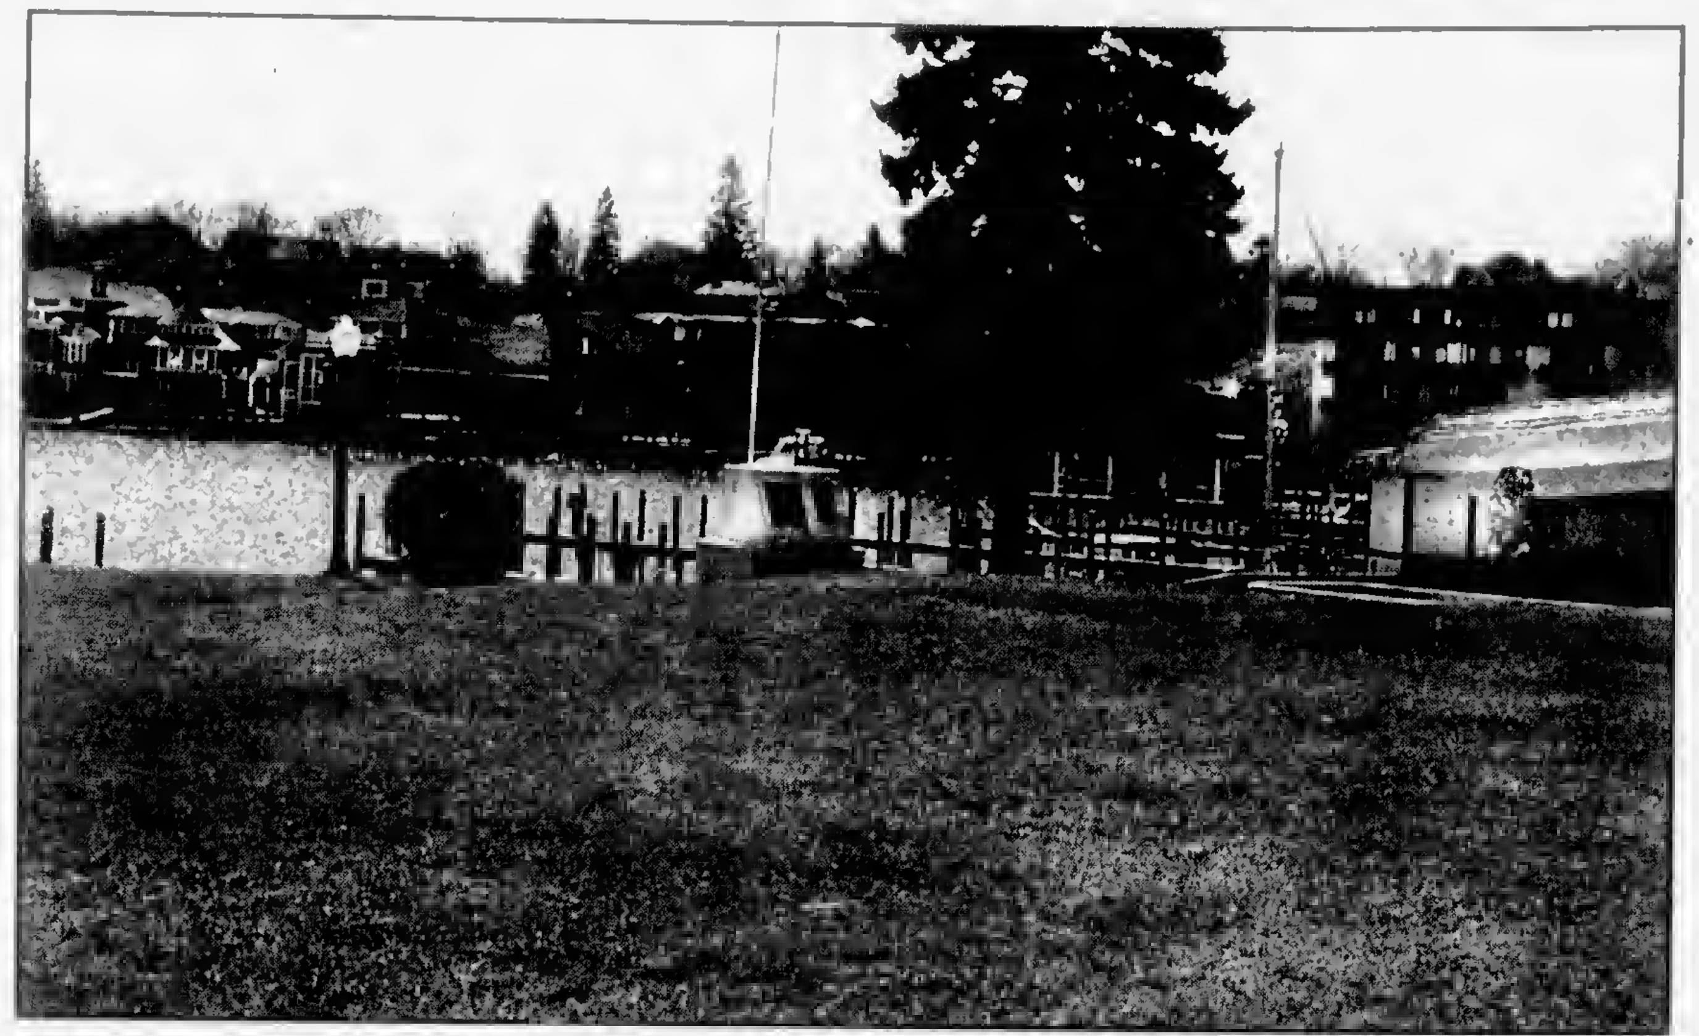
The preliminary engineering being done by Pollack and United Design Associates of Cheboygan includes numerous studies, design and cost estimates. United Design is working on engineering of the bulkhead and the docks. This phase of planning was ordered in January of this year and won't be ready until August.

United Design representative John Schlak is currently working with subcontractors to formulate base data which includes soil borings, environmental testing and a topographic survey.

Pollack said once that base data has been submitted to his firm, he will start firming up the park's architectural program — nailing down details of the facilities like location, materials, utilities and infrastructure.

Cost estimates will also be done during this preliminary phase.

At recent city council and downtown development authority (DDA) meetings, Wiesner has mentioned a possible funding issue with Waterways, due to cuts at the state level.



The city of Charlevoix has missed its "window of opportunity" to get funding for marina repairs in 2005. It now must wait until at least 2006. (Photo by Julie Witthoeft)

Winn said the state budget does not generally affect Waterways because it derives its money directly from boaters' fuel tax and registration fees. None of its funds come from the state's general fund.

"Boaters pay their own way," he explained.

The DDA is funding 50 percent of engineering costs associated with the preliminary study. The DDA agreed to pay United Design $48,856 and Pollack Design $50,000.

Wiesner told the DDA that it was anticipated that Waterways would pay the other 50 percent of the design costs.

Winn said the state body looks at funding of engineering separately from construction costs so the community doesn't have to front the burden.

However, now, three months after the engineering contracts were ordered, Winn said the commission has not received the city's application requesting Waterways pay that 50 percent.

But, Wiesner said he was in contact with Waterways last week re-

Garden Club designs garden ladies for walk

While Charlevoix residents shoveled their driveways or attempted to stay warm and cozy reading by the fire, a group of enterprising women kept busy this winter creating a dozen "Garden Dollies" to sell at the fifth annual Charlevoix Area Garden Club-Garden Walk scheduled for Wednesday, July 16.

These life-size, one-of-a-kind, garden ladies are made of exterior plywood and colorfully hand painted with exterior paint in order to withstand poor weather.

According to Sharon Blossom, chairperson of the Garden Walk, "These Garden Dollies are sure to be a standout in any garden."

The Garden Dollies are dolled up in fashionable, vintage clothes including a variety of befitting hats and purses.

Rhea Dow, one of the designers, described each as totally unique and simply charming from the top of their heads to the tip of their toes.

"Even though each garden lady took approximately 130 hours to produce, the process of creation and construction was rewarding and lots of fun," she said.

This year's Garden Walk will showcase six lovely private gardens located in Charlevoix and surrounding area. The garden gates will open to the public July 16 from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tickets are $10.

A craft show and complimentary refreshments will be set up at the beautiful Heritage Depot Garden for attendees to enjoy.

A special, standout treat this year will be a Bloom'in Garden Party luncheon to be served at the Depot. There will be two seatings: 11:30 a.m. and 1 p.m.

The price of a luncheon ticket is $25. Tickets for the Garden Walk and Luncheon will go on sale June 10.

Tribute to the fallen

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

The Third Annual Northwest Michigan Peace Officers Memorial Service will take place in Charlevoix's East Park next week.

At the service, community members and police officers from across northwest Michigan will congregate in the park to recognize the ultimate sacrifice made by their colleagues killed in the line of duty.

The ceremony will begin at 10 a.m., May 13 and will include an honorary flyover by the United States Coast Guard Air Station Traverse City, advancement of colors by the United States Coast Guard Color Guard, a presentation of the memorial wreath, musical performances by Sean Ryan and the Charlevoix High School Band and a speech by Charlevoix County 33rd Circuit Court Judge Richard Pajtas.

Recognition of fallen officers started in the early 1960s when president John F. Kennedy named the second week of May National Police Memorial Week.

This year's event, which moves from its two-year home in downtown Petoskey to Charlevoix, is presented by the Charlevoix City Police Department, the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department, the Michigan State Police Petoskey Post, the Petoskey Department of Public Safety and the Emmet County Sheriff's Department.

In 2002, across the country 147 police officers were killed in the line of duty, four of which were

Charlevoix's castle

Work on Castle Farms finishes up

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

After over two years of planning and hard work, the local historic site "Castle Farms" in Charlevoix has been preserved and restored to its original architectural design.

Castle owners Linda and Richard Mueller of Long Beach, Miss. will share the fruits of their labor with the community at a public open house scheduled to take place from 4 to 7 p.m., May 15 at the site located off M-66.

That night, Linda and others will be dressed in medieval garb to greet guests. The grand opening celebration will include vendor booths, entertainment, a guided walk through, a scavenger hunt and historic displays.

Linda, a connoisseur of Gothic architecture including castles and cathedrals, bought the 38 acre parcel from the Reibel family in January of 2001 and set out shortly thereafter to transform it to its original grandeur.

"I fell in love with the property and it was in such awful shape," she said.

The castle was built in 1918 as a livestock farm for the well-known Loeb family. As time progressed uses of the site strayed far from farming and included a concert venue, an outdoor event space and a broasted chicken vendor.

While the Mueller family's work returns the site's appearance to its farming roots, it won't be an active farm. Instead, it will serve various community functions.

Currently, the site is being used to accommodate three proms including Charlevoix High School's event, "A Knight's Tale," that will take place there this weekend.

This summer, the Muellers have booked 13 weddings and other events, including a weekly orchestra performance, fund-raisers, group events and possibly a children's program.

The renovation process was led by Larry Shawn of Petoskey, the project's general contractor. Using historic photos and design papers Shawn subcontracted with over 30 local businesses that did extensive work on the exterior of the buildings and repaired major structural damage that resulted from water and roof problems.

The rectangular building on the left side of the property, when facing it from M-66, is the carriage house,

Committee studying meeting center idea

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Dudley Marvin, president of Stafford's Hospitality, has joined the effort to study whether building a conference facility in Charlevoix is a worthy project.

Marvin attended the city's conference center feasibility study committee meeting April 30 at city hall. At the meeting he offered a critique of a study recently completed by the staff at Hospitality Advisors Consulting Group of Ann Arbor.

He started off by saying that when he was first approached with the idea of a conference facility in Charlevoix, he had his doubts.

"Initially I thought how are they going to get enough events over there to make this thing go?" Marvin said.

He said he based this line of thinking on what he has seen with similar facilities in Petoskey that have failed to thrive because of the debt structure. However, after talking with city manager Mike Wiesner about using public funds to build the facility and having a private outfit operate it, he saw the possibility.

Whether this facility would be publicly or privately owned is still unknown.

Wiesner said, "That's up to us

An attempt to remove two Eveline Township officials from office was thwarted by voters.

A recall election that took place May 5 in the township asked voters whether township supervisor Dan Skreczkoski and clerk Don Hayden should be removed from office.

The recall effort started in August of 2002. Petitioners who worked to bring the issue to a vote claim they want to unseat Skreczkoski and Hayden because they have "not been responsive to the people."

In spite of a strong campaign effort, voters ultimately supported Skreczkoski with 268 voting against his removal and 168 voting in favor of it.

"I think people realized how much misinformation was coming from the (recall campaign) group and started putting facts together," Skreczkoski said.

He said he was happy to see a healthy voter turnout — 35 percent of the township's 1,262 voters cast a ballot.

One of the main people leading the recall campaign, Eveline Township Preservation Group member Nancy Ferguson, said she was disappointed with the outcome, but like Skreczkoski, was thrilled to see voters interested.

"It showed the people were concerned and care and it showed they want their representatives to do good jobs in office," she said.

While Skreczkoski held on by 100 votes, Hayden survived by a closer margin with 231 people voting in favor of him staying on and 207 voting for his removal.

Hayden said he is happy with the outcome and was pleased to see township residents support the work he has done, but he feels the recall itself was a waste of township time and money.

"I think it was a frivolous campaign that spent a lot of township money for something that shouldn't have ever happened," he said.

Ferguson said she feels both the recall supporters and the township officials have learned valuable lessons.

She said residents learned they

Controversial filmmaker visits Charlevoix

Over 100 people stood and applauded as controversial Academy Award winner Michael Moore made his way into Charlevoix's Cinema III May 4.

The special question and answer session Moore was in town for followed a screening of his critically acclaimed documentary, "Bowling for Columbine." The film was a three year project for Moore who has also authored bestseller "Stupid White Men" and "Downsize This" and directed the documentary "Roger and Me."

The two hour film was shown in Charlevoix May 4 and 5. According to Charlevoix resident Lorraine Warner, it was a breath of fresh air.

"I thank you for trying to open the eyes of the people who live in this free country to what is truly going on," she said to Moore.

The film was an in-depth look into the source of violence in schools and American society in general.

Moore's theory on why America has more gun related deaths than other countries with similar demographics is based on fear and American ethics.

"We have too many guns in our homes because too many people are afraid of what will happen to them. Having a gun in the house makes you more likely, not less likely, to be a victim of violence," he said.

But Moore, a lifetime member of the National Rifle Association, said the problem is not the guns, it is this "culture of fear" that is created by political pow-

Castle is something we can be proud of

EDITORIAL

How many communities can say they have a castle?

Not many in America. But Charlevoix has one.

How many communities with a castle, throughout the world, can say their castle is a beautiful addition to the scenery?

Not many, as most castles are simply ruins. But, thanks to the hard work and love for their community, Linda and Richard Mueller have saved Charlevoix's famed Castle Farms from decay.

Using their own money, time and dedication the Muellers have accomplished something the community should be thankful and proud of; they have brought this once beautiful icon of Charlevoix back from death to its former glory. Now, we can say, once again, "Yes, Charlevoix has a castle! And it is a beauty!"

It is a delight to see the Muellers' hard work come to fruition and a delight to see such a sight as Castle Farms as you enter Charlevoix on M-66. And it is an even bigger delight to have people such as the Muellers as part of the community.

Their dedication to restoring Castle Farms should serve as a shining example to the rest of Charlevoix on the beauty that lies in our older buildings, if only we take the time to save them.

While adding to the beauty of Charlevoix, the newly renovated castle will also add to our economy. Castle Farms will be the site of many future weddings, proms, fund-raisers and various meetings, thus keeping and bringing people in the area for these events and filling a niche.

You can see the results of the Muellers' hard work yourself at the castle's open house from 4 to 7 p.m., May 15.

We congratulate and thank the Muellers' for their hard work and dedication to Castle Farms.

We also wish them the best in the future and hope the castle remains standing in all its glory for many more decades.

Benefit helps many children in Charlevoix

Edith Gilbert

'Behind the news'

"What fun!" I thought when asked to help judge 30 professionally decorated tables at the Grand Traverse Resort in Traverse City on May 10.

"This is right up my alley and all for the benefit of a worthwhile cause!"

This worthwhile cause is a fundraiser to benefit the Child and Family Services of Northwestern Michigan, which is an independent, nonprofit agency that covers 12 counties in Northwest Michigan. It served 160 individuals in Charlevoix County alone last year.

Sixty social and counseling workers, the majority holding advanced degrees, staff their two offices located in Harbor Springs and Traverse City. What do they do? While their work encompasses people of all ages, their focus is primarily on youth. For example, the agency offers a dozen services including 24 hour emergency foster care and placement for children.

They help with infant/open adoption and international adoption, educate unwed parents on basic childcare and meet the needs of sexual abuse victims.

It is interesting to learn that art is a useful tool and plays an important role in communicating with small children who are unable to express themselves. Although all cases are confidential, I was told about a little girl who was badly abused. When she was asked to draw a picture of her family, she drew them without any faces. A year later, after being placed in loving surroundings, she drew pictures of her family with happy, smiling faces. There is more detailed information about the agency listed on www.cfsnwmi.org.

Getting back to the Festival of Tables display, it will take place at the Grand Traverse Resort between 10 and 2 o'clock with a gourmet luncheon being served to an expected crowd of 750 people, up from 500 last year! You can pretend to be "Lunching with Monet" in his French Provincial garden or have "Dinner on the Beach" with a live fish centerpiece, for example. There will also be wine tasting and food samplings.

For those who want to fine tune their knowledge on the controversial history of the two pronged fork, or learn more about glassware (once called transparent silver), or learn about chinaware rivalry, or just plain napkin folds, there is an informative chapter in my new book "Easy Entertaining" called, "Let's Set the Table With Style." There are sketches for formal place settings, buffet settings, as well as suggestions on serving an informal meal and a monthly calendar for party themes.

I have been invited and look forward to autographing this book as well as my other two books, "The Complete Wedding Planner" and "Summer Resort Life: Tango, Tea and All."

Table viewing starts from 10 a.m. through 12:30 p.m., Gourmet Luncheon is served from 12:30 to 2 p.m., with silent auction, raffle drawings and door prizes. Tickets are $40 each and are available at the Apple Tree in Charlevoix.

Letter response

Editor:

I would like to respond to the letter signed by June Cross and Norma Eby regarding the lawsuit between the County of Charlevoix, Mary Beth Kur and former assistant prosecuting attorney, John Jarema.

I am John's mother-in-law and I could not be more proud. John was a hard working, honest and dedicated assistant prosecutor. He is a loving, caring and attentive husband and father.

John was fired because he stood up for what is right. He did not feel that your tax dollars should be spent for work not performed and vacations given that were not earned. Twice he spoke to Mary Beth and said it was wrong. Twice he was told to mind his own business. (READ THE DEPOSITIONS) If you are concerned about proper procedure not being followed, I would think that should be the first step in proper procedure. John then began keeping a written record of the wrong doings to present to the county commissioners. When Mary Beth rummaged through his desk she found the records and fired him. When John asked her why he was being fired she said, "I know things you don't think I know." (READ THE DEPOSITIONS) She knew because she had taken the records. Oh, and isn't it funny how those records were never recovered. Could they have been destroyed in the shredder she ordered purchased two days after he was fired? (READ THE DEPOSITIONS)

If John was a divisive and disruptive employee, why was evidence of it never presented in the depositions or the court proceedings? Because it wasn't true. (READ THE DEPOSITIONS)

As far as John giving back the money he received in the judgment, which he deserved for all the grief it has cost him and his family, I bet he would give it back if Mary Beth would give back our tax dollars she so freely gave away. By the way, it cost the county $35,000. The rest was picked up by the insurance company. I am surprised they have not canceled the county policy as the lawsuits just keep coming.

I hope John does run for the office of prosecuting attorney. Someone should. Someone who cares about the taxpayers. I don't want a prosecutor who feels it's OK to fritter away my tax dollars and treats people the way Mary Beth does when they act and speak honestly.

And, by the way, I composed my own letter. I wasn't asked in a memo to write it or what to say and I signed my own name. READ THE DEPOSITIONS, and you will see why Mary Beth Kur wanted them sealed.

Carol Martin
Charlevoix

(Charlevoix County Prosecutor Mary Beth Kur responds: As Mrs. Martin is a relative of my former Chief Assistant Prosecutor, I can understand how she may be slightly misinformed and possibly even biased regarding her son-in-law's dismissal from his employment.

Be that as it may, rest assured that all of the lawyers that her son-in-law worked with and then later accused of fraud and embezzlement — Kerry Zahner, Jennifer Deegan and Mike Atchison — worked countless hours seeking justice for the citizens of Charlevoix County. They are highly respected and ethical professionals who were well aware of her son in law's work ethic and his work place behavior.

None of them ever took time off they were not entitled to and her son in law knows that, that's why he never scheduled their depositions, never reported any of his claims to law enforcement or to the Attorney Discipline Board and never went to trial. He simply settled out of court.

The civil case he brought against the county and me is over and it's time to move on.)

Thank you

Obituaries

Alice Ritsema: Aug. 29, 1912 - May 3, 2003

Alice Ritsema, 90, of Banks Township, died Saturday, May 3, 2003, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

She was born Aug. 29, 1912, in Holland, the daughter of Douwe and Minnie (Staat) VanDyke.

On Dec. 35, 1935, she married John Ritsema in Holland. They made their home in Holland, moving to Banks Township in 1949 where they owned and operated their farm.

Mr. Ritsema died in 1996.

Mrs. Ritsema was devoted to family and farm. She was a cook at Ellsworth High School for several years. She enjoyed going to the barn, doing chores, working out of doors, gardening, canning — homemade chili sauce, pickled peaches and beef. She also enjoyed reading and sewing.

She was active for many years in the Ladies Aid at the Atwood Christian Reformed Church where she was a member.

Surviving are her children Ronald (Nancy) Ritsema of Ellsworth, Marcia (Joe) Jurczuk of Grand Rapids, and David Ritsema of Central Lake; six grandchildren; four great-grandchildren; a sister-in-law, Frances VanDyke of Holland; nieces and nephews.

The funeral service will be at 1 p.m. on Wednesday, May 7, at the Atwood Christian Reformed Church with the Rev. James Evenhouse officiating. Burial will be in Atwood Cemetery.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Atwood Christian Reformed Church or Ebenezer Christian School.

Bruce K. Bartlett: Sept. 13, 1920 - May 5, 2003

Bruce K. Bartlett, 82, of Charlevoix and Sarasota, Fla. died on May 5, 2003.

He was born on Sept. 13, 1920 in East Jordan.

A memorial is being planned at the Community Church of God in Charlevoix.

Further details will be released soon.

Phyllis M. Cappell: April 11, 1924 - April 20, 2003

Phyllis M. Cappell of Charlevoix and Clearwater, Fla. died April 20, 2003 at Sunset Point Rehab Center in Clearwater.

A memorial service will be at 2 p.m., May 30 at Bethany Lutheran Church. The Rev. Michael Teuscher will officiate. Cremation was done in Clearwater, Fla.

She was born April 11, 1924 in Saginaw to Hartwick and Agnes Miessner.

She grew up in Saginaw and attended school at Arthur Hill High School.

On Jan. 10, 1946, she married Lincoln A. Cappell in Saginaw. He preceded her in death on July 30, 1987.

She was a member of Bethany Lutheran Church.

Mrs. Cappell is survived by Verne and Judy Cappell of Jackson, Tim and Mariam Cappell of Saginaw, Robt and Laurie Cappell of West Branch and brother Lyman Miessner of Saginaw. She is also survived by her grandchildren Jennifer Cappell, Sarah and Chad Crosby, Timm and Jessica Cappell, Todd Cappell, Blake Cappell, Blair Cappell, Ashley Cappell, Charles and Trina Popp, Jarrod and Trish Breining and Craig and Brandi Breining.

In lieu of flowers, donations can be made to the Bethany Lutheran Organ Fund.

Man suspected in several area break-ins arrested in Antrim

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

A 36-year-old man police believe may have heen involved in several area break-ins, and has been called "armed and dangerous," was arrested Thursday night in Antrim County.

Charlevoix Police have heen searching for the man since late April, following an altercation with an officer on patrol. Police helieve the man was involved in a series of car hreak-ins in Charlevoix Estates on M-66, as well as various break-ins around the area.

According to Charlevoix Police Chief Dennis Halverson, an officer on patrol in late April, saw the man around 4 a.m. behind Glen's Markets on M-66.

The man was intoxicated and disorderly. When the officer tried to put the man under arrest, he fought off the officer and escaped.

However, the officer was able to get the man's coat and found some coins in a pocket, which were linked to a recent automobile break-in at Charlevoix Estates.

"We just started stringing things together," Halverson said.

With that, police also suspect the man in other break-ins, including one at the Belvedere Casino in the Belvedere Cluh and a break-in at a house on May Street that was being renovated.

The break-in at the May Street residence had officers concerned. In this incident, several weapons were stolen, including a handgun and decorative knives.

Adding to this, the man had recently been released from prison, where he had been housed since an armed stand-off with police in 1997.

In this 1997 incident, the man barricaded himself in a relative's house on Loeb Road for about five-and-a-half hours, with a loaded 16-gauge pump shotgun. A shot was fired at police in this incident.

The 1997 stand-off ended when the man's brothers and police entered the home and wrestled the gun away from him, allowing officers to place the man under arrest.

HEALTH

There are many ways to help an aching back

Melodie Brown, M.D.

'Your health'

Because the muscles of the lower back carry most of your weight, low back injury is very common. Acute low back pain is the fifth most common reason for all physician visits. Four out of five adults have back pain at some time in their life.

The most common cause of low back pain is strained muscles. Incorrect lifting or twisting may injure the supportive muscles of the back causing pain and spasm. Less common, a herniated or "ruptured" disk can cause discomfort. Discs are like cushions between the back bones. When injured, they can herniate into the space around the spine and put pressure on a nerve, causing pain. Inflammation of this nerve may cause pain to travel down the low back into the buttocks or leg. This phenomenon is what is commonly known as "sciatica." Discomfort may also occur with arthritis of the spine, or rarely from infection or cancer.

Only one of 200 people with low back pain have a serious illness. There are warning signs that should prompt you to see your doctor. These include fever, steroid or prednisone use, unexplained weight loss, severe or worsening pain, back injury or trauma, bladder or bowel problems, weakness in legs, pain that is worse while lying still and a history of cancer.

Most of the time back pain improves in two to four weeks with simple treatments. These include over the counter pain relievers, the application of ice during the first 24 hours followed by moist heat, and a gradual return to normal activities. Occasionally a prescription muscle relaxant may be helpful. Staying in bed for a long time is usually not advised. Inactivity can make muscles weaker, tighter and more painful. This also slows the healing process. "Relative rest" is best. This means only avoiding activities that make the pain worse, such as sitting or standing for long periods, bending at the waist, or lifting heavy objects. Exercises can improve pain by making your back more flexible.

Here is an example; Lie flat on your back with your knees bent up. Put your hands around your left knee and pull it down toward your chest. Hold the stretch for a few seconds and then release. Now repeat the stretch with your right knee. Then pull both knees to your chest at the same time and hold the stretch for a few seconds. Do this stretch twice daily for 5 to 10 minutes.

Being fit and losing weight will help you avoid back pain and prevent its recurrence. Exercise regularly by walking, swimming, or hiking. Modified sit-ups or "tummy crunches' can reduce the curve in your lower back, reducing the risk of injury.

Good posture is very important to maintain a healthy back. When standing, keep your knees relaxed and your shoulders back. Regularly shift your weight from one foot to the other. Sit on a chair that supports your back and keep your feet flat on the floor, or use a foot rest.

Sleep on a comfortable mattress and change positions often. Placing a pillow between the knees for side sleepers, or behind the knees for back sleepers helps to straighten the spine. When you get out of bed, roll to your side first and use your arms to help you get up. When lifting heavy objects, be sure not to bend at the waist.

Try to keep items close to your body when you are lifting or carrying them. If you have to reach for something high use a step stool instead of straining to reach up.

Charlevoix police net five in tobacco, alcohol stings

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Two recent stings on local businesses netted very few violations of the underage laws on selling alcohol and tobacco to minors.

"We try to be proactive on substance abuse issues with minors," Charlevoix City Police Chief Dennis Halverson said of the stings.

On Saturday, the Charlevoix Police Department had an undercover officer — who is also under the age of 21 — visit five of seven businesses in Charlevoix that sell packaged alcoholic drinks. Of those five, the officer cited two of them for violating the ban on selling alcohol to a person under the age of 21. Two of the seven were closed at the time of the sting.

"With graduation time approaching, I thought it would be important to see what was going on with packaged liquor places," Halverson said.

In the sting, the officer walked into the store and attempted to purchase an alcoholic beverage. If the officer was asked for his identification by the store employee, he would give it to them.

If the store employee sold him the alcohol, the officer would tell them who he was and write a citation.

A 52-year-old Eastport man was cited at Glen's Market on M-66 and a 47-year-old Charlevoix woman was cited at the Marathon gas station on North US-31.

This alcohol sting followed a tobacco sting on April 15. The tobacco sting was funded by the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency.

In this sting, officers accompanied a boy and girl who were under the age of 18 as they visited about a dozen business in Charlevoix that sell tobacco products.

Just like in the alcohol sting, the underage boy and girl would enter the business and try to buy a tobacco product — such as cigarettes. If they were asked for their identification, they would supply it.

If the employee of the business sold them the tobacco product, that employee was cited by the police officer waiting outside.

Of the 12 businesses that were a part of the sting, three of them had employees that were cited. Those employees were a 28-year-old Charlevoix woman at Next Door Food Store on Bridge Street, a 32-year-old Petoskey woman at the 7-Eleven on Bridge Street and a 25-year-old woman at the Marathon station on North US-31.

"It was a respectable compliance rate," Halverson said.

This is the second time the Charlevoix Police Department has participated in a sting such as this with the health department.

Trike-a-thon fund-raiser

Man had past run-ins with law

ARREST

At the time, the man was a suspect in several area break-ins as well.

After this latest run-in with police, a bulletin was given to area agencies to be on the lookout for the man and he was listed as "armed and dangerous."

Thanks to a tip, police in Antrim County learned the man was in the area and surrounded a residence with a special response team. According to Halverson, before the team could get a warrant to enter the residence, the man came outside and got into a vehicle.

A short chase took place and ended when the man struck an Antrim County Sheriff's Office vehicle with his vehicle. The man was arrested after a short foot chase following the crash.

"He was on the run. He knew he was being sought," Halverson said.

No weapons were found on the man, but several charges are pending on the police chase in Antrim County and crimes in the Charlevoix area.

As of Monday, the man was in the Antrim County Jail awaiting arraignment.

BUSINESS

Fastenal moves into new, more visible, location

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

With its new location, the Fastenal Company hopes to increase its exposure.

About two months ago, the industrial and construction supply store, moved from its location on US-31 — behind the Michigan Work's office — to a new location on Bridge Street, across from the Dairy Queen.

"This location gives us more exposure and a more retail type of business," store manager Louis Nelson said. "Our walk-ins have increased 100 times. It is easier for contractors to find us too."

Fastenal has been in Charlevoix since 2000, but was founded in 1967. It has 1,300 branches nationwide and branches in Canada and Mexico

The company carries supplies such as fasteners, plumbing, electrical, safety, janitorial, cutting tools, abrasives and welding for industrial uses or construction.

Fastenal also does tool repair, bandsaw blade welding, hose crimping and light manufacturing, among others.

The store is open from 7 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., week days. You can contact it by calling 237-0061 or e-mailing micha@fastenal.stores.com.

need to actively participate in local government and the board learned it needs to communicate more efficiently and effectively. She is hoping to see meeting minutes posted on the township's web site in the near future.

"We will continue to work together (residents and the board). That's the hope. I think we did work together well on a number of things," Ferguson said.

Hayden said he plans to continue to fulfill his obligations as township clerk for the next 1.5 years, but does not plan to run for re-election in 2004.

"That tells us we should be looking for a candidate," Ferguson said.

Skreczkoski said he is looking forward to getting back to business and concentrating on upcoming road projects.

He is also up for reelection in 2004 and said at this time he has no intention of retiring from the board.

City council members gearing up for elections

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

It's time to prepare for another election in the city of Charlevoix.

Three city council seats and one administrative seat will be filled Nov. 4. These include one spot in each of the first, second and third wards and that of city clerk. Each of the openings carry a two-year term.

First ward councilman and deputy mayor Norm Carlson Jr., second ward councilman Bill Bellows, third ward council member Shirley Gibson and city clerk Liz Gooch are all up for reelection.

No one has officially filed to run in the election. However, Gooch, Gibson and Bellows all said they have picked up petitions and plan to run.

Bellows has represented the second ward for five years. Gibson has been a third ward representative for two years. Carlson has served for four years and Gooch for two years.

Carlson is moving out of the first ward into the third ward and will not seek reelection. But this doesn't mark the end of his political career — he said he will run for another office in the future.

The deadline to file petitions for the open seats is 4 p.m., May 13 at city hall, located at 210 State Street in Charlevoix. Petitions can be picked up there.

Each petition requires signatures from 25 to 40 registered voters in the ward for which a candidate is running.

Candidates are also required to file a statement of organization and a campaign finance form with the Charlevoix County Clerk's office. Those forms are available at the clerk's office in the Charlevoix County Building located at 301 State Street in Charlevoix.

If more than two candidates file to run in a given ward or for the city clerk's position, the field will be narrowed to two at a primary election which, if needed, will take place Aug. 5.

At this time, the only issue on the ballot is candidate selection. However, Gooch said city administrators are looking into including language changes to the city's charter.

Picketing for a contract

Workers from Cemex, Inc. the local cement manufacturing plant, conducted an informational picket outside of the Edgewater Inn in downtown Charlevoix April 29 and 30. The picketing coincided with contract negotiations between the workers union representative, B-480, and Cemex officials. The workers dressed in black, their union color and held signs that read "solidarity" the group's motto. As of May 6 the contracts were still being negotiated. They are (from left) Tom Allen, Dan Zipp, Mike Gauthier, Curtis Rhodes and Archie Cole. (Photo by Julie Witthoeft)

Several come away with medals in meets last week

Both the boys' and girls' track teams continued showing strong finishes last week.

On May 2, the teams were at the Ken Bell Invitational in Traverse City and on April 28, they took part in the Heidi Steiner Invitational in Bellaire.

"In both meets we were missing key people for our relays because of other school commitments. This has been a tough two weeks with six meets in that time," girls' coach Mary Plude said.

Medalists for the girls' team on May 2 were:

- Long jump — Jasmine Witthoeft was third with a distance of 14 feet, 3 inches.
- 400 meter dash — Theresa Martin was fourth with a time of 66 seconds.
- 1600 meter run — Liz Ulrich was fourth with a time of 5 minutes, 47 seconds.

Medalists for the boys' team on May 2 were:

- 110 meter hurdles — Kyle Kramer was third with a time of 15.46 seconds.
- 400 meter relay — The Charlevoix team of Todd Carey, Ryan Seeyle, Spencer Bryan and Ben Bergmann was third with a time of 46.63 seconds.
- Discus — Kramer was fourth with a distance of 134 feet.
- Long jump — Seeyle was fourth with a distance of 18 feet, 11 inches.

Medalists for the girls' team on April 28 were:

- Long jump — Witthoeft was second with a distance of 15 feet, 2 inches.
- 1600 meter run — Ulrich was third with a time of 5 minutes, 44 seconds.
- 1600 meter relay — The Charlevoix team of Amy Drew, Martin, Ulrich and Liz Madison were second with a time of 4 minutes, 22 seconds.

Medalists for the boys' team on April 28 were:

- 110 meter hurdles — Kramer in third with a time of 16.61 seconds.
- 400 meter relay — The Charlevoix team of Carey, Seeyle, Bergmann and Kramer in first with a time of 46.65 seconds.
- 800 meter run — Peter Gorkiewicz in fourth with a time of 2 minutes, 6 seconds.
- Long jump — Seeyle in second with a distance of 19 feet, 6 inches.
- High jump — Phil Steen in third with a height of 5 feet, 11 inches.

Also on April 28, the boys' and girls' teams combined for a co-ed 1600 meter relay. The Charlevoix team of Gorkiewicz, Mike Castiglione, Drew and Madison was third.

Rayders soccer ties with Houghton Lake in overtime

Fans were treated to a great evening of soccer on Friday at Kipke Field as Charlevoix tied Houghton Lake 3-3 in overtime.

The Rayders jumped out to an early 2– 0 lead with goals by senior captain Kelly Zimmerman assisted by Meghan Lame and sophomore Jaime Pettis off an assist by Zimmerman.

The Bobcats answered with a tally just before half and again just after the second half began to tie.

Charlevoix dominated play throughout the second half, showering the Houghton Lake keeper with 30 shots on the night, forcing 18 saves. The Rayders were unable to penetrate the net and with about 10 minutes left in regulation, the Bobcats scored on a breakaway opportunity to take a 3 -2 lead.

After a short lapse, the Rayders challenged again, finally knotting the score when Jaime Pettis dropped a nice ball to Zimmerman who sent it home over the Houghton Lake keeper from 20 yards out.

The two teams played scoreless through two overtime periods and the match ended a tie.

Charlevoix received strong play throughout the lineup: Brooke Blanchard played well in goal, making eight saves. Sophomore Sarah Cross and freshman Stevie Murray anchored the defense. Shayna Drost, Grace Farrell, Madison Ramsey and Alyssia McDonough had strong games in the midfield.

The Rayders also took part in a round robin scrimmage over the weekend, winning all rounds, 1–0 against Traverse City St. Francis and 4–0 over Kalkaska.

Goals by Drost (two), McDonough, Ramsey and Madison McKenzie; assists to McDonough, McKenzie, Ramsey, Maggi Romig and Brittni Whittaker.

Rayders have tough week

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports Writer

Charlevoix suffered a tough doubleheader sweep last week against Harbor Springs, 4-3 and 9-7, but the Rayders rebounded to split with Harbor Light Christian, winning 9-2 and losing, 5-3.

"We're struggling through some key injuries," coach Bryan Hawkins observed. "Our number two pitcher (Jake Teuscher) has tendonitis and hasn't been able to throw for a week."

Catcher Matt Kilkenny has also suffered a thumb injury and missed the Harbor Light action.

"Our task is to focus defensively," Hawkins said. "That's where we've struggled. We've had some real growing pains on defense so we've been focusing more on that in practice."

The Rayders led early in both games against Harbor before letting them get away. In game one, Charlevoix led 3-1 after four innings. The winning run against Rayder pitcher Matt Burtt was unearned, scoring on a fielding error in the sixth.

Burtt was solid on the hill, going the distance, yielding only six hits and three earned runs while striking out five. He also doubled and had a run and RBI.

"Matt Burtt's been a real solid, steady contributor for us all season long," Hawkins said.

Taylor Fisher doubled and singled, scored one run and added an RBI.

Nate Teuscher doubled and scored, while Kreg Wager singled in a run.

In the nightcap, the Rayders led 7-3 after three innings but the Rams rallied, scoring three in the sixth for the win. Matt Kochanny took the loss.

Kilkenny, Burtt, Fisher and Nate Teuscher all had two hits, with Teuscher's being a triple. Kilkenny and Nate Teuscher each scored two runs. Burtt and Fisher each drove in two.

- Fifth, doubles — Loren Eldredge and Lindsay Withrow won 6-4.

Softball gets some big wins

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports Writer

The Charlevoix Rayders softball squad had an excellent week, sweeping a Lake Michigan Conference doubleheader against Harbor Springs, 13-5 and 9-5 and splitting in non-conference action with Harbor Light Christian, losing 14-6 and winning 10-9, capped by an exciting sixth inning, two-out rally.

"We had a really good week," coach Elizabeth Grunch said. "The girls are really starting to get into it and having a lot of fun."

Monica Cornell earned both wins against the Rams on the mound, throwing a four-hitter in the opener.

In game one, Amanda Boss had two hits, including a triple. Jessica Pettis also had two singles. Natashia Kleiber, Erin Burns, Andrea Ruhlman and Genevieve Kochanny all had one hit.

Boss again had two hits (single and double) to lead the attack in the nightcap. Denise Barta doubled and Brittany Niswander, Sam Kupka and Ruhlman all singled.

"Were really attacking the ball much more," Grunch said. "The hard work the team has put in is starting to pay off with base hits."

The Rayders hit well against Harbor Light, but in game one, couldn't string much together by way of runs.

Pettis, Niswander and Ruhlman each had two hits in the opener. Katie Sheldon and Kara Fitzgerald each had one. Kleiber took the loss on the mound.

Charlevoix scored five runs after two were retired in the bottom of the sixth in game two to pull out the exciting 10-9 win. Burns RBI single scored Barta with the winning run.

Sally Haselschwardt had two doubles. Kleiber singled and doubled. Ruhlman doubled and Pettis, Sheldon, Burns and Kochanny all added singles.

The Rayders (4-6 overall, 2-4 conference) next play at Traverse City St. Francis on Thursday, May 8.

Max, age 7, Maddie, age 4 and Sam, age 3. During the winter of 2002, all three children were diagnosed with MLD.

Recently, a group of longtime friends of the Trimpers' formed the Charlevoix Coalition Against MLD, a non-profit private foundation raising money to help with their mounting medical bills and costs to remodel their home for barrier-free access.

We are organizing "The Trimper Children Benefit" — a silent and live auction at the newly renovated Castle Farms of Charlevoix on June 29. The proceeds will be used to help the family with their expenses as well as a small portion for MLD research so we can help find a cure for this devastating disease.

Food and entertainment will be provided at the event as well as a cash bar. Tickets will be available May 1 at various locations in northern Michigan and through coalition members. Future advertisements will be printed in the Petoskey News-Review and Charlevoix Courier, as we get closer to the event.

Any readers, who are not yet familiar with the family or disease, can visit www.caringbridge.org/mi/trimper/mld where Jeff and Jane have been logging daily journal entries tracking Max's progress while receiving a stem cell transplant and his recovery. Stolen flag

Editor:

I am just appalled I have to write this letter.

Someone has taken it upon himself or herself to "steal" an American flag. Dear Mr. Schuiling was so gracious to donate all the flags in Charlevoix that say "Proud to be American." I came to work on Thursday to notice one of the flags that Mr. Schuiling donated was stolen! How un-American is that? I cannot believe someone could even think about stealing a flag, let alone an American flag! Mr. Schuiling donated his time and money to buy these flags for the area businesses to display and someone decides to help himself or herself to it! The flag in question was stolen in front of the Real Estate One office. I can't believe that someone could actually do this and call themselves an American.

Northwest Academy band performs well

The Northwest Academy Advanced Band performed at the State Band and Orchestra Festival on Saturday, April 26 at Benzie Central High School Auditorium and scored the highest possible rating of straight "I's".

Sight reading judge Ralph Schweigert said, referring to Traverse City Central High School and Northwest Academy, "I heard two of the top bands in the state festival today."

This was the third time in five appearances at the state festival that Northwest bands have received perfect scores.

Northwest Academy (NWA) is a public middle and high school that focuses its curriculum on excellence in technology and the arts.

Gary Stutzman was hired as Band Director when the school opened in 1996. The first year the program featured a beginning band consisting of the entire sixth grade class and an advanced band with students who had some musical background.

The band program's first attempt at performing in the high school division of the festival was in 1999 and they received a first division rating and qualified for the state festival.

That April, two days before the band's state performance, Stutzman's father passed away unexpectedly. Unable to change the time of the performance, the school brought in Dwight Smith, a retired band director, to conduct while Stutzman attended to his family.

The band performed on the day of the funeral and missed receiving a first division rating by a half grade. The band at that time consisted of several eighth graders who are now the senior leaders of the band.

Over the next four years the band has received "I's" three out of four years. The school's advanced band is now recognized as one of the finest small bands in the state.

You may hear this fine group when they perform at 4 p.m., Sunday, May 18 at the First Congregational Church.

The seniors will open the concert with solo and ensemble performances, followed by the Advanced Band and Jazz Combo.

men, a complete game by Wager keyed the victory. He gave up only three hits, three walks and one earned run while striking out six.

Nate Teuscher was two for three with two runs and two stolen bases. Matt Loper was two for three with a double and three RBI. Kochanny was one for two with two runs scored and two RBI.

"Nate is always the catalyst for us," Hawkins said. "His play drives us and we feed off him."

Rayder hitters struggled in game two against a tough Harbor Light hurler, managing only six hits. Kochanny had half of them in a three for three, one run, one RBI, one steal performance.

Nate Teuscher, Hal Foster and Loper had the other hits with Loper and Foster plating runs with their singles.

"I've been real happy with the contributions of our sophomores (Loper, Jake Teuscher and Cody Crain)," Hawkins said. "They've really been elevating their play and that's been a big positive."

Trailer bathroom gets city approval

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Recent votes by Charlevoix's Downtown Development Authority (DDA) and city council prove easy access to nice bathrooms is a priority this summer in Charlevoix.

"The whole deal is a question of classy versus nasty," Gabe Campbell, Charlevoix's mayor and a DDA member, said.

To make sure residents and visitors have a classy experience while in town a trailer bathroom unit will be purchased and placed in East Park by July 1 until the park is renovated, which won't be any earlier than 2006.

The DDA voted unanimously at a special meeting April 28 to award the trailer project $41,500. City council then met at its regular meeting May 5 and approved placement of the unit in the park and offered the project an additional $2,500 from a fund used to pay for port-a-potties.

John Campbell, chairman of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce's Board of Directors, presented a plan to the DDA a couple of months ago to bring a trailer unit equipped with showers and bathrooms to East Park.

He said the unit would address an unmet need for accessible facilities equipped with hand washing and flushing capabilities.

"To serve our community and our visitors so they can use something other than a Porta John says 'we want you here,'" he said.

Gabe Campbell agreed, "This would certainly leave a better impression coming into town than an outhouse."

At that time members of the DDA expressed some aesthetic and cost concerns that sent Campbell back to the drawing board.

He reduced the trailer size from 48 feet to 40 feet, removed the shower stalls, took the wheels off the trailer and factored in some landscaping, lattice work and other cosmetic features.

The approved trailer will provide four women's toilets, four men's urinals and one toilet and one barrier free, unisex bathroom. The facility is plumbed and offers hot and cold running water and is hooked to the city's sewer system.

When Campbell was initially brainstorming the idea, it looked as though it wouldn't happen for any less than $68,000, but the community has since pulled together and offered its support.

The project received support from Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, who will help with vegetative planting, and the crew of the United States Coast Guard Cutter ACACIA.

ACACIA captain Keith Bills has offered to donate carpentry and labor, which saved the city $10,000.

Following council's site approval, Campbell said he plans to get the trailer in town as soon as possible.

After East Park renovations are done, in about four to five years, the trailer can be lifted out and moved to a new location or sold.

Wiesner said he doesn't anticipate this new facility eliminating the need for portable bathrooms at Clinton Street and at Mason Street during the Venetian Festival and at other event times because of concentrations of crowds.

Moore gets standing ovation after film

ers and the news media.

He said the message being sent by mainstream society and the media tells the average citizen not to speak out.

He explained that in his exploration of the Columbine High School tragedy, he found the two student gunmen — that shot and killed 12 students and one teacher and then tuned the gun on themselves April of 1999 — were outcasts and teased by school athletes for being different.

"High school is worse today with the mean spiritedness that exists. At Columbine good students were picked on, harassed, called names and the principal turned his head the other way," he said.

He said school administrators have to actively combat discrimination to make schools safe.

"Any student who makes another student feel inferior in any way has to be penalized for that action. Administrators have to set and enforce the rules — this kind of abuse cannot be tolerated," Moore said.

He said getting kids to speak out is difficult because of the forces at work in American society, like television and political leaders who are sending the message to be quiet and that one person can't make a difference.

"We need to encourage kids to think on their own, to question what is going on," he said.

Moore also discussed his opinions about the political climate and said he is very concerned about the direction the country is moving in. He feels people have become apathetic and need to participate in government for democracy to thrive.

"Living in a free society or democracy demands participation of everyone," he said.

He tied his views of social degradation and political corruption to the death of 6-year-old Kayla Rolland in Flint who was shot by a classmate.

He said Tamarla Owens, the mother of the boy who shot Rolland was working two jobs and was rarely home because of former Gov. John Engler's Welfare to Work program.

"The Engler years were just appalling. So immoral on so many levels — there was a want to punish the least among us," he said.

He said in countries like Canada, where gun ownership is just as prevalent, fewer gun related deaths occur because the government supports its citizens and the society revolves around the concept that citizens are all in the same boat.

> "Living in a free society or democracy demands participation of everyone."
> Michael Moore,
> Filmmaker in a speech Sunday

"The American ethic is every man for himself, pull yourself up by your boot straps, me, me, me, me, me," he said. "It isn't surprising to me that people go for the gun.That person isn't in the same boat."

He feels to help ease this political climate America needs to do away with minimum wage, to establish a living wage and to offer free, universal health care.

The larger, overarching issue that needs to be faced is economic, not democratic, he added. The economy has to include everyone with each person having a say in how the pie gets divided.

While some said they would not go to the screening because of Moore's open anti-Bush administration and anti-war stance, the showing sold 104 tickets on Sunday and those who attended welcomed Moore with applause.

A portion of the proceeds from the event were given to Charlevoix's BASES Teen Center.

Moore is currently working on another book that has not been titled, but one idea he said he is bouncing around is, "Dude Where's My Country." He is also working on another film called Fahrenheit 9/11, about America since Sept. 11, 2001.

Moore and his family split their time between New York City and northern Michigan.

Women's Resource Center to have annual auction/benefit

The Seventeenth Annual "Women's Work" Art Auction/Benefit is coming up.

Seventeen years ago, 15 artists joined together at the first art auction to benefit the Women's Resource Center. Total sales reached just over $2,500. Last year 59 artists had total sales of just over $11,500.

Two artists, Jan Vandenbrink and Cat Bartreau, have been in all of the past shows and are scheduled to be in this one, as well.

The annual "Women's Work" art auction benefit for the Women's Resource Center is scheduled for Thursday, May 29. The auction will be at Stafford's Bay View Inn in Petoskey. The silent auction is from 5 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. and the live auction starts immediately after.

The silent auction will also feature some wonderful golf packages and gift certificates to local retailers and restaurants.

All of the artists donate at least one piece and then share in the proceeds from the sale of the other one or two pieces they put in. Pieces are usually priced at much below what you would have to pay in a gallery or store to encourage quick bidding.

The center is expecting approximately 50 to 60 artists to show their work during this year's event. Mediums will include: Pottery, jewelry, watercolors, stained glass, mixed media, fiber art, baskets, weaving, quilted items, wood furniture, dried flowers/herbs and clothing.

Hors d'oeuvres will be served and a cash bar will be available.

The cost is $15 per person or $25 per couple and tickets may be purchased at the door.

Cash, check or Visa and MasterCard will be accepted for purchases. Purchases must be taken the night of the auction.

Call the center at 347-0067 for additional information.

Marvin to look into meeting center idea more

(the committee). I sure don't want the city running it, I know that."

Scott Jones, a representative of the Christman Company who was at the meeting to let the committee know about the services his company can provide for such a project, said public funding for this kind of building is "an unusual avenue to take."

Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce President Jacqueline Merta said, "It's unique, like Charlevoix."

But Marvin cautioned the committee and said further investigation is needed into what restraints using public dollars could put on this type of facility.

He said at Petoskey's North Central Michigan College the use of public money to fund a conference facility limited the range of services it can provide.

The conference facility study focused on two possible locations, city property west of the Weathervane Restaurant and the Bridge Street Inn Bed and Breakfast.

Marvin also reviewed the consultants' recommendations which included a suggested facility size of 8,000 square feet serving the needs of 200-300 guests.

But Marvin, who oversees all four properties for Stafford's in Petoskey and Charlevoix, said he doesn't think there are too many groups of that size.

"If we (Stafford's) saw a lot, we would he thinking about how to build a building like that," he said.

The study's authors found that between 70 and 100 event days would likely be booked at a Charlevoix facility if it were available, with 60 percent of those days being social events and the remaining 40 percent corporate.

Marvin said the study was missing some key marketing elements like possible competitors and what five properties were used as a basis of comparison for the site.

He said without knowing from where these groups and social events will come it is difficult to evaluate the numbers.

From these 70 to 100 event days, the study estimated the center bringing $6 million to the area every year.

Marvin said further investigation into this calculation is also needed.

"In reality, you have to do it all to get these kinds of numbers," he said.

Wiesner said if extra effort or further study is needed then he thinks there would be money available to do that.

So far the city has paid the consulting group, $11,250 for its work.

Marvin plans to speak with Charles Skelton, president of the consulting group, to address these concerns.

The conference facility committee plans to reconvene in mid to late May to further discuss his findings.

The committee includes Marvin; Wiesner; Merta; mayor Gabe Campbell; Downtown Development Authority chairman Hugh Mason; city planner Gerry Harsch; Vera McKown, who is an event planner and owner of the bed and breakfast being considered; Tracy Sell, a convention and visitors bureau member and owner of the Edgewater and the Lodge; first ward city councilman Norm Carlson Jr. and chairman of the chamber board of directors John Campbell.

from Michigan. These four will he recognized at the memorial. They are Officer Sheila Herring-Patrick of the Norfolk Virginia Police Department, Officer Scott Stewart of the Detroit Police Department, Ranger Kris Eggle of the National Park Service and Officer Jessica Nagle-Wilson of the Hazel Park Police Department.

Special recognition in memory of former Emmet County Sheriff Jeffrey P. Bodzick and for all active members and veterans of the armed forces will also be included in next week's service.

The city police department is also looking into formally recognizing former city patrolman Earl Crandall, who died in July of 1966 after suffering a heart attack during a scuffle with a drunk motorcyclist.

City police chief Dennis Halverson is exploring the possibility of having Crandall's name added to a police memorial wall in Washington D.C.

Refreshments will be offered at the Beaver Island Boat Company building located below Bridge Park following the service.

BID 209

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX
ACT 99 RFP
May 2, 2003

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

The City of Charlevoix will be accepting bids for borrowing under Act 99 P.A. of 1933 as amended for the completion of the Downtown Development Authority Bridge Park Project for $947,600. The borrowing would be backed by the full faith and credit of the City of Charlevoix and would be done to "refund" the 1996 DDA issue.

All bids must respond completely to the requirements outlined in the REQUEST FOR PROPOSAL. A copy of this RFP may be obtained at the City Clerk's office during regular working hours of 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Bids which do not conform to the standard may be rejected. Bids are to be mailed to the City Clerk's Office, 210 State St., P.O. Box 550, Charlevoix, MI 49720, in a sealed envelope marked CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ACT99 BIDS no later than 2:00 p.m. Friday, June 6, 2003 at which time bids will be publicly opened and read.

The City of Charlevoix reserves the right to reject any or all bids, or any part thereof at its discretion, and to waive any irregularities in the bidding. The City prepares its specifications to afford all lenders the equal opportunity to compete.

Reynolds to speak on local history

A renowned historian will be speaking at the Charlevoix Historical Society at 7 p.m., May 13 at the Charlevoix Depot at the east end of Dixon Avenue on a local hero.

Geoffrey D. Reynolds

Geoffrey D. Reynolds, president of the Michigan Archival Association, executive director of the Holland Area Historical Society, director of the Joint Archives of Holland and assistant professor at Hope College, will be in Charlevoix to present a program on the life and death of Earl Cunningham.

On Saturday, February 8, 1936, Boatswain's Mate Earl Cunningham interrupted his day off to come to the aid of stranded fishermen, Claude Beardsley and Clayton Brown, after the ice they were standing on broke loose and moved out into a Lake Michigan blizzard. Losing his own life in the effort, he left three young sons and a widow. Cunningham's act of courage won him the coveted U.S. Coast Guard Gold Lifesaving Medal posthumously.

Using historic photographs, written records and information from Cunningham's granddaughter, Reynolds will tell the complete story of this hero's personal and professional life.

Reynolds served as director of the Charlevoix Historical Society in the late 1980s and early 1990s.

The public is invited to attend at no charge. New members are always welcome. For more information call the Charlevoix Historical Society at 547-0373.

Castle Farms to have open house

CASTLE

where a fair amount of water damage had to be addressed.

The pointed hat like structures that top off stone columns are called turrets and each underwent a challenging rebuild and shingling process. The project also included shingling each building's roof using high quality 30 year shingles.

One of the most unstable structures at the site was the horse barn, the large stone structure on the east site of the property.

A specialist from Williamston was brought in to raise the roof. It took eight weeks to set up the equipment to do the job and an hour to raise it. New beams, posts and braces were also installed in the barn.

This restored barn is now the venue for weddings and proms.

The Castle's center area is the courtyard where the crew revamped an artesian fountain that flows to Loeb Creek. Some of the water damage to the buildings resulted from the well not working properly.

Hiding the courtyard area was the concert stage, which once hosted acts like Ozzy Osbourne, Def Leopard and The Beach Boys but was not part of the original Loeb design and had to go. Workers easily dismantled the stage roof, but were challenged by the cement slab below it.

To the right of the courtyard is the dormitory where workers were once lodged. The Castle's late owner, Art Reibel, installed dressing rooms for bands in the dormitory's lower level. When Mueller bought the property, there was 5 feet of standing water on the ground of the dormitory.

The dormitory rooms were replaced with more original, modernized accommodations.

Not only did the buildings get a makeover, but the land was also changed to fit its original appearance. The berm that once served as lawn seating for concerts was excavated and returned to its original grading and the fencing that surrounded the property was replaced.

Now, with the buildings fully renovated, the Muellers are continuing to work on the landscaping and will plant trees and gardens around the site.

Future work may also include further construction on the blacksmith area for office space and the icehouse building, where chicken was recently sold out of. If they see there is a demand for even more space, they may reconstruct the stone wings that once extended along the dairy barn and will roof the area that formerly sat behind the stage providing 8,000 square feet of enclosed space.

The work that has been done so far is a major financial investment. Richard said they did not receive grants to cover costs, but because the site is on the National Historic Register, they did receive a tax credit for work they did on the buildings.

Linda Mueller, owner of the Castle Farms, stands on the porch outside of the horse barn that looks out onto a courtyard. (Photo by Julie Witthoeft)

The Muellers feel strongly about the facility's presence in the community. They have a long history in Charlevoix.

Richard's mother, Rosemary Mueller, who currently owns a home in the Belvedere Club, had a grandfather by the name of Oscar Allen who built the well-known Blue Bell Cottage in the club and was one of the club's founding fathers. Linda has been visiting Charlevoix with Richard since 1967.

For more information about the project and to learn how to book an event at the Castle, visit www.castle-farms.com or call Denise Sobleski at (231) 237-0884.

Developer, city bid on school property

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

The city of Charlevoix and Charlevoix Public Library will have to wait and see if the city's offer to buy the former Charlevoix Middle School property is sweet enough to be chosen over that of a private developer.

By May 23 the Charlevoix School Board will decide whether to sell 13 of the property's lots to the city for $635,000 or all 14 of the lots to Boulder Park resident Bill Sherman for $775,000.

The city's offer does not include the current superintendent's office located off Clinton Street which has been appraised at $140,000. Sherman's does include this lot.

"All in all, it's looking good for us. The offer is equitable to the Sherman offer and the school has expressed interest in keeping the property in public hands," library director Valerie Meyerson said.

Sherman spoke to the board at the meeting and said the major difference between the two offers is he is a private person as opposed to a public entity that needs taxpayer support for funding.

He said his plan for the property is a housing development that has included discussions with the library. But, at this time, he has made no agreement with the library.

Meyerson said Sherman attended a library board of trustees meeting and expressed interest in developing the classroom area of the school, leaving the gym and some adjacent lots for library use.

Will traffic ease with light change?

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

The city and the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) have teamed up to try and move traffic through Charlevoix more quickly this summer.

City police officers will work with MDOT, owners of Bridge Street, to change signal timing at the Clinton and Bridge Street light.

According to city police chief Dennis Halverson MDOT plans to tweak the signal timing in June and July to see if it will have a positive impact on congestion. The department will also give Halverson a remote signal override device to be used by his officers during pre-and post-event times.

City manager Mike Wiesner said it is unlikely these changes will have a major impact, but the city will give it a shot.

"The highway department is willing to do it and it may help," he said.

The city's mission to alleviate traffic congestion started last summer when it hired Richard Lyles Associates of Williamston, a traffic engineering firm, to evaluate the pedestrian-vehicle relationship in Charlevoix.

The Lyles representatives found pedestrians aren't holding up traffic — Bridge Street narrowing from four lanes to two and the drawbridge are.

Many members of the community have asked that the north side crossing at Clinton and Bridge streets be blocked. But Lyles said this would likely be an unenforceable option that would not necessarily allow more cars through and could have negative ramifications.

Miller leaving school position for retirement

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Charlevoix resident Barb Miller was 28 when she started working for Charlevoix Public Schools, now, at 55, she is ready to "graduate."

Miller is retiring from her post as Charlevoix High School secretary this year. At the high school she is described as a "jack of all trades" working hand-in-hand with the athletic department, keeping track of attendance, answering phones and helping students and teachers.

Miller started out as a teaching assistant in the Learning Center, a special education program, in March of 1976. She made the decision to work in the school system because the schedule allowed her to be home when her children were home.

In 1984 she moved on to the position of high school secretary.

Since then, Miller has been at the athletic department helm, keeping a straight course as four athletic directors came and went.

Current high school athletic director Jim Kanine, said, "The faces changed, the names changed and it didn't matter. The athletic department was on its course because Barb Miller was the constant."

"She steers the ship, doing everything behind the scenes. And on top of all that she's just a wonderful human being. To find someone like that will be really difficult," he added.

Her important role at the school was recognized during the 2002-2003 school year when she was given a Outstanding Person in Education (OPIE) award by her peers.

As retirement nears, plans for the future are uncertain, but one thing is for sure, it won't mean a move away from Charlevoix, her home of 52 years. She and her husband Gary, an investment counselor with Charlevoix's Mason and Kammermann PC, plan to stay at their home on a farm in Marion Township.

While she will still be in Marion Township, where the high school is located, life there will be different. She said in making her move away from the schools after over two decades of service she will miss interacting with students.

"It will be different not to see their faces every day — the teachers and students. It will be a void, but I intend to fill it with other things," she said.

Miller plans to spend time with her three grandchildren, golfing and gardening and may pick up substitute work with the Char-Em Intermediate School District or part-time employment with another local business.

Students to perform at church

The Sundays at Four concert series will present its Young Artists Concert at 4 p.m., May 18 at the Charlevoix Congregational Church, located at the corner of Park and State streets.

Gifted young singers and instrumentalists from the area will present a varied program of interesting compositions.

The young performers have all won the highest ratings in level of performance in the state. The soloists will include Marci Bennett, a sophomore at Aquinas College in Grand Rapids, playing the flute; Rachel Bellairs, who has accepted a scholarship to attend the New England Conservatory of Music next year, playing the trumpet; Jolynn Baldwin, a recent graduate of Northwestern Central Michigan College, a soprano; and Northwest Academy students Craig Welscott on trombone and Carolyn Bellairs playing the flute.

A brass ensemble, saxophone quartet, vocal trio and selections performed by the Northwest Academy Jazz Ensemble, will also be part of the afternoon event.

The Northwest Academy music department under the direction of Gary Stutzman is one of the most outstanding small music programs in the state. It has been recognized for the excellent quality of its soloists and Jazz Ensemble.

There is no charge for the concert, but donations will be accepted. The public is invited to attend and join in a reception honoring the performers.

Writer taking short leave to start family

Julie Witthoeft

Staff writer

It's hard to believe that 40 weeks have passed so quickly.

I remember vividly the September day when my husband and I found out we were pregnant.

That afternoon the two of us had lunch at Nanny's in Charlevoix. I noticed I was feeling a little dizzy, very tired and not so friendly. After evaluating the combination of symptoms, my better half pointed out that all signs pointed to one thing....a baby.

I thought no way, I had just checked airfare the night before to Chicago to spend a weekend on the town with one of my college roommates.

That night as I drove from a weight lifting class to an Eveline Township Board meeting, I again noticed my mood was foul and that, regardless of the weights I was lifting, my body was just not responding to the workouts like it used to.

After a draining wind turbine generator discussion I headed home. On the long trek I passed Glen's and thought, "I'll put my husband's crazy baby thoughts to rest."

I popped in, grabbed a quick home pregnancy test and was home a few minutes later.

In the comfort of my bathroom, I nonchalantly read and followed the test directions. While the funny little stick worked its magic I headed for the kitchen to make a sandwich.

I think the required wait was two minutes, but I didn't hover. In fact, I finished my dinner and returned to the bathroom fully expecting to find one pink line, toss the test in the trash and write my husband a long I told you so note he could read after work.

Instead, I discovered two pink lines — my stomach did a flip and I lunged for the phone. I tried my husband's cell phone, but got no answer. So I called my sister, who had also suspected a baby hormone imbalance for weeks due to my not so sweet disposition.

We laughed and cried in anticipation of the latest addition to our family.

Now, over 200 days later I will soon join the hallowed circle of mothers.

No longer will my mind wander when I sit down at a table of mothers and the conversation inevitably turns to birth stories or funniest kid moments.

For some time the gruesome delivery stories were background talk I wasn't a part of and had always wondered why others found them so interesting.

But, after this 40 week wait I've discovered the many wonders of pregnancy, like feeling our little one move inside me and seeing just how big a woman's belly really can get. And now, I understand why motherhood is a sacred experience we share.

Life is a miracle — we all learn to appreciate that at some point. But creating life has been the most humbling, awe-inspiring gift I have ever been given.

So, while I embark on what is sure to be one of my greatest journeys, readers of the Charlevoix Courier will hear from a new voice behind local issues, our summer intern Amy Sayre.

I won't be entirely sidelined for the summer though, after a few weeks I will write a couple of stories for each paper to make sure my position in the middle of this political hotbed isn't lost.

Then, this fall I will return full-time having taken on my most esteemed title yet — mom.

In the meantime, those with juicy news or photo opportunities they want to share can contact Sayre or our editor Jeremy McBain by e-mail at charlevoixcourier@charlevoixcourier.com or by phone at (231) 547-6558.

Julie Witthoeft is a staff writer for the Charlevoix Courier. She will be returning full time to the Courier in early September, following a maternity leave that starts May 19.

Alien plants are not a danger to the ecosystem

Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

With the coming of a new growing season we will probably hear again about the dangers of what are called invasive alien species of plants.

Most of these are weedy plants that have recently found their way to North America from some other part of the world. We are regularly warned about the dangers of our wetlands being taken over by Purple Loosestrife or with information about how we should be certain our boat does not carry some invading aquatic plant or animal to a new lake.

It is worth examining just how serious a problem is presented by the presence in our lakes and fields of plants and even animals from some other part of the world.

Concern with invading plant species has been with us since the first Europeans colonized America's shores. Most of the kinds of plants we see regularly in our yards and along our streets and highways arrived here from Europe, Africa or Asia along with our crop plants or other imported cargos. Some were imported as flowers or garden plants which escaped and established themselves. There are hundreds of kinds of plants listed in Ed Voss' Michigan Flora that are native to some exotic part of the world. If they have been here long enough we are likely to consider them of no particular interest or concern.

Purple Loosestrife was imported in the Nineteenth century as a garden flower, but has lately taken to invading marshy areas and wetlands. There are efforts underway to eradicate it or control it in some way.

Are such invading plants or animals a serious threat to the native plants and animals? The question has to be answered with a qualified "NO." It is easy to fear a new plant or animal as we see it expanding in numbers and occupying more and more territory.

I do not believe the fear is justified.

Considerable scientific evidence suggests that such invading species do not eliminate the resident organisms, they simply alter their numbers. It is completely plausible to view these "invading" kinds of plants as simply adding themselves to the variety of plants already present and actually increasing biodiversity.

Foreign plants may help nature

KNUTSON

Biodiversity is generally viewed as a desirable characteristic.

Most of us are suspicious of change and are likely to view it as troublesome. I believe that is most of the basis for fears of "invading" kinds of plants and animals. The resilience of plant and animal populations to change is much greater than ours.

All kinds of plants and animals change and adapt with time to any new conditions or neighbors, and they have been doing that for millions of years. I have no doubt that such adaptation will continue. Our attempts to eradicate or severely restrict the spread of new kinds of plants and animals is likely to be more damaging to the environment than anything the new organisms might accomplish.

While there are never guarantees, there is a very good chance that the world's flora and fauna could eventually be richer and more evenly distributed than it is now. Finally each kind of plant or animal that can live somewhere in the world will find its way there and take up housekeeping.

We should not fear their arrival. The outcome will be a richer world, not a poorer one. I have the suspicion that at least some of our fear of "invading" species is like our fear of "different" kinds of human beings.

Embrace the positive change that new and different kinds of plants and animals will provide as they establish themselves all over the world. The world will certainly change with time, but it will not become poorer unless we eliminate the plants and animals that make it rich.

As Pogo Pussum, Walt Kelly's wise cartoon creature said, "We have met the enemy and he is us." We, as potential destroyers of plants and animals are the problem; invading organisms are not.

Letters to the editor

Honorable men?

Editor:

(After recalling Mark Antony's Funeral Oration...)

But these are honorable men.

At the White House Press conference on March 6 of this year President Bush interchanged the war on Iraq with the attacks of Sept. 11, 2001 less than eight times, an unproven, but constantly reiterated White House claim. Perhaps because we have heard this false assertion so many times, polls tell us that most Americans believe there really is a connection.

BUT BUSH IS AN HONORABLE MAN.

Colin Powell favors the preventive war against Iraq now, even though in 1991 he said regarding occupying Baghdad comes at an, "unpardonable expense in terms of money, lives lost and ruined regional relationships."

BUT POWELL IS AN HONORABLE MAN.

Vice President Cheney confidently predicted that our soldiers would be, "greeted as liberators," which we now know was tragically wrong.

He also said that the energy crisis in California was simple "market adjustment" not manipulation. Wrong again.

BUT CHENEY IS AN HONORABLE MAN.

Could the satirical web site, The Onion, have an aura of truth around its recent joshing headline. "Bush: Our long national nightmare of peace and prosperity is finally over. We must squander our nation's hard-won budget surplus on tax breaks for the wealthiest 15 percent. And on the foreign front we must find an enemy and defeat it."

Paul Wolfowitz, who as part of a neo-conservative group including Richard Perle, planned and proposed in 1991 immediately after the Gulf War, that we should as the only super power, exert ourselves over Iraq and the entire Middle East. Sept. 11, 2001 afforded him and his group the push to become the core of the foreign policy for which our sons and daughters are shedding their own and Iraqi blood today.

But Wolfowitz is an honorable man.

Both Colin Powell and George Bush knew, when defecting General Hussein Kamel, son-in-law to Saddam, told them Iraq had large stocks of biological and neurotoxic weapons that they were telling only half the story....the half that would allow them to claim we must invade now, that the over one hundred of our sons and daughters now in body bags and God knows how many men, women and children in Iraq also dead, was a necessary sacrifice.

Now we know the other half of the story, the part Bush and Powell didn't want us to know, thanks to an article nearly buried in Time magazine's Pipeline column. General Kamel stated in a three-hour long affidavit he had personally seen to the destruction of these weapons in 1991.

But Bush and Powell are honorable men.

When accepting the Nobel Peace Prize in November 2002, Jimmy Carter, purposely chosen to contrast with Bush's behavior, said, and I quote, "It is clear that global challenges must be met by an emphasis on peace, in harmony with others, with strong alliances and international consensus. Imperfect as it may be, there is no doubt that this can best be done through the United Nations. For powerful countries to adopt a principle of preventive war may well set an example that can have catastrophic consequences."

Bush ignores the UN and adopts Preventive War. But Bush is an honorable man.

War news, and now Iraq freedom news... it's what's for on TV for dinnertime. Enjoy.

Thank you

Editor:

I wish to extend our heartfelt "thanks" to all those involved in making the Jigs Memorial Shoot possible.

This event has been given each year at the Rod and Gun Club since Jigs died. Jigs would never have imagined that his years of service to the club would return in such a caring way to his family and also exhibit such a wonderful coming together for the club and this community.

Thank you especially to John Clevenger who chaired the event; also to Kim Jones, whose thoughtfulness and caring for Jig's family made it happen to begin with; also Vane Smith who was a special friend to Jigs and to countless others who donated door prizes, food, items for the silent auction and of course, those who came to shoot. The proceeds which go to Luke's scholarship fund mean everything to us! Jigs, I know, is smiling down!

idential Construction
Remodeling
47-4505

Locally owned and operated,

D.S. Stebe Construction, Inc., was established in June of 2000

by the husband and wife team of Scott and Laura Stebe of Charlevoix.

The idea for starting the business started with Scott's father's retirement from the construction business. Scott decided at that time to fulfill his dream of carrying on the family construction business.

D.S. Stebe Construction offers quality construction services. Scott has over 20 years of experience in all areas of construction, from residential building to remodeling.

They are fully licensed and insured for all your contracting needs.

Scott brings with him an old-fashioned quality of carpenters past. He apprenticed under his grandfather, John M. Stebe and father, Jack Stebe, to learn his craft.

His love for wood and quality craftsmanship is what makes him strive for perfection in all his projects. Custom carpentry is his specialty, from building a house to hanging a door you can be assured it will be done right.

Born and raised in Charlevoix, Scott began his carpentry career at 14, after which he enlisted in the Navy.

He and his wife, Laura returned to northern Michigan in 1991 to live. They have three children and reside in Ironton. He is an assistant scoutmaster with Troop 11 in Charlevoix and he is a member of the Heritage Maritime Alliance in Traverse City, (wooden boats are his second love).

Scott is available for free estimates, long and short term projects. Please call 547-4505 or email at stebe@voyager.net for appointments.

Essays result in scholarships for two Charlevoix students

Two talented graduating seniors from Charlevoix High School have won the 2003 Charlevoix Historical Society's Kohler-Bartlett Scholarships, each worth $500.

Peter Gorkiewicz submitted an essay about Charlevoix shipwrecks, an interest developed from his diving experiences, and Dan Jadwin wrote about his great grandfather, Charlie Heise, who owned and operated Charlevoix Coal and Ice on Mason Street.

Both research papers will be added to the documents in the historical files at the Harsha House Museum.

Jadwin has been a member of the varsity ski team and the robotics team which designs and builds electric cars in the Computer Assisted Design Lab at Charlevoix High School. He is the son of Nona and Charles Jadwin.

Described as a "computer techno-genius," he will be majoring in computer science at Western Michigan University. You can find him working at Cinema III this summer.

Class salutatorian, Gorkiewicz, son of Bob and Diane Gorkiewicz and Jeanne and Denny Phelps, will pursue secondary education with a concentration in physics when he heads to Northern Michigan University.

Also on the robotics team, he has run track and cross country and earned All-State honors, played trumpet in the band, and served as president of the high school's National Honor Society.

Wineman, a friend of Charlevoix, died May 9

By EDITH GILBERT
Staff columnist

Long time summer resident, James H. Wineman died peacefully on May 9 in his home in West Bloomfield, Michigan at the age of 90.

He is survived by his devoted wife, Constance Wineman. The family held a private graveside service on May 11.

James H. Wineman

"Charlevoix has lost a good friend and community booster in the passing of Jimmy Wineman," said Charlevoix residents Dale and Marilyn Boss in a written statement. "Through his connections, he made it financially possible to have our petunia truck and float in the Detroit Thanksgiving Day Parade for eight consecutive years."

Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce President Jacqueline Merta added, "Charlevoix and the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce have lost a wonderful benefactor. James Wineman was a man who truly cared about the Charlevoix community, which has been his family's other home for generations. He loved Charlevoix and wanted others to know about the beauty and charm of our city."

For many years, the family summer home on 418 Michigan Avenue sheltered three generations, including 12 grandchildren and five great grandchildren. Wineman was the father of Trudi and Henry Wineman II, who also have a summer home in Charlevoix in Boulder Park, and father of Connie Jacob, and the late John Wineman.

James Wineman was a graduate of the University of Michigan, and became engaged to his wife Constance 64 years ago in Charlevoix, where they spent every summer, except during World War II — when he served as First Lieutenant in the United States army.

Wineman was a member of the national advisory council for AAA and director of the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce where he received the Summit Award in 1983 for outstanding contributions to the city and Chamber.

He was also a member of the Detroit Club and the Detroit Golf Club.

He was also awarded the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce President's Award in 1992.

The Bosses added, "He was a steady contributor to Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, and he paid the annual entry fee to enable us to be in the parade (Detroit Thanksgiving Day Parade). After the parades were over, he would treat everyone who participated on the float to a big breakfast at the Ponchetrain Hotel, next to Cobo Hall."

They further said, "We are very appreciative of all that Jimmy did to promote Charlevoix and our grandchildren will always remember being on the float and enjoying the parade. The people who lined the streets were among the friendliest we ever encountered and we have many fond memories of what Jimmy did for Charlevoix."

The family suggests memorial donations be made to the John H. Wineman Education and Research Fund in Radiation Oncology, 1500 East Medical Center Drive, c/o University of Michigan, Department of Radiation Oncology, 1500 E. Medical Center Drive, Ann Arbor 48109-0010.

Agencies have terror drill on lake

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Area law enforcement personnel got the chance to test out their skills Friday with a mock-terrorism drill utilizing the EMERALD ISLE ferry on Lake Michigan.

In the scenario, a man had become belligerent and took the captain of the ferry hostage.

In the drill, the man was reported to be armed and dangerous. There was also 155 passengers and three crew members aboard the vessel.

"I think it was well planned," Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater said. "Unfortunately in a terrorist attack, if we ever have one, we will not get time to plan. That is what training is for."

Charlevoix Police Chief Dennis Halverson added, "Overall, it turned out well. We did pick up some things that need further attention in the future. That was the idea..."

Several law enforcement agencies took part in the drill, including: United States Coast Guard personnel from the Charlevoix station and the cutter ACACIA, the FBI, Michigan State Police Dive Teams and officers and county sheriff officers and the marine division. The drill also gave valuable training to Charlevoix

REGULAR CITY COUNCIL MEETING
Monday, May 5, 2003 - 7:00 p.m.

The Charlevoix City Council met on the above date with Mayor Gabe Campbell presiding. All Council members were present.

The Shade Tree Commission presented the City's Tree City USA Certification and Growth Award.

The following were approved:

Authorized placement of temporary restroom facility in East Park, directly south of the Band Shell.

Authorized spending $2500 from the 2003-2004 City Budget toward the cost of building the temporary restroom facility, to help defray the DDA's cost.

Authorized the Police Department to try a traffic light time-altering device under the direction of MDOT on the Clinton/Bridge Street intersection during special event times this summer.

Accepted the lowest bidder Runners 4 U for cleaning the restrooms.

Accepted the low bid of Duthler Trucks for a 2004 Sterling.

Waived Launch Fees at Ferry Beach for Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament to be held on June 13, 14 and 15th.

Authorized contract with MDOT for a State grant for 90% of engineering cost to design the Airport parking lot.

Council adjourned at 9:20 p.m.

A complete copy of the Council minutes are on file at the City Clerk's Office, 210 State Street.

DRILL

Area Hospital, the Charlevoix Fire Department and Charlevoix County Board of Directors and Emergency Operations Staff.

While sheriff, Coast Guard and Michigan State Police boats held the perimeter of the area, the ACACIA sailed near the EMERALD ISLE with a load of special response team officers. At the same time, the Coast Guard helicopter flew overhead, keeping an eye on the ship and serving as a distraction.

Soon, smaller Coast Guard boats pulled up next to the ACACIA and were filled with members of the special response team. With the helicopter hovering in front of the ACACIA, the special officers approached in their small hoats from the side.

Once they were along-side the EMERALD ISLE, the officers boarded the ferry and took control of the ship.

"Injured hostages" were taken off the ferry to the ACACIA.

Once the ship was taken from the man, the EMERALD ISLE and ACACIA were sailed to their Charlevoix docks, where ambulances were waiting to take the "injured" to the hospital for treatment.

Lasater said the biggest benefit of the drill was learning what resources are available to area law enforcement and the level of cooperation they can expect between federal and local agencies.

Cancer society to have Charlevoix fund-raiser

The American Cancer Society Relay For Life, a team based fund-raising event, will be taking place in Charlevoix.

Participants spend a full 24 hours taking turns walking laps on the track, socializing, picnicking, playing games and participating in planned activities, all while raising money and awareness to fight cancer.

Relay For Life of Charlevoix County will take place from 10 a.m., Aug. 9 to 10 a.m., Aug. 10, at the Charlevoix Middle School track.

For information call (877) 240-0001.

"Cancer survivors are a large, diverse, important community and Relay For Life is one way the American Cancer Society reaches out to them," said Theresa Haske.

"Survivors find comfort by spending time together at Relay and empowerment by making a difference in the lives of others battling the disease. We invite all cancer survivors to join us in whatever capacity they choose."

Paying tribute to those who have battled cancer lies at the heart of the relay. During the Victory Lap, cancer survivors from throughout the community walk a celebratory lap around the track together.

At sundown, luminaria are lit to honor and remember those who have battled cancer and to help guide walkers through the night.

The American Cancer Society is the nationwide, community-based voluntary health organization dedicated to eliminating cancer as a major health problem by preventing cancer, saving lives and diminishing suffering from cancer through research, education, advocacy and service.

For the most up-to-date cancer information and support, contact the American Cancer Society anytime at (800) ACS-2345 or www.cancer.org.

Local woman running for a cure

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Charlevoix resident Valerie McBain will meet a personal challenge to further a worthy cause.

McBain, 29, has committed to run a marathon — which is 26.2 miles — June 21 in Anchorage, Ala. The event will benefit the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society, a nonprofit agency dedicated to seeking the cure for leukemia, lymphoma, Hodgkin's disease and myeloma and to improve the quality of life for patients and their families.

"I wanted to do something good for other people. I haven't volunteered for anything since I graduated from college (Central Michigan University in 1997)," she said.

This particular cause has a close place in McBain's heart. She has been closely impacted by cancer twice in her life. Her grandmother, Gladys Hoppe, is a breast cancer survivor and her husband's, Charlevoix Courier editor Jeremy McBain, cousin Stacie McBain succumbed to non-Hodgkin's lymphoma in October of 1999.

So instead of passively watching as others fight for a cure, she joined the society's 12 member Traverse City Team in Training.

She found out about the race through fitness magazines to which she subscribes. She later received correspondence from the Traverse City team encouraging her to attend a meeting and join the effort.

After exploring the commitment, she knew this was an opportunity she couldn't pass up.

"This is a good cause and it's worth my time and effort," McBain said. "So many people are effected by cancer and I can help get rid of it."

According to information provided by the society, leukemia is responsible for the deaths of more children than any other disease and leukemia and lymphoma are the leading fatal cancers in young men and women under 35 in the United States.

McBain has been running since October of 2002 and started seriously training for the upcoming event in February, running four times a week. This will be her first marathon, but she is confident she will succeed.

"I'm not nervous yet. I won't get nervous until the start of the race. But I know I'll definitely finish," she said.

She leaves for Alaska June 19 and returns to Charlevoix June 24. This is McBain's first time to Alaska and in her downtime, before or after the race, she is hoping to do a glacial cruise and hike.

McBain's sponsorship goal for this event is to raise $4,500 for the society. She needs $2,500 more to meet that goal and has a May 30 deadline.

Valerie McBain, of Charlevoix, will be running a marathon in Alaska to raise money for the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society. (Courtesy photo)

Those who would like to sponsor her can make a check out to the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society and mail it to Valerie McBain, 05932 Loeb Road, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Donations are 100 percent tax deductible.

Roloff Memorial to help Trimpers

The ninth annual "Bryan Roloff Memorial Benefit" will take place at 2 p.m., May 18 at the Flight Deck Bar and Paul Bunyan Lanes in Charlevoix.

Roloff died in May of 1994 from a brain tumor. Since then, fellow musicians, friends and family have gathered each year in his memory to raise money to help those with medical needs.

Proceeds from this year's event will go to Max Trimper and his family.

Trimper, 7, his sister, Maddie, 4, and brother, Sam, 3, all suffer from metachromatic leukodystrophy, an enzyme deficiency for which there is no cure.

The Roloff fundraiser will include raffles, music and food. Bands scheduled to perform include: Misconduct, Mojo and the Boogieman, Namus, Ford-Prefix and Blue Frog.

For more information contact Shirley Roloff at 547-6169 or Paul Bunyan Lanes at 547-2848.

Residents challenged to 'Get Moving'

Residents from Boyne City, Charlevoix and East Jordan have been challenged by West Branch, Alpena, Gaylord, Petoskey, Harbor Springs, Grayling, Cheboygan, Northport, Cadillac and Traverse City to exercise regularly and get northern Michigan moving.

In Charlevoix County residents will kick off the program at noon on Friday, May 16, in Charlevoix at the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation, located at 14634 Park Avenue, when they have the opportunity to "walk their first mile."

Participants may pick up their registration packets at the Curves locations in Boyne City, East Jordan, Charlevoix; Boyne Rehabilitation Center in Boyne City; Jordan Valley Rehab in East Jordan; the foundation office in Charlevoix; Harbor Health and Fitness in Charlevoix; or the city hall offices in Boyne City or East Jordan.

Each participate must pay either $1 or a canned good (proceeds will benefit food pantries in the designated communities); select the community they are walking for; and start walking (or other forms exercise). The program is designed to encourage participants to exercise regularly at an activity of their choice with the focus being on each person's ability to do their best for a period of 100 days.

. Residents and summer guests are encouraged to walk, swim, skate, golf, garden or a variety of other activities for the fun of it, to improve their health and for the opportunity to win weekly drawings being held by the foundation.

The event is sponsored by the Community Relations Committee of the hospital's foundation, and with the support of area businesses, prizes will be drawn each Friday for caps, cups, makeup cases, golf packages, swim passes, passes to area fitness centers and other miscellaneous items.

Following the completion of the program in September, each participant who returns his "log" to the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation office will be eligible for a single big drawing of $100.

Participants may sign up anytime during the spring or summer and participate as long as they are in the area. The program will end on August 23. Questions about the program may be directed to the foundation office by calling 547-8502.

A similar program was given last summer (100 Miles in 100 Days) and this winter (Four Months of Frigid Fitness).

The winner of the winter $100 will be drawn on May 23.

Winter participants are reminded to turn their "logs" in by May 19.

Center youth concert May 19

The Crooked Tree Arts Center will have the third annual Spring Concert of the Crooked Tree Youth Orchestra and the Crooked Tree Arts Center Beginning Strings Program Students.

The concert is scheduled for 7 p.m., Monday, May 19 at the John M. Hall Auditorium on the grounds of Bay View Association. The concert is free of charge and open to the public.

In the fall of 2000, the Crooked Tree Arts Center began offering string instruction to the public and private schools of Charlevoix and Emmet counties. Every school child has the opportunity to learn string instruments in their own classroom, with tuition-free instruction provided by the Crooked Tree Arts Center and Karey Johnson, Dorothy Gerber Chair for Children and Music.

Musical instruments are rented to families at a very low cost. In cases where families are not able to provide for the instrument rental fee, Crooked Tree Arts Center insures that the child has an instrument provided at no cost.

What began as an exploratory effort to reach area youth who might be interested in playing a stringed instrument has blossomed to involve over 300 young people from Petoskey, Harbor Springs, Boyne City, Alanson, Charlevoix, Pellston, East Jordan, Ellsworth and Central Lake.

Area home school students have embraced the program as well and play together on a weekly basis.

The Crooked Tree Arts Center's Beginning Strings Program is a community effort; as it requires the cooperation of the Arts Center, school districts, educators and parents.

The Crooked Tree Arts Center is located downtown Petoskey at 461 E. Mitchell Street. For more information regarding the concert, please call the arts center at 347-4337. The web site is www.crookedtree.org.

Hospice auction coming up

A number of donations have been given for the upcoming Hospice of Northwest Michigan auction.

A unique decorating item is a large wicker basket with a pheasant feather design donated by Jim and Nancy Gowell that was made by their daughter. This is one of hundreds of items that will be available for bidding at the auction.

The event will take place at 5:30 p.m., June 6 at the Boyne Mountain Civic Center and will include both silent and live auctions.

A $20 donation will include the entry fee, hors d'oeuvres, prizes and music entertainment by Margaret Thomson.

Tickets are available at the door the night of the event or at Boyne Country Books in Boyne City, Busy Bridge Antiques in East Jordan, The Clothing Company in Charlevoix, Orchard Hills, Ltd. in Bellaire and the hospice office in East Jordan.

Hospice of Northwest Michigan works in partnership with Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency to provide nursing, social work, home health aides, chaplain and therapists.

The hospice group provides the volunteer, bereavement and fund raising component of the program.

This decorative wicker basket was donated for the Hospice auction. (Courtesy photo)

Art center to host Earl North exhibit

The Crooked Tree Arts Center announces exhibition dates of Earl North, American Impressionist of the early 20th century.

The opening reception is scheduled from 5 to 7 p.m. Thursday, May 22. Frank North, the artist's son, will be in attendance and refreshments will be served.

The show runs through June 21.

The opening reception is free and open to the public.

A "Brown Bag Lunch Lecture" series will be given each Wednesday, from 12:15 to 1 p.m., beginning May 28 and running through June 18. Adults are invited to bring their lunch to the arts center temporary exhibition space at 445 E. Mitchell Street, downtown Petoskey.

Earl North was born in Haskins, Ohio in 1904. His artistic ability was recognized at an early age from his outstanding drawing.

However, his interests led him toward music, and he became a very proficient violinist and saxophone player.

While pursuing serious study of music, he also learned the art of fine watch making while working with his father, Frank William North, in his jewelry business.

He worked continuously as a watchmaker until his death in 1989.

North studied with Carl Gaertner of the Cleveland Art Institute while Gaertner was a guest teacher at the Toledo Museum of Art.

He also studied in the classes of Harry Ballinger and Emil Gruppe and intensively studied independently.

North exhibited extensively in the Toledo area, and consistently won awards at the National Bank Show, Port of Toledo Exhibits, Toledo Flower and Garden Show and others. His work has been selected to hang in exhibits at Bowling Green State University, The Dayton Institute of Art, The Toledo Artist's Club, The Rockland, Maine Museum and prominent galleries in Ohio. A highlight of his exhibits was a one-man show at the Toledo Museum of Art.

His work has sold throughout the United States and graces many major corporate offices, banks, libraries and private homes.

North's love of nature are reflected in every work.

He worked continuously until his death in 1989, almost entirely outdoors to capture the essence of nature he so dearly loved.

How to get your event news in the Courier

If you have a news item you think would be perfect for the Charlevoix Courier, feel free to call 547-6558, e-mail charlevoixcourier@charlevoixcourier.com or visit the Courier office located at 112 Mason Street in downtown Charlevoix.

News items include events sponsored by non-profit organizations. Please inform us of your event at least two weeks in advance.

Our coverage area is the city of Charlevoix and its immediately surrounding areas, including Beaver Island.

Because of space limitations in the newspaper, we generally try to avoid publishing "check-handing" pictures or "ribbon-cutting" pictures. However, we will work with your organization to get a picture that reflects the event and is visually interesting to our readers.

We cannot attend every event we are notified of due to time constraints on the staff. If you have a picture of your event, we will gladly consider it for publication. But, please, contact us before your event.

It should be noted, each story and picture is dealt with on its individual merits. Any policies outlined above may be suspended by the editor or general manager of the Charlevoix Courier if necessary.

After 76-year wait, steeple back on church

Over 76 years ago the steeple at the Charlevoix United Methodist Church was struck by lightning and destroyed — now, as the church celebrates its 125th birthday, the steeple has been reconstructed.

United Methodist Church Reverend Todd Thompson said long-time members of his parish have said people who would come to Charlevoix by boat before 1927 would use the church's steeple as a beacon. After the storm, the church knew it would have to rebuild, but the price tag was too high.

So, in the 1970s parishioners established a steeple fund to reconstruct the landmark. But with just under $100,000 to raise, the task would not be quick.

In 1997, the church completed a major addition that more than doubled its size. At that time the parish decided the project should also include the new steeple.

But the decision to buy the steeple turned out to be just a preliminary step in a two year zoning battle.

In 2001 the steeple's size at 22 feet high almost ended the project. Because it is greater than 15 percent of the building's height, it constituted a code violation and the city of Charlevoix zoning board denied the construction request.

"The steeple could have only been about 7 feet which would have looked strange compared to the rest of the building," Thompson said.

Church representatives appealed to the zoning board and were again denied their request to construct.

Members of the congregation decided to take a historic approach to the project and appealed to the Michigan State Office of Historic Preservation. They requested a letter of recommendation be drafted by the preservation group to the city zoning board saying that since the church is a historical building constructed in 1878 it should be allowed to reconstruct a replica steeple.

In November of 2002 the zoning board reviewed the recommendation and gave the church the OK to rebuild its steeple.

The steeple, which was put in place again on May 8 after almost a century, is a replica of the original, recently purchased from a fiberglass manufacturer in Tennessee.

"Finally it's happened. It is the last thing that was needed to finish the project," Thompson said.

While the addition is finished, church secretary Jennie Martinus said this project is also important to the congregation for other reasons.

"This ties the past and the present," she said. "It's a symbol."

A dedication service for the steeple will be scheduled in the near future.

This spring, a recognition of three of Charlevoix's historic churches located along State Street is planned.

The church tour event will take place June 3 and will include the Charlevoix United Methodist Church built in 1878, Christ Episcopal Church built in 1894 and the First Congregational Church built in 1883.

Transit trouble

Editor:

My uncle has been having a problem with the county transit. My uncle has an electric scooter so he can get around because he has had both his legs amputated; the county has transported him around for a while. Then one day he called the transit for a ride and the dispatcher told him that they had a meeting and said if he could not transfer to a seat than they would not be able to transport him anymore. Transit said they don't have the right tie downs for his scooter. I have spoken to the County Commissioner Randy Fryberg and he said that he would look into it to see if we could resolve this problem. I called the county transit an was told the same thing, that they don't have the right tie downs for his scooter and I asked if they could buy them and transit told me that they could not afford to pay for the right tie downs. I am asking for money to be added to the budget so transit could buy the right tie downs. I thought it was public transportation; well I don't know anymore because my uncle is part of the public and we pay our taxes just like everyone else.

(According to Charlevoix County Clerk Jane Brannon, the situation has been taken care of and Sage's uncle is riding the transit bus now.)

Thank you

Editor:

Monday, April 14, opened very dry, coupled with high winds, a particularly bad combination where there is the threat of fire. There were several fires which burned out of control during the day, which kept our fire departments busy. So I am indebted to those individuals who saw a need and responded by acting quickly and unselfishly to assist our emergency response units. They were able to prevent bad situations from becoming much worse. Myself and everyone here at the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department would like to thank these individuals wholeheartedly.

First of all, Maria Everett, a local mail carrier, recognized the need to direct traffic where a grass fire was burning out of control on Wilson Road near Healey Road to assist the fire department. When Deputy Sheriff David Hague arrived to handle the traffic control, he saw Maria already there and doing an excellent job. Once Deputy Hague took over traffic control, she just waved and continued on with the mail delivery.

Secondly, Deputy Hague spoke with two young men at the scene who explained to him that they heard the fire call, arrived on the scene before the fire department and worked diligently to reduce the spread of the fire until the fire department arrived. As it turned out, the East Jordan Fire Department had been dispatched to another fire on Marsh Road, and the Boyne City Fire Department had to be called out for the fire on Wilson Road, thus causing some delay in response time. My thanks to both these young men for helping to prevent an already bad situation from becoming much worse.

Last, but not least, even before this grass fire was under control, we were called to check a downed line on Advance Road. Upon our arrival, we noted that not only was there a cable down, but a tree was also down and blocking part of the roadway reducing traffic to one lane. A citizen stopped and identified himself as an employee of a cable company, knowledgeable about the damaged cable and willing to assist in cutting it and removing it from the road. Then Dean Tims, who lives on Shaler Road brought his chainsaw to the sight and removed the tree, opening the blocked lane. When the Charlevoix County Road Commission arrived, they were pleased to see the roadway cleared and traffic running smoothly.

It is always a pleasure to award special commendations to any citizen who performs above and beyond what is required of them. But this particular day seems to have been blessed with several such opportunities, and I am happy to bring these extraordinary situations to the attention of all the residents living in our area. Again, thank you for your unselfish and courageous efforts under such trying circumstances.

Lime Jello Girls to perform at art center

Who doesn't have dreams, yearnings, desires and appetites?

The Lime Jello Girls, a West Michigan based ensemble will be sharing a unique evening of entertainment with their revue, "Lime Jello, Marshmellow Surprise! (A Midlife Musical Revue)" on Saturday, June 7 at the Crooked Tree Arts Center.

"Lime Jello, Marshmellow Surprise" is an entertainment of songs for and about women, especially created and presented by four seasoned western Michigan performers. Throughout history, women have been blessed and plagued with common longings and aspirations particular to their gender. This show is created to convey some of those sensibilities that have endured through the ages.

Jean Bahle, Carol Black, Mary Hyatt and Mamey MacAdam are well known to the west Michigan community. Each has performed with all of the major area theaters in musicals, dramas and comedies over many years and they relish the opportunity to perform together in a production of their own making.

The revue includes solos, duets, trios and quartets with music that ranges from ballads to blues with some country and barbershop thrown in for good measure. Interspersed with dialogue, the adult material leads the audience through a multitude of moods and coloration — capricious, provocative and heartening.

Jean Gardner, another popular musical veteran, will be joining the foursome as musical director and keyboardist.

Tickets are $15 and can be purchased by calling the art center at 347-4337 or online at www.crookedtree.org. The Crooked Tree Arts Center is located at 461 E. Mitchell Street in downtown Petoskey.

Soccer team wins conference match Friday

Playing on consecutive nights and against a much improved East Jordan squad, the Rayders finally worked out a way to put the ball in the net well into the second half to win the conference Friday night, 3-0.

Although Charlevoix dominated the game with 47 scoring opportunities, the East Jordan keeper, with 29 saves, and a packed in defense bugged the Rayders.

Charlevoix was led in scoring by freshman Madison Ramsey with two goals and sophomore Jaime Pettis with two assists.

Kelly Zimmerman also scored and Alyssia McDonough had the other assist. Brooke Blanchard made five saves in goal to record the shutout.

"This was a good opportunity to play all our squad in a competitive match," coach Carol Madison said.

The Rayders' Player of the Game was awarded to Maggie Romig for coming off the bench and providing some much needed spark for Charlevoix.

On May 8, Harbor Springs beat Charlevoix, 2-1.

Harbor Springs scored about 14 minutes into the first half on a redirect from a free kick to take a 1-0 lead.

The Rams scored again a few minutes later, when Charlevoix failed to rotate and cover the left flank allowing a fairly easy shot by Kalie Grambeau to elude the Rayders' freshman keeper Laura Nitchman.

The young Rayders began stepping up the pace following the second goal and play was relatively even back-and-forth until late in the first half, when Charlevoix's Shayna Drost finished off a nice free kick cross from freshman Stevie Murray to bring the score to 2–1.

The Rayders played the highly touted Rams even through the second half, but were unable to penetrate for many good scoring opportunities.

On the night, Charlevoix managed eight shots to Harbor's 12, with Nitchman making 10 saves for another strong showing in the net.

Charlevoix's defense, effectively shutting down the Rams for the final 60 minutes, was led by Murray, and the sophomore trio of Sarah Cross, Britni Whittaker and Madison McKenzie.

McDonough had a strong game in the midfield, helped by sophomore Grace Farrell and freshman Madison Ramsey provided some much needed spark to get Charlevoix going after Harbor's scores.

Forwards Jaime Pettis and Drost consistently challenged for balls up front to put pressure on the Ram defense.

Pettis was awarded Rayder Player of the Game honors.

Tennis team takes third in conference championship

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The Charlevoix High School tennis team took third place in the conference championship Friday in Boyne City.

"Being third at conferences was a good showing because it shows improvement for us," coach Erik Lundteigen said.

Individual results were:

- First, singles — Nate Turner lost his first match against Harbor Springs, 6-1, 6-2. He won his second match 6-4, 7-6.
- Second, singles — Josh Fassett lost his first match 6-1, 6-1.
- Third, singles — Mitchell Klooster lost his first match to Elk Rapids 6-3, 6-1. He won his second match against Boyne City 6-0, 6-0.
- Fourth, singles — Ben Scheelk won his first match against Boyne City by default. He lost his second match against Harbor Springs 6-2, 6-0.
- First, doubles — Cody Wheat and Adam Wager won their first match against Boyne City 6-2, 7-6. They lost their second match against Elk Rapids 6-3, 6-1.
- Second, doubles — Matt Nitchman and Taylor Martin won their first match against Traverse City St. Francis 6-4, 6-3. They lost their second match against Elk Rapids 6-4, 4-6, 6-2.
- Third, doubles — Matt Novotny and Joshua Saur lost their first match against Elk Rapids 6-1, 3-6, 6-2. They won their second match against Boyne City, 6-2, 6-3.
- Fourth, doubles — AnnaKate Trubilowicz and Lindsey Miller won their first match against Boyne City 6-1, 6-4. They lost their second match against Elk Rapids 6-0, 6-1.

Lundteigen said the team is getting prepared this week for regional Friday.

"If we do well there, we will qualify for state," he said.

Loper impressive in varsity baseball game

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

Matt Loper was a one-man wrecking crew leading the Charlevoix Rayders baseball squad to a sweep at Traverse City St. Francis by scores of 1-0 and 11-3.

Loper, a sophomore recently called up from the junior varsity, had the game-winning RBI in game one and was the winning pitcher in game two. His three-run homer in the nightcap broke the game open.

Kreg Wager continued his dominance on the hill for Charlevoix in the opener, tossing a four-hit shutout to raise his record to 4-1. He also had one of the five Rayder hits.

Taylor Fisher was 1 for 3 and scored the games only run. Matt Kochanny and Jake Teuscher also had hits.

In the nightcap, Nate Teuscher sparked the Rayder offense with three hits, a stolen base, an RBI and three runs scored. Kochanny had his best outing of the year on the mound in relief, earning a save by allowing only one hit in three innings of work.

Loper was three for four with two runs scored and three RBI. Matt Burtt was two for three with a run and an RBI. Wager was 1 for 4 with an RBI and a run scored. Hal Foster was one for two with an RBI sacrifice fly.

"I feel good about where we're at as a team right now. We're overcoming some early season adversity with injuries and we're getting some key guys back in our lineup just as our play seems to be peaking," coach Bryan Hawkins said. "I'm thrilled by the outstanding effort given by the sophomores and seniors. It really gives us some momentum heading into the latter part of our schedule."

The Rayders lost both ends of a doubleheader against Boyne City on Monday, May 12, but results were unavailable at presstime.

Charlevoix (7-11 overall, 4-6 conference) travels to Inland Lakes on Thursday, May 15 and to Cheboygan on Saturday, May 17.

Softball team takes two losses

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

The Charlevoix Rayders softball team ran into some tough competition last week and were swept by Traverse City St. Francis, 6-1 and 16-1, and by Boyne City, 8-1 and 14-0.

Against the Gladiators, the Rayders managed only five hits in the doubleheader.

Jessica Pettis had hits in both games. Andrea Ruhlman had two hits in the opener while Amanda Boss had a single in the nightcap.

The Rayders were competitive in game one against Boyne as Monica Cornell yielded only four hits and four walks but errors led to Boyne runs. Cornell struck out five in her six innings of work.

Katie Sheldon had two hits. Natashia Kleiber, Erin Burns and Brittany Niswander each had one hit.

In the nightcap, Kleiber, Ruhlman, Niswander and Sam Kupka all had hits.

Charlevoix (4-10 overall, 2-8 conference) travels to Inland Lakes on Thursday, May 15 in non-conference action.

Traffic solutions debated by council

TRAFFIC

"There would be a modest gain in the number of left-turning vehicles that could be accommodated," he wrote in a January memo to Halverson.

"In my view, closing the crosswalk on the north side of the Bridge-Clinton intersection is an 'anti-pedestrian' action, interrupting 'expected' walking options for pedestrians. Moreover, enforcement will be difficult with or without police or others being present," he added.

One of the possible negative ramifications of closing that intersection that Lyles pointed out was some people may choose not to travel the northeast part of Charlevoix.

"The land uses in the northeast quadrant will get less 'walk by' traffic and presumably suffer some loss of sales/business," he wrote to Halverson.

This same concern prompted several businesses on that side of the street to sign a petition against closing the intersection.

Owner of several local clothing stores, Kirby Dipert, said he opposes closing that intersection even on a trial basis.

"I can't afford that experiment. I make a living six weeks out of the year," he said.

Dipert suggested that the city address the real problem, the bridge. He said if the bridge opening time was changed to every 30 minutes on the quarter hour, instead of the half hour and if a yard stick were placed at the channel entrance to measure boat heights, bridge openings may be shorter.

John Winn, a Charlevoix resident and chairman of the Michigan Waterways Commission, agreed with Dipert and further suggested that the bridge tender use a VHF radio to communicate to boats exactly when the bridge will open.

None of these changes were approved by city council at the May 5 meeting when it agreed to work with MDOT. Any future changes to the bridge operation would have to be approved by the Army Corps of Engineers.

Lyles suggested closure of pedestrian crossings on the north side of Antrim and Bridge streets and the south side of Mason and Bridge streets.

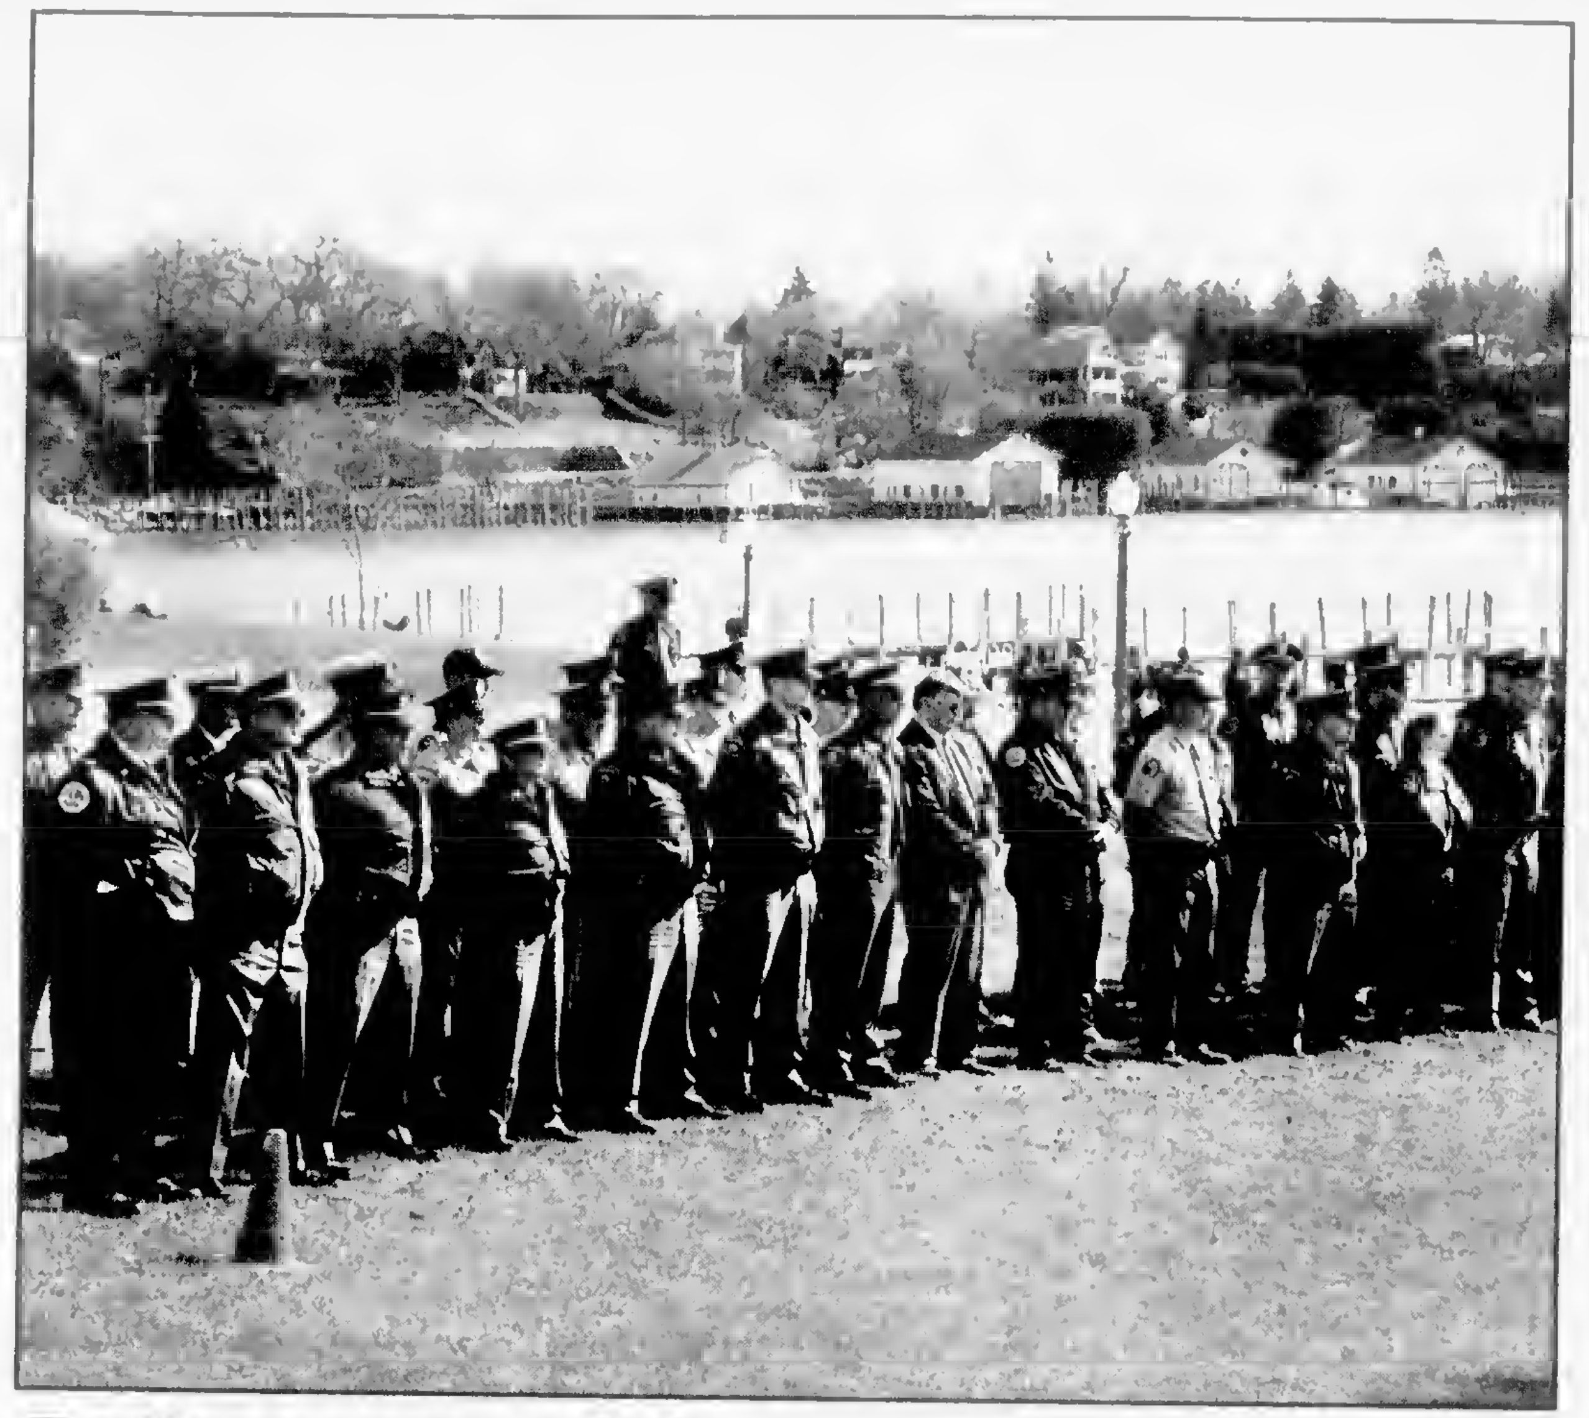
Also, he suggested the removal of a parking space at Park Avenue and at Mason Street to help visibility.

MDOT officials said attempts to discourage crossing at intersections is a local issue and took no position.

But council ultimately decided to go with the traffic light tweaking option.

While this option sounds like it could be the answer to traffic tie-ups, Lyles said to significantly enhance traffic flow the city would have to make major changes like maintaining four lanes through town or by making Bridge Street a one-way.

Third ward council member Shirley Gibson agreed that the light tweaking could help, but it is just a Band-Aid and a more major solution is still needed.



Police memorial

The Third Annual Northwest Michigan Peace Officers Memorial Service took place in Charlevoix's East Park Tuesday morning. The ceremony included an honorary flyover by the United States Coast Guard Air Station Traverse City, advancement of colors by the United States Coast Guard Color Guard, a presentation of the memorial wreath, musical performances by Sean Ryan and the Charlevoix High School Band and a speech by Charlevoix County 33rd Circuit Court Judge Richard Pajtas. Recognition of fallen officers started in the early 1960s when president John F. Kennedy named the second week of May National Police Memorial Week. (Photo by Julie Witthoeft)

School to consider two bids on property

She said the agreement the library recently reached with the city worked better as the whole piece is kept in public hands.

Deputy mayor Norm "Boogie" Carlson, a first ward city councilman, submitted the city's offer at the school board's May 12 meeting.

The city's plan is to enter into an agreement of sale with the school district and an additional option agreement with the library to sell it 10 lots when it has the funds to buy them.

"This is a good opportunity to keep a building that has been in the community for many generations. It's a good chance for public entities to work together for the betterment of the community," Carlson said.

The option agreement the city has drafted for the library requires it to buy 10 of the 13 lots by Feb. 12, 2005 and in the meantime to pay interest on those lots.

Meyerson said she believes the purchase price will be $488,460 with annual interest around $17,000.

She told the school board this is a way for the library to have time to ask voters to support a millage to pay for the property and for the school district to wash its hands of it.

If the board accepts the agreement of sale offered by the city, the library would be in charge of the building and the city in charge of the grounds. Meyerson said the library plans to shut the utilities off.

While the city has an interest in maintaining ownership of three lots at the site, and in the past has said they would be used for marina overflow parking, this may no longer be the case.

The agreement of sale with the school district asks that it allow for parking of 66 vehicles at the current middle school off Garfield during the summer, free of charge.

Meyerson said she hopes this means the three city owned lots at the former middle school property will be used for open park space.

At the school board meeting, the city and library indicated they would like to extend their decision making time to June 30. But the decision will have to be made before then; Sherman's offer is set to expire May 23.

The school board decided to pass the city's offer along to its attorney for review. After this review is complete the board's building and grounds committee, which includes board president Allen Telgenhof, treasurer Barney Way and trustee Dennis Halverson, will meet.

This meeting was at 7:30 a.m., May 14, today.

At the meeting, the committee will make a recommendation to the school board which will make the final decision at a special meeting to be scheduled in the future.

If the board accepts the city's offer, the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority plans to buy the property using Act 99 financing.

City attorney Bryan Graham attended the school board meeting and informed the board of how this route of financing works. He said municipalities, like the city, by state law cannot borrow money from banks as a normal developer can. Act 99 allows the city to buy property and at closing to enter into an installment purchase agreement with a bank.

But the school district will get its money up front, not in installments.

"The school district will not be waiting for its money over a period of time, you get the money up front," he said.

The installment payments are made by the city to the local bank, like a loan. The loan goes out for bids and is available to all local banks. A bank will be chosen based on the number of installments it requires and the interest rate it offers.

SCRAPBOOK

More memories of the 1960s from Courier columns

Marilyn Boss

'Days gone by'

In my previous article, I wrote about the correspondents in Norwood, Ironton, Phelps, Clark and Barnard, who told the activities of friends and neighbors in their area.

They wrote for the Charlevoix Courier and everyone could enjoy what was happening in their lives. The columns were most interesting and there were many contributions each week. Unfortunately, I can only tell some of them, but you may recall those people you knew, as I have.

The following columns were written in 1963.

The Hayes-Bay Shore area was covered by correspondent, Mrs. Thomas Maxwell. She wrote in 1963: Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Struthers of Maywood, Ill., former residents of Hayes, plan to return home this week after spending over two weeks visiting with his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Bartlett and his mother, Mrs. John Struthers in Charlevoix. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ketchem of Galesburg and Mr. and Mrs. Addison Chew of Coldwater stopped for a brief visit last week with Mr. and Mrs. Karl Purdy. Birthday greetings to PFC David Goike, in Vietnam. Also to Ensign Jerry Keiser, Charleston South Carolina and George Goike, Bay Shore. Mr. Grant Furgeson, will celebrate his 82nd birthday this month. The Rev. Howard Genia of the Presbyterian Church in New York will be guest speaker at the Greensky Hill Methodist Church camp meeting. Special feature will be the Negro Spiritualist singing group from Harbor Springs.

Mrs. John Oosterbaan was the correspondent from Ellsworth. Her column mentioned the following: Village President Henry Ruis, President of the Chamber of Commerce, Gerrit John Drenth, Harm Sitzema and Del Clow drove to Gaylord Wednesday to attend a highway meeting concerning the improvement of highway No. 32. Joan Drenth of Grand Rapids spent the weekend with her parents. Mrs. Larry Kayner and daughter of Sparta accompanied her and visited her parents, the Melvin Essenbergs. The Ellsworth March of Dimes netted $264.44 according to Mrs. Darwin Orcutt, chairman, Mrs. George Koster and Mrs. Gerrit John Drenth, who assisted Mrs. Orcutt on the committee. Mothers who marched were Mrs. Peter Jake Drenth, Mrs. Arthur Ruis, Mrs. William Armstrong, Mrs. Ida Drenth, Mrs. Jack VanLoo, Mrs. Edwin Petter and Mrs. Earl Denny. Mrs. Hans DeYoung, now living at Meadow Brook, Bellaire, will commemorate her eighty-fifth birthday.

The correspondent in Beaver Island was Marion Martin. In the news there were the following items: Mrs. Mary Greene returned home to the island after spending the winter in Charlevoix. Vernon Fitzpatrick spent a few days on the mainland attending a conservation meeting. Mr. and Mrs. Peter Gallagher of Charlevoix are spending a week on the island. Roger Carlisle, Laurence McDonough and Archie LaFrenier attended a boat meeting in St. Ignace last week. Great Improvements were made on the baseball diamond here this past week. The men and boys build a new backstop, filled holes and fixed new bases. Beaver Island Community College opened for the season last Friday. Thirty guests spent the weekend there. The ferry, BEAVER ISLANDER, made a special trip Sunday to take them back to the mainland. Doctor and Mrs. H.B. Haynes returned home this past week after spending a week on the mainland.

In Atwood, Mrs. Henry Burns was the correspondent. News was as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Rink DeVries and son, Terry, were Sunday evening supper guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Vail and family of Ellsworth. Bill Essenburg and Miss Cathy Peters of Grand Rapids were weekend guests at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Essenburg. Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Holecheck and two children called on Mr. and Mrs. Bud Flower at Norwood Saturday evening. Anita Potter, 7-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Potter, broke her leg while skiing at Pleasant Valley. Mrs. Harry Brock and Mrs. Henry Burns were in Flint where they attended the capping ceremony of the former's daughter, Lynda Jean, at Hurley Hospital School of Nursing. Mr. and Mrs. David Kass and children of Grand Rapids spent the weekend visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Pott and family.

Charlevoix news was written by several columnists.

One of them, "I See By The Courier," contained the following items: Mrs. Ray L. Kipke has returned home from Holland where she visited her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Don Bambach and attended the Tulip Festival. Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Potts are enroute to their home at 212 Nichols St. from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., where they spend the winter months. Edward Boss returned Monday to his home in Pompano Beach, Fla., following a two week visit with his mother, Mrs. John Boss, Sr. and other relatives. Mrs. Franklin Curtis was in Ann Arbor recently to spend Parents Weekend with her daughter, Cynthia, a senior at the University of Michigan. Mr. and Mrs. Max Novak and two sons, Carl and Charles, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Racignol, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Campbell and Mr. and Mrs. H.W. Bingham were in Mt. Pleasant Sunday for parents Day at Central Michigan University. Among the deer hunters trying their chances in the upper peninsula are Harley Warner, Robert Geer, Larry Swanson, Ken Staley, Ed Mann, Frank Novotny, Frank Pop, Orville Hilton and Orlin Cunningham.

There certainly are many items of the past in the Couriers. I for one am very glad they were written for posterity, so we may enjoy the remembrances of years gone by.

For those of you who enjoy the stories of yesterday, I have just finished reading Clayton A. Smith's latest book, "The Rest of the Stories." He wrote more of his reminiscences about local hunting and trapping, and also included many enjoyable tales about his family, which are very entertaining. His phone number is 547-2920. It's a good read.

FRISKE ORCHARDS KICKS OFF THE SEASON

The annual "Blossom Festival" at Friske's Farm Market is ready to kick off another wonderful season of fruit and family fun on May 17. There will he many attractions during this festival, including Johnny Appleseed, who will be ready to give walking tours through the orchard to see the beautiful apple blossoms. Local author, Nancy Ritsema will be on site to sign copies of her book, "Norwood." Ariel Kohler, a local musician, will be playing the harp. This sounds like a great family event for everyone.

PROBATION OFFICERS TO MEET IN CHARLEVOIX

The Chamber is happy to announce that Charlevoix is the site for the Michigan Association of District Court Probation Officers annual conference on May 20-23. Approximately 225 persons are attending this conference and will be utilizing several Chamber members for their conference; namely, Edgewater Inn, Pointes North Inn, Weathervane Terrace Inn & Suites, Sleep Inn, Stafford's Weathervane Restaurant, and the Charlevoix Country Club. In addition, the conference will generate revenue at several other business establishments.

CHARLEVOIX NAMED IN TOP 10 TOWNS FOR INVESTING IN A 2ND HOME

The Chamber received a copy of an article featured in The San Diego Union-Tribune, which states that Charlevoix is No. 10 on the list of Top 10 Towns for investing in a second home. (Source: EscapedHomes.com Compiled hy cross-referencing consumer interest in vacation towns recorded on the firm's Web site with the percentage of equity growth in each area over five years.) Looking at retirement, boomers eye weekend getaway homes. "This is a "me" generation. They love to spend money. And if they can afford it, they will own two properties," according to Clark Thompson, CEO of EscapeHomes.com.

THANK YOU TO WILLIAM SCHUILING

City's offer accepted

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Plans to convert the former Charlevoix Middle School to the new Charlevoix Public Library took a major leap forward last week.

The Charlevoix Public Schools building and grounds committee met in special session May 14 to discuss two offers that had been formally submitted for purchase of the school property. One was from a private individual and the other was from the city of Charlevoix.

Committee members ultimately opted to pursue the city's offer which means Charlevoix Public Library has likely found its new home.

Library board trustee Mary Anne Chew said, "It's been a long haul. It's amazing to have four governmental entities working together. I think the community wants to see the middle school preserved."

One offer the committee considered was entered by Boulder Park resident Bill Sherman for $775,000. The second offer for $635,000 came from the city of Charlevoix. Sherman's offer was for all 14 lots, while the city's doesn't include the current administrative building, which has been appraised at $140,000.

Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools Dr. John Sturock said he sees some benefit to retaining the administrative lot.

"The city's offer gives us a little more breathing room. We can stay here until we build a new central office," he said.

Petunia planting will be Thursday

Once again it's time for Charlevoix's annual Operation Petunia — a community-wide planting party that lines 5 miles of the city's main thoroughfare with colorful petunias each year.

The event begins at 5 p.m., May 22, when volunteers are invited to help plant both sides of US-31 from the airport north to Mercer Boulevard. Volunteers should wear comfortable clothing and bring their trowels along.

Each block along the route has been assigned a block captain to help direct the planting.

Planting the five-mile stretch is expected to take an hour.

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful donated the chance to pick the petunia colors to the Charlevoix Area Hospital Holly Daze auction. Chris Unbehaun was the winning bidder. She chose the combination of red, white, blue and purple.

Following the planting, volunteers are invited to gather at East Park downtown to celebrate their efforts and enjoy a community picnic.

A band from Northwest Academy will provide musical entertainment.

Construction along US-31 will be out of the way of planting.

Donations help cover the costs of Operation Petunia. To contribute send checks to Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, Inc. P.O. Box 1, Charlevoix, MI 49720. For more information about Operation Petunia contact Marell Staffel at 547-2561 or 547-5574.

Do not use bike path to get around construction

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department has issued a warning to all motorists driving on US-31 North to stay off the bike path.

It is not for motor vehicle use.

On the evening of May 13 a vehicle drove on the bicycle path trying to avoid construction zone delays and almost hit some bicyclists.

Use of the bike path by any motorized vehicle is illegal and any violation of traffic laws in a construction zone will double the traffic fine.

Sturock withdraws from open position downstate

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

Charlevoix Public Schools Superintendent Dr. John Sturock will remain in his position after withdrawing from a five person candidate pool for a superintendent spot down state.

Sturock was in the first round of interviews for the position of Lake Shore Schools Superintendent in St. Claire Shores when he withdrew.

Sturock said while the opportunity was good, he didn't feel it was right for him.

"It was very good school district. At this time, it wasn't the right situation for me personally," he said.

Sturock underwent the first round interview process on May 15 in the district's administrative center, but sent his letter of withdrawal the following day. School board president Conrad Piebiak said Sturock sent a letter to the school board Saturday stating after some consideration he decided to withdraw from the running.

Sturock said his decision to job search was made public because the Michigan school system conducts open meetings.

"The only way you can look at those jobs is through an interview. When you do that, it's a public situation," he said.

Sturock accepted the position with Charlevoix Public Schools five years ago. He said he and his wife were looking to move to the west side of the state, and they agreed Charlevoix was a nice place to live.

Although he was seriously considering the Lake Shore position, Sturock said he is happy staying in Charlevoix. He also said interviewing for another job reaffirmed what he has in Charlevoix.

"It's a great situation here. It would take a great deal for me to leave. I think you always have to look at opportunities for yourself, but right now I have no intentions of going anywhere else," he said.

The Lake Shore Schools position opened up after Superintendent John Brackett decided to resign and move to a town just outside Boston, Mass., where his fiancée resides.

Courier hires summer intern

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Westland native Amy Sayre will be joining the Charlevoix Courier as a staff writer this summer.

Amy Sayre

Sayre is a journalism major at Central Michigan University, with a minor in Spanish. She will be an intern at the Courier this summer and plans on graduating in August.

She has been in Charlevoix for just over a week.

"I like it a lot. I like that you can walk around and that it is an outdoor community. I have been on more walks here than I ever did at Central Michigan University last fall," she said of Charlevoix.

Sayre said she became interested in journalism when she was a sophomore in college. She had written a report in English class on pay rates and discovered that while a journalist does not make much money, most do it because it is a "calling."

"That is why I do it. It felt like it fit me," she said. "I like the interaction with people. I like knowing what is going on in the community and writing."

At the Courier, Sayre hopes to get a better understanding of the newspaper business and increase her writing skills. She also hopes to pick up bicycling as a hobby this summer.

"I heard the trails are good around here," she said.

As hobbies, Sayre said she enjoys photography and traveling. She has been to many locations in the United States, as well as Italy, Spain and China.

"To me traveling is the ultimate experience. If I could make a living at it, I would," she said.

But, Sayre said she cannot pick which country she has liked best in her travels.

"Every place is different. I like them all for different reasons," she said. "I am more particular to Spain because I am studying Spanish."

Sayre has a sister, Nicole, who is 24. She also has two nephews. Her parents are Wayne and Cathy Sayre of Westland.

She will be filling in for staff writer Julie Witthoeft over the summer, writing stories about the city of Charlevoix and the school district.

Witthoeft is taking a three month leave of absence to start a family with her husband, Charles.

She will return the first week of September.

Very big baby

After a long 11 month pregnancy, "Frankie," a 200 pound registered Belgian Draft horse, was born to "Susie Q" on the farm of Bill and Sue Gengle, May 12 off Klooster Road. Susie, a 2,000 plus pound horse gave birth to the colt in about 20 minutes. He spent his first afternoon out of the barn on May 15, and learned to run and shake his blond mane in the wind. The Gengles use the huge horses to pull sleighs, wagons and carts. (Photo by Julie Witthoeft)

OPINIONS

Compliments, meetings and lake trails

Jeremy McBain

'Just a thought'

With the coming of spring, my mind has been cleaning out some old thoughts and getting ready for some new ones.

But to make room for these new thoughts, I need to get the old ones on paper before they are tossed aside with the coming of more timely and relevant summer issues. Without further ado:

Charlevoix Middle School

First of all, I want to compliment the Board of Education for deciding to go with the city and library's offer to buy the old middle school and its property. If this plan is successful, the old school will be saved and remain standing for future generations of Charlevoix residents to enjoy its architecture and history.

Many residents want to see this building remain a part of history and I am sure they will be very happy to learn that the school board shares their desires.

But, this is just the first step in the process of saving this old building and its property for the public's use. The library must also be able to raise the money for the project.

Here's hoping they are able to do it.

Meeting centers

I cannot believe city and chamber officials are still talking about a meeting center in Charlevoix. When it was first proposed by the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce and the Convention and Visitor's Bureau, I thought the issue would die quickly. But it lingers and these officials continue to study the idea.

To get it straight, I am not necessarily against the idea of a meeting center or convention center in Charlevoix. What I am against is a meeting center or convention center being built with taxpayer money.

I think if those private business people of the chamber and convention and visitor's bureau think a meeting center is such a great idea, then they should build it themselves. Let them put their money where their mouths are.

Public money should be kept out of this private venture that will really only benefit four hotels on the north side of the bridge.

And why should the city build a meeting center that will compete with private businesses in town? I ask this especially now that Castle Farms is up and running.

Those who toured the facility last week saw a wonderful location for weddings, receptions, conventions, meetings, fund-raisers and various festivals. The Muellers — owners of Castle Farms — must have paid a fortune to fix up the place they way they did.

It would be a shame for the city to try to compete with this new business by building its own meeting facility. And many who were at the Castle last week agree, including Charlevoix Mayor Gabe Campbell.

While touring the Castle, Campbell said to me that the discussion on building a meeting facility in Charlevoix was over.

Sadly, I don't think those officials who were pushing for a meeting facility are going to agree. They seem determined to build their own using our money.

Lake-to-Lake Trail

There has been a real push lately by a group of people to create a trail from Lake Charlevoix to Lake Michigan using the old railroad spur that runs near the cement plant Cemex.

Trails are a great thing for Charlevoix and can bring in many new visitors to the area. Just look at what a success the Little Traverse Wheelway has been. For those of you who don't know, the Little Traverse Wheelway basically connects Charlevoix with Petoskey and has been a hit with bicyclists, walkers and joggers.

I think it would be fantastic to have a trail that goes from Lake Charlevoix to Lake Michigan.

But, I have some reservations about the preliminary plans I have seen for this one. Basically, it has to do with the trail being paved.

You see, I enjoy mountain biking. I really don't like riding on paved trails. And I really don't see the need to have every trail in Charlevoix paved. A dirt trail just looks more natural and feels more natural to me.

There are those who agree with me on this one, such as snowmobilers. According to one snowmobiler I talked to over the weekend, if the proposed lake to lake trail is paved, that means snowmobilers could only use it when it has a certain amount of snow on it.

Right now, they can use the trail throughout the snowmobile season. So, by having it paved, their use of the trail could drastically be cut.

So, I say to those pushing this new trail: Let's have a lake to lake trail, but to keep some variety in the trails around the county, let's keep this one natural.

Couple finds many things similar to Ireland in area

Edith Gilbert

'Ear to the ground'

"This is a dream come true for Garrett and me," said Irish born Stella Scanlan. She is, of course, referring to their new up north restaurant, "Garrett's On Water Street" in Boyne City.

Stella had to travel halfway around the world to find a spot in Michigan just like the place where she was born in County Meath, Ireland! Here is where she learned to swim and fish in the Boyne River, which she proudly tells me is renowned for delicious Irish salmon!

"Living in northern Michigan is nearest to living in Ireland as far as temperature and topography goes, and there's the same slower pace here — one has time to smell the roses," Stella says. "It's not like Dallas where we lived for 11 years."

The Scanlans bought a three story, red brick home on Petoskey Avenue in Charlevoix six years ago when Garrett was chef at Mahogany's. Built in 1916, the house reminds Stella of her grandparent's Victorian home. It is shaped like a shamrock — all the rooms are round, which she believes is another good omen.

Stella has fond memories of her "waltzing" grandparents, who told stories around the woodburning stove. Stella still likes to prepare roast chicken for Garrett using her grandmother's delicious stuffing recipe, which is composed of a lot of butter, fresh thyme, celery, parsley, chicken stock, salt and pepper and "my own bread crumbs.

"The stuffing should not be too soggy," she advises.

Stella says that her husband of 30-plus years is her best friend and they enjoy cooking together and setting their table in the dining room with Waterford crystal. She knows first hand how stressful it is to be a chef, because her father owned a fine restaurant where her brothers also worked.

"There is no down time in the kitchen," Stella admits. "It is one of the five most stressful jobs — right up there, along with being a pilot."

Garrett's father was a renowned chef and owned his own restaurant. "He couldn't keep me out of the kitchen," Garrett says. "At age 17, I worked in London at the Grovesnor Hotel and subsequently in Switzer-

Letters to the editor

Proud American

Editor:

Extreme joy is mine as I drive through the gauntlet of flapping flags and banners flagrantly flying on both sides of Bridge Street in beautiful downtown Charlevoix coincident with the squashing of Iraq's pitiful army by the most overwhelming force ever known in the history of warfare.

I applaud, give rousing cheers, hip-hips and hoorays that the few Johnny-Come-Latelys chose displaying the Stars and Stripes as a public way of assuring the rest of us that they too are proud to be American. And a special Huzzah to those others stating their new-found pride who, unable to lay their hands on an actual flag, hoisted a red, white and blue banner with a message at its hem, "Proud To Be American."

Readers may recall a few years ago, a similar phenomenon, the subject of which was loving one's children, that prodded a few motorists (suspecting the majority of us might think they harbored dark thoughts about their progeny) to the effort of pasting stickers on their bumpers that read, "I LOVE MY KIDS."

"Gosh," we thought. "Don't most of us love our kids? Similarly, aren't most of us proud to be Americans?"

The rewards of Junior Golf

Editor:

What's your youngster doing this summer?

Playing golf has its rewards. The Courier's recent coverage of high school senior David Shearer being awarded an athletic scholarship to bring his golf skills to Northern Kentucky University, certainly proves the monetary value for being a successful golfer. David joins former Rayder Keith Grunch, as having earned an athletic scholarship because of their golf success. While both were participants in the Charlevoix Junior Golf Program and also earned the program's scholarship to the famous Ferris State University golf academy, they learned the "competitive fire" through Coach Jim Glynn's high school golf program. While golf skills were "honed" by both junior golf and varsity participation, the traits and values that each player possesses were established at home by caring, devoted parents. And now Keith and David have become key role models for the community's young golfers.

The Charlevoix junior golf program stresses basic principles that help build a youngster's value system. The fact that no umpire, or official makes the calls for penalties and the young golfer must count accurately and impose their own penalties, encourages honesty and obedience to rules. Because youngsters must be on time for lessons, take care of their equipment, rake sand traps, care for the greens and the golf course, without parents' help, emphasizes responsibility. Learning to play golf with a variety of young players, helping them find balls, flag holes and have conversation encourages socialization and teamwork as well as having apathy for other golfers struggling to learn the game.

This summer will be the seventh year for the Charlevoix program, and again upwards to 200 area youngsters are expected to enroll. While the program has no broader goals than to teach youngsters a lifetime value system through the sport of golf, as we've just seen, occasionally a youngster who excels at golf can earn a college scholarship in addition to discovering a lifetime sport.

The program draws 85 percent of enrollees from Charlevoix, but nearby communities, Petoskey, Harbor Springs, Boyne City, East Jordan, Ellsworth, Alanson and Elk Rapids are usually represented in the class makeup. No one else in northern Michigan has such a program. The attraction is obvious. Outstanding local teaching professionals donate their time, in total 50 adults assist, serving as mentors and five local courses share their facilities.

In addition, area golfers have recognized the program's place on their course and have financially supported the program so our youngsters have the opportunity to learn all golf has to offer. We have something special here, and we salute all of you who make it work so well.

Fix bank clock

Editor:

Do you find yourself complaining about the old bank clock downtown? Well, why don't we put an end to those complaints? I strongly think that the old bank clock downtown should be fixed instead of ignored.

My first reason is that many people used to rely on that clock. Quite a few people think that it would be a great resource to have downtown. The clock would also help with the timing of the bridge. People could tell if they would beat it.

My second reason is that the clock should be appealing to tourists. We could make money by putting companies' advertisements on it. Tourists driving downtown see it broken and they get the impression that we don't care about our city.

My last reason is that it has the wrong time and temperature. We spend money on making it spin. Is it so hard to just put the right time and temperature on a clock? Furthermore, our parents, maybe even grandparents used it for time and temperature, so should we. Also it is a very important part of Charlevoix's History.

In conclusion, the clock is a great resource to have downtown. Charlevoix community can prove we care about our city by keeping it together. Finally, I don't want a historical thing to go down the drain just because we are too lazy to fix it. I hope you agree.

So please help me to save our old bank clock, which is a big part of downtown Charlevoix.

Charlevoix a wonderful place for Scanlans land and France."

GILBERT

Today Garrett has a slew of silver and gold culinary medals as long as his arm.

The décor at Garrett's On Water Street reflects the Irish heritage of both Scanlans. In the large, comfortable Irish Pub, pictures of literary greats — William Butler Yeats, Oscar Wilde and George Bernard Shaw adorn the green walls along with a Guinness sign or two. In addition there are two dining rooms, an American Bistro and an upscale Commodore Room overlooking Lake Charlevoix, which may be booked for private parties.

All the food is prepared in-house under Garrett's watchful eye, and I especially enjoyed the Homemade Paté and Sausage Appetizer, along with Potato-encrusted Walleye, Sour Cream Hollandaise and Chive Whipped Potatoes. If asked, Stella will prepare her favorite Irish Coffee. This is a family recipe, taught to her by Garrett's father, "Mr. G."

"It's the best," she says. "You pour real heavy cream, unwhipped over the back of a hot spoon and do not stir!"

Memorial Garden tributes welcome

Have you driven down the end of East Dixon and noticed the bright yellow of over 500 daffodils? They were planted last fall by the Memorial Garden Committee of the Charlevoix Area Garden Club.

These volunteers will have completed the spring cleaning of the garden in time for Memorial Day weekend.

The garden was established in 1977 and was included in the city park system in 1978.

Anyone is welcome to make a tribute to a loved one who has passed away.

Memorial contributions made throughout the year help the garden club to plant and care for the garden. To make a contribution, please contact Nancy Fowler at 547-9314 or 409 East Dixon, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Business owner gets a surprise visit from police

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Nancy Koucky, owner of Koucky's Gallery on Bridge Street, had quite a shock Wednesday morning as she was getting her store ready for the summer season when she was visited by two police officers.

To make matters a little more interesting for Koucky, both the officers were pointing guns at her and demanding to see her identification.

"It was the first time I have had guns pointed at me," Koucky said.

According to Charlevoix City Police Chief Dennis Halverson, someone walking by the store that morning noticed that the door was slightly open. The person knew the store was closed for the winter and reported the open door to the police.

Two officers responded to the call, found the door unlocked and entered with guns drawn — all the time not knowing that Koucky had returned from her winter home in Florida.

Halverson said the officers had to be cautious because they did not know what was behind that door. And when they found someone inside the store, they had to make sure who it was.

Koucky said she was not upset about the incident at all and was actually impressed with the police response.

"I think it is a good thing. That means if I really was still in Florida, someone would have been taking care of the property," she said.

She pointed out a sign in the window of her store indicated that it was closed for the season, so she could understand why someone would think the business had been broken-in to.

Halverson said officers regularly check on seasonal properties and businesses in Charlevoix. In fact, he said the department has a program where an officer is assigned residential properties in Charlevoix to check throughout the week.

"It prevents break-ins and vandalism or finds it as soon as possible," Halverson said.

Will meeting facility compete with private sector?

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

With discussions heating up about a conference center being built in Charlevoix, some established meeting space providers and the mayor are wondering why the city of Charlevoix is threatening to compete.

"We have quite a few (meeting spaces) in town. I don't know why they (the city and the chamber of commerce) can't push the facilities we have," mayor Gabe Campbell said. "I'm not sure we should be competing with other businesses."

There has been discussion of the city funding construction of a conference facility at the Bridge Street Inn Bed and Breakfast or west of the Weathervane Restaurant on the channel. These discussions have included talk of a private entity operating it and Charlevoix's Downtown Development Authority (DDA) funding construction.

The city council and DDA along with the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce and the Convention and Visitors Bureau have since pursued two studies to look at whether the facility idea is viable or not.

Their aim is to provide a facility that will draw people and money to town during the "shoulder seasons" — the non-summer months in Charlevoix.

But some feel the facilities aren't the problem with the slow off-season economy because they already exist.

Louis McKenzie, Knights of Columbus Hall event coordinator, said, "We have it all here now. And I think it would hurt any of them (currently established meeting sites) around here."

The Knights of Columbus Hall currently serves as an event location for at least 70 events each year including weddings, banquets and corporate meetings.

This is the same market the talked about city conference facility is looking to tap.

A recent study ordered by the DDA, chamber and visitors bureau was conducted by Hospitality Advisors Consulting Group of Ann Arbor. It showed that a 8,000 square foot facility in the city, near hotels, could accommodate between 250 and 300 users. And the study estimated if the facility were built it would draw between 70 and 100 events annually, 60 percent of which are social and the other 40 would be business related.

While McKenzie feels the facility would definitely be a competitor, representatives from two local golf courses that host social functions, the Charlevoix Country Club and Dunmaglas, both said they don't feel construction of a conference facility would hurt business for them.

Jeff Smith, co-owner of Dunmaglas, said social and corporate events are not a major part of the business his establishment caters to. And Cynthia Kautz, marketing and membership director at the country club, said the majority of the social gatherings they host are for members.

"I think they would be meeting another need, not duplicating what we do. That type of facility is different. When you book at the Charlevoix Country Club you are doing it because you choose that atmosphere," she said.

> "We have it all here now. And I think it would hurt any of them around here."

Chamber discusses plan for community

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce recently unveiled a plan of attack its staff and board believe will better serve its members and the community.

The chamber has been working since the fall of 2001 on a strategic plan that reveals the direction it will take toward meeting both its long-term and short-term goals.

"Our goal is to bring all members of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce on a community mission. This maps that out," John Campbell, chairman of the chamber board of directors, said.

Details of the plan were reviewed May 7 at a meeting of chamber representatives and community members that took place in the Charlevoix High School auditorium.

The chamber board has been working with consultant Sandi Frost-Parrish of Monaghan Associates, Inc. of Grand Rapids to develop the plan. She was at the meeting to discuss the plan.

In March of 2002 Frost-Parrish sat in on five focus group meetings made up of Charlevoix area community leaders and members. Out of those meetings, lists of community critical issues and chamber issues were compiled.

The strategic plan outlines these community challenges as: working to alleviate traffic congestion, finding a way to provide affordable housing, maintaining a viable business community and competing with surrounding towns to maintain a reputation as a premier resort community.

The most important issue Frost-Parrish said needs to be addressed is affordable housing.

"Addressing affordable housing will help so many other problems. Affordable housing for your community is the issue that has its fingerprints on just about everything," she said.

She said issues it would address include maintaining a thriving school district, maintaining socioeconomic diversity and limiting sprawl.

Campbell said the affordable housing issue may be alleviated soon.

He said Northern Homes Community of Boyne City, a development corporation, has identified a location in Charlevoix adjacent to shops, beaches and not far from Charlevoix Middle School located off Garfield Avenue, that may work for an affordable housing development.

Campbell would not give the exact location, but did say the group plans to submit applications for the project this fall.

Other issues Campbell said the chamber has worked to address in 2003 include providing accommodating bathroom facilities, working toward traffic congestion solutions and improving the shoulder season through support of the Charlevoix conference facility concept.

Campbell said through the entire strategic plan the chamber will act as a collaborator for the Charlevoix area and he feels this will have the greatest long-range effect on the community. By shifting the focus from the perceived downtown to the area, the community will be stronger.

"We are a community and we need to function as a community to meet the goals you (members of the focus groups) brought to us," he said.

The aforementioned critical issues and possible solutions will strengthen the community. Additionally, the chamber board wants to meet a number of challenges to benefit the chamber.

Chamher issues that were pinpointed include: a need to improve communication with chamber members, restructuring of the board, a need to keep current members and generate new ones, a need to establish a shared vision for the community and lastly finding a new home for the chamber.

The board has since set out to address these "critical" issues.

To improve communication its web site, www.charlevoix.org, was updated and the quarterly newsletter reinstated.

The board has also worked to bring new members in and to keep current members. The chamber currently includes 550 businesses, retailers, commercial and professional offices and public entities.

Its final critical issue, its home, which is currently located in Chamber Park, south of East Park will be torn down during the park renovation process.

Camphell announced that the chamber will likely relocate to the former Advanced Geomatics building at 217 Bridge Street. It signed an option to purchase the huilding from Advanced Geomatics on May 5.

Larry Feindt, owner of the surveying business Advanced Geomatics said they are planning to build a new office near the intersection of Burgess Road and US-31.

The chamber board plans to revisit the plan each fall.

Woman injured in accident

A motorcycle accident occurred around 11:30 a.m., May 4 when Melissa McAllister failed to make the curve on US - 31 South a third mile north of Beatty Road in Norwood Township.

The 28-year-old from Mecosta ran off the road into a ditch.

Charlevoix Emergency Medical Service personnel transported McAllister to Charlevoix Area Hospital for a possible broken leg.

The sheriff's deputy on scene said the helmet McAllister was wearing significantly reduced her injuries.

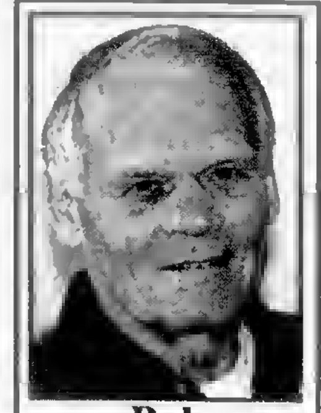
Two contested seats in November city election

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

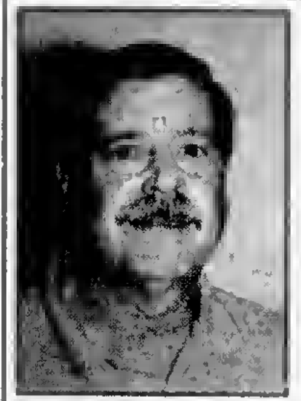
Competition for city council seats in the first and third wards is heating up.



Bob Timms

First ward residents Bob Timms and Dave Novotny both filed nominating petitions by the May 13 deadline and will face off at the Nov. 4 election.

Timms, 69, has lived in Charlevoix since 1957 and has served on and off council for 18 years.



Dave Novotny

He religiously attends council meetings, but said he decided to file and make a go at returning to a first ward seat because he likes to have a vote.

Shirley Gibson

"It's different heing able to chat with council. I like to be on there where I can make a difference," he said. "I want to do what is good for the city and what voters want to have done."

Timms currently serves on the city board of review, a position he would have to resign if elected to council.

A.J. Witthoeft

Novotny, 57, is a Charlevoix native and former mayor and city planning commissioner.

He said he opted to run because he feels a change is needed.

"I have a different outlook on what's most important for the city compared to the way things are going right now," he said.

He explained that his focus is on keeping a viable downtown and that he supports the efforts of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce and the downtown development authority.

Novotny said currently council members think of merchants as "fat cats," but that they need council's support for the city to remain vital.

Timms and Novotny are running for an open seat left vacant by current first ward councilman and deputy mayor Norm "Boogie" Carlson, Jr. who will be moving into the third ward.

Voters in Carlson's new ward will also have a contested race to decide as current third ward council person Shirley Gibson tries to retain her seat which is being challenged by former third ward councilman A.J. Witthoeft.

Gibson, 55, is finishing up her first term and said she would like to go for another two-year term.

"I want to continue to represent the voters in the third ward and safeguard taxpayer money. I want responsible government when it comes to taxpayer money. I think there are still issues at city hall and I want to see some projects through," she said.

Projects she is interested in seeing through include city hall renovations, the marina project and the purchase of the former Charlevoix Middle School property and its probable conversion to the site of the new Charlevoix Public Library.

Gibson was also a five-year member of the city planning commission before she ran for council.

Her challenger, Witthoeft, 36, has been an active member of city politics for the past 10 years as a councilman, planning commissioner and member of the zoning board of appeals.

After a brief hiatus from council, Witthoeft said he is ready to have a vote again.

"I feel I can represent my constituents to the fullest. I missed having a voice of representation," he said. "I don't have an agenda, I just want to make sure I have a part in shaping the city's future."

Also on the November ballot is current second ward councilman Bill Bellows, who filed his nominating petition to run for reelection, but no one filed to run against him. Bellows has represented the second ward for five years.

City clerk Liz Gooch also filed to run again and her seat is uncontested.

Write in candidates can also run for all of the aforementioned positions in the election. Information for filing as a write-in is available at city hall.

New officer hired for Charlevoix police force

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The Charlevoix Police Department has hired Lake Ann native Matthew Umulis, 20, to replace Paul Ivan, who left the force to become the Charlevoix Fire Department chief.

Umulis is a graduate of Benzie Central High School and has an associates degree from Northwestern Michigan College in Traverse City. He is currently working on a bachelor's degree from the school.

He is not married and has two brothers and one sister.

His first day on the job was May 1.

"I was excited and really glad I got it," he said of being hired to work in Charlevoix.

Umulis said he went into police work because he "always wanted to do it."

"Growing up, I thought it would be fun to be out in the public and get to know people," he said.

He added, so far, he likes everything associated with the job.

As for Charlevoix, Umulis said, "So far it seems to be a real nice, attractive town. I have been doing a lot of training, getting to know the town, doing property checks, writing tickets and going to accidents."

The big lesson he is learning now are names and locations of streets in Charlevoix.

While Umulis is young, he is not new to police work. Previously, he was a police officer in Buchanan and worked in the marine division of the Grand Traverse County Sheriff Department.

Umulis said Charlevoix is a lot nicer than Buchanan, especially when it comes to crime. He said in Buchanan, he had to deal with fighting and drug problems.

"(Charlevoix) is calmer, nicer and relaxed," he said.

Charlevoix Police Chief Dennis Halverson said the department had 50 applicants for the open police officer position.

"We were looking for someone with some experience, a majority did not have it. Matt (Umulis) was probably at the tail end of that pile. We had people with 20 years experience, but in the interview process, Matt did very well during the process," he said.

Halverson added, "He (Umulis) presented himself well. He is very mature for his age and possessed the character and common sense aspects."

Plus, Umulis was highly recommended by past police departments that he worked for, as well as people in his hometown and former high school.

"It was all extremely positive," Halverson said.

Umulis added, "I look forward to being out in the community, meeting people and getting to know everybody."

Help keep an eye on West Nile Virus

In an effort to monitor West Nile Virus in northern Michigan, the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is requesting citizens report dead jays and crows to the Michigan Department of Community Health at www.michigan.gov/westnilevirus.

If they do not have Internet access they can also call their local health department office.

West Nile Virus is a mosquito-borne virus that can infect birds, equines and humans. West Nile Virus cannot be spread directly from birds to people.

However, increased sightings of dead jays an crows can sometimes predict and increase in human cases of West Nile Virus. It is not necessary to test birds, just report them.

"Now that we know West Nile Virus is in northern Michigan, there is no current need for any further testing of birds," said Joshua Meyerson, medical director for the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency. "Once West Nile Virus is established in an area, it's thought that it is there for good."

To dispose of a dead bird, he recommends wearing heavy gloves or using tongs to double-bag it and throw it out with other household garbage.

To reduce risks of becoming infected with West Nile Virus, take the following precautions from April through October, the West Nile Virus "season."

- If outside when mosquitos are most active, wear protective clothing and an insect repellent containing DEET. Avoid applying to children under 2 years of age and always follow manufacturer's directions.
- Reduce exposure to mosquitos around the house and yard by making sure that doors and windows have tight fitting screens and drain all standing water from mosquito breeding sites, like flower pots, pet bowls, clogged gutters, pool covers and the like.
- Also, help or remind neighbors to eliminate mosquito-breeding sites on their property.

"We're working very hard to get the word out in the community on personal protective measures everyone should take to West Nile Virus," said Dr. Meyerson. "We're distributing flyers at community events and health fairs, through schools and physician's offices and at public places, especially events and health fairs, through schools and physician's offices, and at public places, especially those frequented by old adults."

Most cases of West Nile Virus have occurred in people over 50 years old.

Although the decision to institute a mosquito abatement program is up to individual communities, the health department is not recommending counties, cities or townships institute any spraying program at this time,

"With the small number of West Nile Virus cases that have been reported so far in our four-county region, there's not any evidence to support the effectiveness of mosquito larviciding or adulticiding at this time," said Dr. Meyerson..

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is the local health department serving Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties. Its staff is dedicated to preventing disease and injury and promoting healthy communities.

For additional information about West Nile Virus, contact you local health department or visit www.michigan.gov/mdch.

Health department suggests vaccine for students

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency will offer meningitis immunizations at local health department offices during the summer months so that college freshmen, especially those who will live in dormitories, can be vaccinated before the school year begins in the fall.

"Most colleges now recommend a meningitis immunization for incoming freshmen," said Patricia Fralick, Director of Family Health services for the Health Department. "Freshman live in close quarters with lots of other people so they have a higher risk for communicable diseases. Meningitis can be a deadly disease, but it's preventable with just one 'shot'."

The meningitis "shot" is $75 and will be offered during June, July and August at health department locations in Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties.

"It's an expensive vaccine," Fralick said. "We're offering it at our cost to encourage as many college freshman as possible to protect themselves from meningitis."

Because appointments for immunization clinics fill up so quickly, Fralick recommends booking an appointment soon by calling (800) 432-4121 during business hours.

Residents asked for input on assisted living ordinance

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Residents of the city of Charlevoix are being asked to step forward and help the city planning commission address zoning for assisted living developments in the city.

Chairman of the city planning commission, Dennis Kusina is hoping for a big turnout at the public hearing where this issue will be addressed. That hearing is scheduled to take place at 6 p.m., June 9 at the Coast Guard conference room located at Bridge Park, 109 Bridge Park Drive.

The planning commission has met twice and discussed zoning for elderly housing. At a meeting May 12 the commission looked closely at wording that would allow this use in the R-4 multi-family family district as a special use.

However, planning commission members said by allowing it in the R-4, property could be rezoned with assisted living in mind but the final outcome may not be an assisted living complex.

Planning commissioner John Dobulis said, "Elderly housing could disappear and the owner could put up an apartment complex."

Kusina said the commission is looking for input as to whether residents feel this use would be best accommodated in the R-1, single family residential area, R-2 medium density single family residential or R-4 multiple family residential. The planning commission has only discussed permitting this use in any zone with a special use permit.

He said if assisted living type uses were allowed as a special use in any district the city would have more control. Special uses are subject to requirements beyond those outlined for a given district in the zoning ordinance.

At this time, no specific project is being addressed. What is being considered is the wording of the zoning ordinance which currently does not include any stipulations for an assisted living use.

At the hearing, issues like setbacks, lot size, lot coverage and parking will be discussed.

"We want to hear at the next meeting public input as to why this use should or shouldn't go in R-1, R-2 or R-4. We don't want to hear why it shouldn't go in my neighborhood because this is for the whole city," Dobulis said.

However, at meetings when this zoning issue has been discussed, residents concerned with a project that is currently being planned for property owned by Charlevoix resident and Realtor Ed Amick have voiced disapproval.

Diane Gillette, co-owner of Sunnybank Retirement Community in Petoskey, approached the commission in early March with a plan to bring a similar facility to Charlevoix's north side.

The proposed unit is a single-story building spanning 36,000 square feet, covering about one acre of land. It is shaped like an X with wings containing 54 units, 32 of which are efficiency and 22 that are one-bedroom apartments.

Gillette and partner Ruth Bellissimo have been looking for property in the city for a couple of years because the facility would be most easily serviced by its water and sewer services.

They currently have an option to purchase a piece of land in the city that fronts Petoskey Avenue and is owned by Amick.

This is part of the same 8 acre piece of land between Petoskey Avenue and Division Street that the planning commission was considering rezoning in December of 2002. At that time Amick wanted to rezone two acres of the parcel from R-2, single family residential, to R-4, a residential zone for apartments and other multiple family dwelling uses.

However, the public hearing in the matter was canceled after Amick withdrew his request.

While this project is on the table, Kusina stressed that what needs to happen at the June public hearing is a focus on assisted living and how residents want that use to be integrated into the city's zoning ordinance.

"We'll make a decision as to how to write the zoning requirements to cover that type of operation. Then we can look at site plans," he said. "But this (the zoning issue) has to get done regardless of any project."

Smoky courtroom

The Charlevoix Fire Department received a call at approximately 10 a.m., Friday from someone within the county courthouse saying they smelled smoke. Upon arrival, firefighters found that a heating unit was malfunctioning. The unit had overheated and was smoking. The building was evacuated and no one was injured. The incident is still under investigation. Above, a firefighter places a fan at the door of the circuit court to get rid of the smoke. (Photo by Jeremy McBain)

MAY 2003

Council supports lake-to-lake trail

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

City council voted unanimously Monday night in support of a proposed Lake Charlevoix to Lake Michigan trail and want to help bring it closer to reality.

Resident Dean Davenport presented to the council updated plans and discussed the impact of the multi-use trail on the city's recreational development.

"Its puts the community on the cutting edge of providing recreation opportunities for its citizens," he said.

The council said the next step is talking with CEMEX representatives. They voted to set up a conference call with City Attorney John Young and CEMEX representatives to discuss the logistical issues of the trail, which will extend from Ferry Beach to Fisherman's Island linking Lake Charlevoix to Lake Michigan.

Davenport expressed the company's anxiousness to see the property in the hands of a group that is willing to maximize its purpose.

"CEMEX owns that property and they are willing and eager to use their property for the trail," he said.

There are still several logistical issues to be solved before the trail's construction can begin. The 5 mile distance of the proposed trail stretches through city, township, county and CEMEX property leaving the question of who gets ownership to the trail.

Davenport said it would simplify things if the trail were in the sole ownership of the city of Charlevoix, not to mention add to the city's outdoor sporting activities.

"It completes the package of unusual, unique diverse recreational opportunities Charlevoix provides," he said.

However, funding for the trail still needs to be determined. Davenport said he was looking into grant possibilities and private funding, but had no cost estimates for the trail.

The trail is currently used by the Charlevoix High School's cross country teams for practice and Charlevoix Snowmobile Club, who has had permission to use the trail for snowmobilers for several years.

Davenport said if the trail was built, a 1 mile extension could be easily hooked to the high school and has met with two interested property owners about this prospect.

Board member of the snowmobile club, John Ferguson, said although there are a lot of things that still need to be discussed, they are in favor of the trail.

"I think the club as a whole is for it, as long as it doesn't interfere with the snowmobile use of that trail," he said.

Work begins again on Depot Heritage Garden

It's spring — with both daffodils and work at the Depot Heritage Garden in full bloom.

The garden, located on the west side of the restored Charlevoix Depot, is a joint project of the Charlevoix Historical Society and the Charlevoix Area Garden Club — a member of the Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan. Planting began last fall and walkways are now being built with 1890's brick saved from the old railway baggage platform.

The garden paths will allow visitors to walk between shrubbery and flower beds, many containing vintage plants donated by area residents and all carefully planted and maintained by volunteers.

This phase of the development of the garden has been funded by a $7,400 grant from the Beautification Fund of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation. The foundation has provided moneys for area projects since 1992.

It has assets in excess of $7.9 million and has distributed more than $4 million in grants.

The Depot Heritage Garden idea began in August 2001 with a mission to plant a historically accurate garden involving the community in gathering, documenting, planting and maintaining shrubs, trees, vines, herbs and flowers that have played a part in Charlevoix history. Along with investigating the Depot history and locating vintage plants, first year projects included hiring a professional landscape designer, building irrigation and drainage systems, removing sod and preparing the soil for planting.

Second year projects included placing refurbished historic gates at the entrance, planting over 100 boxwoods and service berry bushes, dwarf Alberta spruce, Annabelle hydrangea, viburnum and a large Black Hills spruce tree.

This spring in addition to brick laying, flower beds will be planted, signs will be placed for identification of plants and a bench purchased.

Those who wish to donate to the Depot Heritage Garden may call both the Historical Society at 547-0373 and the Garden Club at 237-9196.

To find out more about the Charlevoix County Community Foundation call 536-2440.

Charlevoix school district to have preschool

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

This fall, new, pint-sized faces will be seen on campus at Charlevoix Elementary School.

The Charlevoix School Board unanimously voted to approve the start of a preschool at its meeting May 12.

"We are looking at this as a service to the community and a good transition for kids into our building," elementary school principal Dick Swenor said. "We're not looking for more work, but it would really benefit the school system and the kids."

Swenor said through the district run program, the schools will have more control over curriculum which should help ease a student's transition into kindergarten.

The program, Bright Beginnings will be operated out of the portable units at the school. It is open to children ages 3 to 5.

The program director, Tricia Petrosky, 32, of Charlevoix, ran the Sailfish Club — a local preschool — for three years. She brings with her a bachelor of arts degree in elementary education from Grand Valley State University.

"I hope to create a nurturing classroom environment where children are actively learning social skills and other basic skills through play activities. I'm looking forward to working with the little ones and to providing a positive, fun, first real 'school experience' for my students," she said.

Petrosky will operate the new school with the help of an assistant who has not yet been selected. Both teachers will be treated as contract employees with the school district.

Swenor said 10 years ago when he first came on as school principal, a preschool was operated out of a kindergarten room. Increases in enrollment in kindergarten through fifth grades demanded more space and the preschool was canceled.

He said, since then, he has been approached by numerous members of the community and his staff encouraging reinstatement of the program.

This year is the first time the school district has had the space to restart the preschool because when the fifth grade moved to the new middle school off Garfield, the portable units were left vacant.

Swenor has reviewed the financial requirements of starting the new program and found the district will have to charge $125 per 4-and 5-year-old student, per month. The two day program is $90 per month. To break even, the school is aiming to have 22 students enrolled.

He said the program's cost falls in the middle of local rates for preschool.

School board trustee Dennis Halverson said if the program remains self-sufficient it will continue to have his support, but it has to break even.

Swenor assured the board that he has heard a lot of interest buzzing around and is not anticipating a budget shortfall.

Three-year-old classes will take place from 9 to 11:30 a.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday and the 4-and 5-year-old classes will meet from 9 to 11:30 a.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

The school year will follow the same schedule as the public schools. At this time, busing will not be offered for preschool students.

Swenor said the program may also expand to include the school's before and after-school Sunshine Program to alleviate the transition from preschool to daycare.

Registration began yesterday, May 20 and continues.

For more information about the program or to register a student call Sue Gengle at the elementary school at (231) 547-3215.

Charlevoix Public Schools will offer a new preschool for the 2003-2004 school year. Registration for the program is underway. Above program director Tricia Petrosky reads to her 1-year-old daughter Elizabeth. (Photo by Julie Witthoeft)

High school baseball swept

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

The Charlevoix Rayders fell victim to a lack of timely hitting last week, getting swept in two doubleheaders, including three tight games.

Charlevoix lost at Cheboygan, 4-1 and 6-3 and at home to Kalkaska, 4-1 and 13-0.

Matt Burtt gave up only two earned runs on seven hits in the opener against Cheboygan for a tough loss. The Rayders managed only four hits, two by Matt Kilkenny who doubled and drove in a run. Kreg Wager doubled and scored for Charlevoix.

The Rayders jumped out early with a 2-0 lead after two innings and were tied headed into the bottom of the fifth but couldn't hold on in the nightcap. Kilkenny started on the mound but Matt Loper took the loss in relief.

Kilkenny was three for three with a double and two runs scored. Jake Teuscher was two for three with an RBI. Taylor Fisher singled and scored.

Jake Teuscher had a solid outing on the hill against conference leader Kalkaska in the opener but suffered from lack of run support. Jake went the distance, giving up seven hits, three earned runs and striking out four.

Fisher, Loper, Burtt, Matt Kochanny, Jake Teuscher and Nate Teuscher all had hits for Charlevoix. Fisher drove in Loper for the Rayders' only run.

In the nightcap the Blazers scored early and often, aided by walks and Rayder errors. Kochanny started and took the loss.

Burtt, Kochanny, Jake Teuscher and Ezra Bakker had hits for Charlevoix.

"Were seeing a lot of positives," coach Bryan Hawkins said. "But were having problems stringing hits together."

The losses dropped the season mark for the Rayders to 7-15 overall, 4-8 in the Lake Michigan Conference. Charlevoix hosts non-league doubleheaders against Ellsworth on Thursday, May 22 and Roscommon on Saturday, May 24.

Nice week for Rayders

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

The Charlevoix Rayders' softball squad had an excellent week, sweeping a Lake Michigan Conference doubleheader against Harbor Springs, 13-5 and 9-5 and splitting in non-conference action with Harbor Light Christian, losing 14-6 and winning 10-9, capped by an exciting sixth inning, two-out rally.

"We had a really good week," coach Elizabeth Grunch said.

"The girls are really starting to get into it and are having a lot of fun."

Monica Cornell earned both wins against the Rams on the mound, throwing a four-hitter in the opener.

In game one, Amanda Boss had two hits, including a triple. Jessica Pettis also had two singles.

Natashia Kleiber, Erin Burns, Andrea Ruhlman and Genevieve Kochanny all had one hit.

Boss again had two hits (single and double) to lead the attack in the nightcap.

Denise Barta doubled and Brittany Niswander, Sam Kupka and Ruhlman all singled.

"We're really attacking the ball much more," Grunch said.

"The hard work the team has put in is starting to pay off with base hits."

The Rayders hit well against Harbor Light but in game one, couldn't string much together by way of runs.

Pettis, Niswander and Ruhlman each had two hits in the opener.

Katie Sheldon and Kara Fitzgerald each had one.

Kleiber took the loss on the mound.

Charlevoix scored five runs after two were retired in the bottom of the sixth in game two to pull out the exciting 10-9 win.

Burns RBI single scored Barta with the winning run.

Sally Haselschwardt had two doubles.

Kleiber singled and doubled. Ruhlman doubled and Pettis, Sheldon, Burns and Kochanny all added singles.

The Rayders (4-6 overall, 2-4 conference) next play at Traverse City St. Francis on Thursday, May 8.

Several runners on track teams going to state

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Several Charlevoix runners qualified for the state finals at the regional meet May 17 in East Jordan.

Mary Plude, girls' coach, said, "We had some great performances. The team is young and has shown great improvement."

She specifically congratulated her team's lone state qualifier Liz Ulrich who ran the 800 meter in 2 minutes, 28 seconds. This is Ulrich's fourth year qualifying for state.

"She (Ulrich) ran one of her best races of her career. She ran smart the whole race. She went out a bit slower and used her strength to out-duel Benzie Central for the win," Mary said.

Other individual results for the girls' team were:

- 1600 meter relay — The team of Amy Drew, Theresa Martin, Ulrich and Liz Madison came in third place with a time of 4 minutes, 16 seconds.
- 800 meter relay — The team of Sonya Plude, Jasmine Witthoeft, Drew and Madison finished in 1 minute, 52 seconds. This puts them in fifth on the all-time Charlevoix High School time list.
- 400 meter run — Betsey Dennis finished in 66.2 seconds and Lauren Silberhorn finished in 68.6 seconds. These were personal records for both girls.
- 3200 meter relay — The team of Martin, Drew, Christine Bradley, Ulrich came in third with a time of 10 minutes, 20 seconds.
- Long jump — Witthoeft came in third with a distance of 14 feet, 11 inches.
- Pole Vault — Madison had a height of 7 feet, 3 inches. This was her personal best.

As for the boys' team, several runners qualified for state.

They, and their events, were:

- 3200 meter relay — The team of Nate Teuscher, Mike Castiglione, Peter Gorkiewicz and Todd Carey came in third with a time of 8 minutes, 20 seconds. This time qualified them for state.
- 110 meter hurdles — Spencer Bryan was in second with a time of 16.20 seconds. This qualified him for state.
- 400 meter relay — The team of Ryan Seelye, Jeff Urban, Bryan and Kyle Kramer came in first with a time of 45 seconds. This qualified them for state.
- 1600 meter relay — The team of Carey, Ben Bergmann, Teuscher and Kramer came in second with a time of 3 minutes, 33 seconds. This qualified them for state.

Other individual results resulting in medals at the regional tournament were:

- High jump — Seelye came in fourth with a height of 19 feet, 10 inches.
- 200 meter dash — Kramer came in fourth with a time of 23.70 seconds.

Annual run for pool will be June 7

The Charlevoix Area Community Pool will host the Ninth Annual Spring Pool Run on Saturday, June 7, at the Charlevoix Country Club.

The Charlevoix Country Club is located at 9600 Clubhouse Dr., US-31 North, next to the Charlevoix Area Community Pool.

A 5K Run/Walk and a 1 Mile Fun Run will highlight the activities.

Both races will start at 9 a.m. Pre-Entry deadline is Friday, May 30, with a fee of $10.

Runners can register the morning of the race from 7:45 to 8:45 a.m. for $12.

All runners will receive an official race T-shirt. Run entry fee is only $5 if you don't want a shirt.

Medals will be given to first, second, and third places in each age group.

The age groups are 10 and under, 11-14, 15-19, 20-24, 25-29, 30-34, 35-39, 40-44, 45-49, 50-59 and 60 and older.

All proceeds and donations to the race will fund operations at the pool.

The race coordinator is Al Gooch.

Tennis team finishes fifth in regional

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The Charlevoix High School varsity tennis team ended its year finishing fifth out of 11 schools at the regional tournament last week.

"We were four points better than last year. We are making improvements," coach Erik Lundteigen said. "The kids have been working hard all year and we are seeing improvements in all flights."

Individual winners were:

- First, singles — Nate Turner won his first match against Grayling, 6-2, 6-1. He lost his second match against Leland, 6-3, 6-3.
- Second, singles — Josh Fassett lost his first match against Traverse City St. Francis, 6-1, 6-1.
- Third, singles — Mitchell Klooster lost his first match against Traverse City St. Francis 6-2, 2-6, 6-2.
- Fourth, singles — Ben Scheclk lost his first match against Elk Rapids, 6-4, 6-3.
- First, doubles — Cody Wheat and Adam Wager won their first match against Boyne City, 6-1, 6-1. They lost their second match against Leland, 6-1, 6-1.
- Second, doubles — Matt Nitchman and Taylor Martin won their first match against Grayling, 6-2, 6-0. They lost their second match against Harbor Springs, 7-6, 6-4.
- Third, doubles — Matt Novotny and Joshua Saur won their first match against Traverse City Christian, 6-3, 6-0. They also won their second match against Traverse City St. Francis, 6-3, 6-3. In the finals, they lost to Elk Rapids, 6-1, 6-1.
- Fourth, doubles — AnnaKate Trubilowicz and Lindsey Miller lost to Traverse City St. Francis 4-6, 6-4, 6-4.

Lundteigen added, "I would like to thank Vinnie Klooster for helping out this year and all the parents."

Soccer team dominating in play last week

The Rayders continued their winning ways of late with a non conference win May 18 over Division 3 Big Rapids on Senior Day at Kipke Field, 3-2.

Lone senior tri-captain Kelly Zimmerman was honored by teammates and friends as a four year letter winner and leader of this year's squad.

Charlevoix took a 1 – 0 lead in the first half when junior tri-captain Shayna Drost blocked a clearing attempt by Big Rapids and passed to freshman Laura Nitchman who made a nice move in front of the net to avoid a defender and sent the ball home. Drost then scored off an assist from Grace Farrell and the Rayders took a 2-0 lead into the break.

Charlevoix continued their excellent defensive efforts to begin the second half, led by fullbacks Sarah Cross and Madison McKenzie.

Appropriately, Kelly Zimmerman scored what proved to be the winning goal well into the second half when junior tri-captain Alyssia McDonough fed her a nice pass and Kelly pulled the ball back and sent it home from 25 yards over the keeper's outstretched arms.

Big Rapids scored on a defensive miscue with about 10 minutes to go and then began applying intensive pressure to the young Rayders. They scored again with under 3 minutes on a nice head ball off a long cross to narrow the lead to 1.

Charlevoix worked off the clock right to the horn defending a corner and a free kick opportunity to earn the win.

Junior keeper Brooke Blanchard played her best game of the year in goal making 17 saves for the Rayders. Sophomore Jaime Pettis continued her strong play in combining with Drost to keep constant pressure on Big Rapid's defense. Sophomore Grace Farrell earned Rayder Player of the Game honors.

This win came on the heels of another dominating performance in a conference match May 16 at Roscommon. Charlevoix won 3-0.

The Rayders controlled the play throughout and generated 25 scoring opportunities and forcing the Buck's keeper to make 18 saves.

Charlevoix scored early when Pettis turned back a Roscommon goal-kick to score unassisted. The young Rayders' defense led by sophomores, Sarah Cross, Brittni Whittaker and Madison McKenzie and freshman back Stevie Murray, kept the ball in the Buck's end the rest of the way, handling the few breakaway opportunities with ease.

Nitchman earned the shutout in goal, making just six saves.

For the Rayders, Drost and Zimmerman also scored, assists to Farrell, Pettis and Murray in an all around good offensive effort.

Player of the Game went to Cross.

The Rayders are 6 – 8 – 1 and traveled to Houghton Lake on Monday and then hosted Boyne City on Tuesday in an unscheduled match at Kipke at 4:30. Those results were unavailable before press time.

The Rayders close the regular season at Suttons Bay on Thursday.

Old middle school to be bought by city

PROPERTY

the property using Act 99 funds and to then sell 10 of the 13 lots to the library for construction of its new facility.

The DDA plans to buy the property using Act 99 funding, which allows it to borrow 15 percent of the city's taxable value.

Library director Valerie Meyerson told the committee that after the library buys the property from the city, the plan is to renovate and add on to the former school, demolishing the 1957 addition and keeping the original structure that was built in 1927.

Costs to renovate and buy the property from the city will be close to $3 million. The project will likely have to be supported by a millage vote which Meyerson anticipates being on a spring 2004 ballot.

Sherman's offer had a drop dead date of May 23 and is dependent on getting the property rezoned from R-2 to R-4 by Aug. 9 or the offer could be retracted.

The city's offer has no drop dead date, but does contain two sticky stipulations — an environmental clause and a request for summer use of 66 parking spaces at the current Charlevoix Middle School, located off Garfield.

However, these contractual hangups aren't enough to kill the deal. All the entities involved plan to work toward the ultimate goal of having the city acquire the property.

"The number one direction from the (school) board was if another public entity wants the property then we should try and make that happen," Dennis Halverson, a school board trustee and building and grounds committee member, said.

Now Sturock and school district attorney Gordon VanWieren Jr. are reviewing the city offer and discussing the environmental and parking issues. The city's offer has no expiration date which allows school and city representatives to continue to deliberate these issues.

Sturock explained to the committee that the parking lot is currently rented to the Beaver Island Boat Company in the summer, which is a source of revenue for the school district.

Aside from a possible loss of revenue from the boat company, Sturock was also concerned with the use of parking being a long-term part of the contract. He said in the future this perpetual clause may act as a deed restriction should the school district ever look to sell the property.

Carlson said the parking request being added into the purchase agreement was the city's attempt to satisfy likely marina parking requirements that will be made by the Michigan Waterways Commission as the city moves toward expanding and upgrading the municipal docks.

But he added that this is not a deal breaker.

"Our backup plan is to keep the lots (three lots at the middle school) for parking," Carlson said.

Meyerson said the parking idea was also a way for the city to alleviate concerns from residents in the surrounding neighborhood who support the library being built there, but are opposed to excess parking at the old school site.

The second problem, the environmental clause, deals with asbestos at the school and asks that in the future, should an associated problem arise, the school district would be liable.

"Down the road we don't want the liability, we want to make sure the sale is as clean as possible," Sturock said.

A recommendation will be brought to the school board for its final approval of the contract to sell the property to the city.

Some believe center will hurt private business

MEETINGS

Aside from the competitive concern shared by Gabe Campbell and McKenzie they have also voiced concern about the city funding the undertaking.

"I don't know where they get these big ideas. I think the city is foolish. If they build it they'll be left sitting on a hen. There is a lot of other stuff they could do with the money," McKenzie said.

But John Campbell, chairman of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors disagrees. He thinks this is just the way the DDA should spend money.

"I believe what this conference center is set up to do is to serve our hotels and downtown area, which is what the DDA is set up to do," he said.

He feels this project would not be competitive because it is filling a need that is currently unmet, providing meeting space in close proximity to hotels and the downtown area.

Linda Mueller, owner of the newly renovated Castle Farms located off M-66 which also services social events and other major gatherings like art and antique shows, symphony concerts and more, said she hopes the community will come out and see what her facility has to offer before making a decision on the center.

"We would love to work with the community to bring business into Charlevoix. I hope the community comes out and after they see what we have to offer make a better decision for what Charlevoix needs," she said. "If (after they visit) they think we need to do something else, then we should."

Castle Farms is currently available from May through October, but Mueller said if there was a demand from November to April the event gathering locations could be heated.

The conference facility committee plans to reconvene in mid to late May to further discuss the study results.

Bike around Lake Charlevoix

The Third Annual Bike Ride Around Lake Charlevoix will be Saturday, June 28, 2003.

There will be four Boyne City Bicycle Routes: 20, 43, 62, 105 miles. Those who enter for the 43, 62, or 105 mile rides, registration starts at 7 a.m., and riders depart no later than 8:30 a.m. The 20 mile ride registration starts at 10 a.m., with riders departing no later than 11:30 a.m.

An-all-you-can-eat lunch will be from noon to 2 p.m. in Veteran's Park in Boyne City. Rides start and finish at Veteran's Park on Lake Charlevoix in Boyne City.

The 20-mile ride is along the south shore of the main body of Lake Charlevoix from Boyne City to the Ironton Ferry and returning to Boyne City. Since this is an out and back route you can turn around any time you want.

The 43-mile ride is around Lake Charlevoix from Boyne City, to Horton Bay, the town of Charlevoix, and the Ironton Ferry. This route involves side trips into hills with moderately rolling terrain. Riders should carry $1 to pay the ferry fee.

The 62 mile ride is around Lake Charlevoix from Boyne City, the hills towards the northwest, the town of Charlevoix and hills around Ellsworth and East Jordan including the Wall. This is the hilliest metric century in Michigan.

The 105 mile ride combines the 62 mile ride and after lunch the 43 mile ride. (No support services after lunch.)

The cost is $16 for registrations received by June 14, $20 after June 24, no refunds after June 24. This is a non-profit ride. Your fee is used only for ride related services.

Non-riders are welcome to join the riders for lunch. The non-rider cost is $12 by June 24; $15 after.

Helmets are required. All riders must obey all applicable laws.

Children 16 and under must be accompanied by an adult.

Sag Service will be provided for each ride. Snacks will be provided on the route: Bananas, cookies, and drinks.

For more information contact the North Country Bike Club, 232 Water St., Suite 138, Boyne City, MI 49712, or phone 231-582-3468, look up the website at www.lmb.org/nmb or e-mail to servaispm@aol.com.

Developer increases bid

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

An increased offer hy developer Bill Sherman on May 16 will raise new discussion by school board members who will decide the fate of the old middle school.

School board president Allen Telgenhof said Sherman's original $775,000 offer for the property was set to expire May 23, but his latest offer of $800,000 will now extend an extra 21 days from Sherman's latest proposal.

"When he gave us his original offer we all thought that was his offer and that's what we were working from. We got a revised offer from him upping the price by $25,000," he said.

No decision was reached on either proposal, but one will need to be reached before the next regular school board meeting. The next board meeting is set for June 9, however Sherman's offer now expires June 5.

"At this point we don't want to reject Mr. Sherman's offer through not doing anything. We would have to decide in a special board meeting before June 9," Telgenhof said.

He said the next step is for the building and grounds committee to discuss both offers at their 7:30 a.m. meeting today, Wednesday.

"At this point, we're going to meet to talk about his offer and where we're at status-wise with the city's offer," he said.

Telgenhof said the committee will be able to reach more of a conclusion after the Downtown Development Authority meeting, which was at 7 p.m. last night.

He said the three person committee needs to make sure all the previous language issues were cleared up after it met in a special session May

Sinking fund, Headlee to be decided by voters

(Editor's note: This is the first in a two part series looking at the school election on June 9. Next week we will examine the candidates for school board.)

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

Area taxpayers will have to decide the fate of two school funding hallot proposals soon — a Headlee Amendment override and the sinking fund.

Charlevoix Schools Superintendent Dr. John Sturock said voting in favor of the sinking fund and the Headlee Amendment on June 9 will allow the district to receive more money while costing the taxpayers less.

"Between these two, we're reducing the taxes that are collected from this year to next year," he said.

The school board is reducing the sinking fund's asking price by one-tenth from its current figure and the Headlee Amendment is asking to meet Michigan's 18 mill maximum.

However, homestead property owners will not see an increase in their taxes because it will only affect non-homestead properties, such as second homes.

Anyone within the school district can vote on these issues in the school board election from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m., June 9 at the Charlevoix Elementary School.

The sinking fund, which was last renewed in 1997, was a separate fund created for facilities maintenance and upgrades. This money cannot be used for any operational costs.

"The sinking fund is an opportunity for school districts to ask taxpayers for millage for the maintenance of schools," Sturock said.

Last year the district asked for a one mill sinking fund and, after reviewing last year's figures, it has decided to lower that number to nine-tenths of a mill.

Northwest Marina questions water billing

Northwest Yacht Club is having trouble with its water bill from the winter. (Photo by Amy Sayre)

> Eric Kammermann,
> Northwest Marine Yacht Club harbormaster

A broken water meter at the Northwest Marine Yacht Club has caused members of the association to question if they are being billed correctly for their water usage.

Harbormaster Eric Kammermann spoke to Charlevoix City Council members on behalf of the association May 19, to bring attention to over $8,000 in yearly water charges. He hopes to be billed only for the water they use instead of a flat monthly rate the association is currently being billed under.

"We don't have a water meter for the dock system. Even in the winter, when we drain the water down, we are charged for usage in the bathhouse," he said.

Dockside water is drained down the first week in November until the last week in April and fees during that time of year are up to as much as $682.51 a month.

The association began being billed for winter months a few years ago, and when Kammermann went to inquire about the changes, he was told the association had not been billed correctly. But instead of a reduction, their prices raised $4,068.96 because they had previously been billed for 65 faucets instead of 207.

Kammermann said he was told by City Treasurer Rick Brandi it was not fair to year-round residents for the association not to be billed that way as well.

In an interview with the Courier, Brandi said because it is a condominium dock system and the docks are individually owned, the flat rate charge is based on the 207 slips present. He said all condominiums are billed this way with both a flat rate and a per usage charge.

"That's the way we would bill any kind of condominium ownership," he said.

Ideally Kammermann and the other members would like to see their bills reflect the quantity of water they use.

"We want to pay our fair share - nothing more, nothing less," he said.

Kammermann feels the problem could be solved if the association's water meter was fixed. The meter, installed in the mid 1980s, is currently broken. It has been broken and repaired several times in the past.

"It's not a standard meter, it's been fixed and it breaks when they shut off the water each year," Brandi said.

Water and Electric Superintendent Ed Whitley said access to the meter is the main problem. He said the over 300-pound, 4 inch

Keep the roads safe in Charlevoix this summer

EDITORIAL

Summertime in Charlevoix is a wonderful time.

With light cool breezes coming off of the lake, warm sand beaches to enjoy, colorful scenery to take in and delightful small shops to visit, Charlevoix is the heaven of northern Michigan. But then there's the traffic.

Traffic is our price to pay for living in such a place as Charlevoix. But, there are ways to make your trip through town a little more enjoyable than frustrating and definitely more safe.

Charlevoix Police Chief Dennis Halverson said the first thing to do to be safe on the Charlevoix roads is "responsible alcohol consumption." While the many festivals are fun, it is not fun to wrap your vehicle around a tree, killing yourself or an innocent person, because you were drunk behind the wheel.

Second on the list of safety rules for Charlevoix traffic is having patience.

Basically, traffic is slow through Charlevoix and there is no use in getting mad at it. When you get mad, you make bad decisions and when you make bad decisions, you could pay a hefty price.

Many Charlevoix residents bring a book or magazine along with them when traveling. When you get stopped by the bridge opening, it is a nice source of entertainment. And now that there is construction to deal with, perhaps the book should be a little longer.

Lastly Halverson said people should make driving their number one priority when behind the wheel. This means no talking on the cellular telephone and limiting your search for that perfect radio station or CD.

Let's keep it safe on the roads of Charlevoix for a happy summer.

Correction

In last week's editorial column by Jeremy McBain, he erroneously reported that the Charlevoix School Board had accepted the city's offer to buy the old Charlevoix Middle School. However, the seriously embarrassed editor should have said the Charlevoix School Board's Building and Grounds Committee decided to pursue the city's offer and suggest it to the full board. This issue continues to evolve, though, as the developer who also wants the property has upped his offer. See page 1 for details.

Use caution when you use science in politics

Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

Regardless of how you feel about money being provided from the public treasury to parents who will use it to help send their children to private schools, it would be nice to know that the money spent actually helped with educational problems.

We don't know whether it does or it doesn't. The following information is largely from an article in the May 7 New York Times.

Three years ago a Harvard University professor named Paul Peterson published a study which suggested that the black children who attended private schools using voucher money provided by several foundations had increased test scores compared to similar black children who remained in the public schools. The study included test scores from 2,700 students.

It was immediately cited by supporters of school vouchers as definitive evidence that such vouchers worked. The author was lauded by politicians who supported vouchers. He appeared on all the best television shows and later published a book, in which he stated, "The switch to a private school had significantly positive impacts on the test scores of African-American students."

That sounds convincing.

Policy makers in government and editorialists in newspapers quickly concluded that the debate about the value of vouchers was over. They said we had best begin installing policies that would make school vouchers widely available.

A year later, Alan B. Krueger, a professor from Princeton examined exactly the same information used by the Harvard professor. He concluded that the information showed no positive effect of the transfers to private schools for black, white or Hispanic students.

Neither professor was lying and so far as can be determined, neither had any strong ideological bias toward or against school vouchers. What was happening?

The results of complex research involving thousands of people are not always crystal clear. In this case, two equally qualified people came to the opposite conclusions from exactly the same information. Additional analysis and comment seems to support the idea that the use of school vouchers in this study did not make any statistical difference in the test scores for any group of students.

What is to be learned from such confusion? First, one essential tenet of science is that a study or some piece of research must be repeatable. No matter how well one outcome coincides with our prejudices, it would be well to withhold judgment and action until the matter had been examined again.

Second, we should probably be cautious about rushing into policy changes based on one person's research, no matter how convincing it sounds.

Finally, what appears to be good science should never be used to support a purely political point of view until we are really certain about what it means.

Science can without question be a most valuable tool in helping us understand how the world works. But its results should always be approached with the same caution and skepticism that other scientists might apply. Doing science requires the application of healthy skepticism. So does understanding and using it.

Thank you for helping grandson

Editor:

We would like to take this means of thanking the kind people on Hampton Street who noticed our grandson, Jack, and his dog, Jersey, the Sunday of Memorial Day weekend.

They were lost. Jack had kicked a ball over our fence in the backyard and opened the gate to retrieve it. When he did, the dog got out and ran away, so Jack followed in his stocking feet.

He finally managed to collar the dog, but then didn't know where he was. A nice lady named "Chris" was watering her flowers and saw Jack crying.

She asked him what was wrong, and he told her he was lost. He also told her his name was Jack and that he was visiting his grandparents, "The Hortons who live on Eaton Street."

So Chris got a dog leash from her house, got it on the dog, and meanwhile a nice gentleman, whose name I didn't catch, called to say they had a little crying boy, accompanied by a big black dog, and was he ours? I said, "Oh, my goodness, that must be Jack."

None of us were aware that he had left the yard. The man then told us Chris was bringing them home through the vacant lot between Eaton and Hampton Streets.

Jack was thoroughly frightened, although the dog didn't

Thank you Muellers

Editor:

I would like to thank Mr. and Mrs. Mueller for their marvelous gift to Charlevoix — the restoration of Castle Farms. The public open house was perfection and enjoyed by hundreds. It's wonderful to have another jewel in Charlevoix to show our visitors.

Some city officials are pursuing a convention center. Have they considered the unique attraction of Castle Farms for meetings? Local caterers can provide delicious food and visitors would only be a few minutes from shopping and motels.

We wish the Muellers great success in this venture.

Kids need activities

Editor:

Don't you want your kids outdoors or doing something other than laying on the couch? Well, if Charlevoix had activities for kids of all ages we would have a lot of fun in Charlevoix.

In Charlevoix kids need more activities. On the weekends kids usually just lay around and watch television. Kids could interact and make more friends. Wouldn't you love that? We could have a mall or miniature golf place. Big and not expensive stores like Wal-Mart.

Petoskey is making more money than Charlevoix. Petoskey has the Jungle for miniature golf, a nice movie theater, and nice stores like Wal-Mart. People shouldn't have to travel to another town.

Plus, Traverse City is making more money than Petoskey and Charlevoix. Traverse City has a mall where kids love to hangout and buy clothes and toys. We shouldn't have to travel a few hours to have fun. Charlevoix should be a fun place to go.

Kids need more activities in Charlevoix, instead of traveling about two hours. This may cost money but after Charlevoix has some of the activities, Charlevoix would be making more money like Traverse City and Petoskey.

School buses need improvement

Editor:

Wouldn't it be nice for Charlevoix Middle School students to have a more comfortable ride to school? Here is a way to make that happen! I think that middle school students should ride their own bus to and from school. Although this may cost more money, 90 percent of students think it is a great idea because of all the problems on the buses.

A reason this is a great idea is some high schoolers set bad examples for middle school students. Some high schoolers set bad examples for middle school students by swearing. Middle school students learn the bad words from them then repeat them. Maybe if high schoolers did not ride the buses, there would be less swearing in Charlevoix Middle School.

In addition, some high schoolers have unfavorable attitudes and bully middle schoolers around on the bus. Some high schoolers will not even let middle school students sit in the back. This causes a fight and kids sometimes get hurt.

In conclusion, the buses are way overcrowded. People are even sitting in the aisles because it is so crowded. When a bus makes a sudden stop, kids fall all over and get hurt.

With some high schoolers setting bad examples, and so many kids getting hurt from the overcrowded buses, I think that the school should provide a separate bus for middle schoolers. This would make a huge difference in our community.

Raise the dropout age

Editor:

In this paragraph I would like to persuade you voters and Congress to raise the age of high school dropouts. Students who drop out of high school are going to be in need of basic needs because every good paying job likes smart employees.

More people will be economically equal if students have a high school education. Also, students are proven to start gangs, so they aren't lonely during the day. School will keep students off of streets because the students will be doing homework, in school, or involved in an after school academic class. More 16-year-old high school dropouts are proven to be jailed more.

Bumping the age from 16 to 18 will not defy their individual rights.

The 16-year-old students who figure they're going to slack off because they're going to drop out at 18 are going to run into punishments for slacking like they will always be in detention, at a boot camp, hurting themselves or others, maybe even doing drugs.

For the safety of society students should be kept in school till the age of 18. Like having a speed limit is for safety and keeping students in school until 18 is a different kind of safety.

Citizens who have a high school diploma are living a wonderful life with a good amount of money and they're living independently.

Compared to citizens without high school diplomas are in welfare because they can't support themselves. The more citizens drop out and go in welfare the more taxes increase.

If you ask anybody who didn't complete high school they will all say they regret not finishing.

So I propose to keep all students in high school till eighteen to make a better society.

Graduations to be this weekend

By AMY SAYRE
Staff Writer

The pomp and circumstance will begin this Saturday with three Charlevoix area high school graduations taking place the next two weekends.

The 2003 graduating classes of Beaver Island, Charlevoix High School and Northwest Academy will receive their diplomas in the final step of their high school careers.

This weekend, Northwest's graduation is scheduled to take place at 7 p.m., May 30 at the First Congregational Church located at the corner of Park Avenue and State Street. The Charlevoix High School's seniors will walk at 2 p.m., June 1 in the Charlevoix High School gym.

Should city plant trees?

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

The city council is trying to make good on its promise to plant trees along Belvedere Avenue, but is unsure if residents now actually want them.

A survey conducted by the Shade Tree Commission found that, of the residents on the street surveyed, only two lots expressed interest in having the trees planted on their property.

"We found most of the people who live at the top are not particularly interested with having trees there," said Roger Knutson of the Shade Tree Commission. "We talked to everyone who lives over there. Where they were willing, trees were planted."

When the city decided to construct sidewalks on Belvedere Avenue last year, residents were upset the trees along the avenue would be destroyed and the coun-

Harold Frederick Peltz: Nov. 17, 1912 - May 21, 2003

Harold Frederick Pletz left us on Wednesday, May 21, 2003, to go home to the house of our Lord at the age of 90.

He was born on Nov. 17, 1912, in Detroit, to Frederick and Emma (Malzon) Pletz.

On Jan. 3, 1942, he married Frances (Hillier) Pletz.

He was a graduate of Michigan State College (now Michigan State University), where he earned a degree in business administration and accounting in 1939.

He served in the U.S. Army from 1941-1946 as a major in the Quarter Master Corps.

He owned and operated Pletz & Sons, a gas station and body shop, with his father in East Lansing from 1939 to 1973. He also owned a Chrysler and Plymouth car dealership in Williamston from 1962 to 1969. He was the head accountant for Knapp's Department Store in Lansing from 1971 to 1981.

He gave to any community that he lived in. From 1948-1960 he served on the City Council of East Lansing and was mayor from 1958-1960; from 1948 to 1965 he was on the Ingham County Board of Supervisors, and served as chairman of the Ingham County Board of Health for 30 years. When he retired to East Jordan in 1980 he became the South Arm Township Zoning Administrator and then the South Arm Township Supervisor from 1982 to 1989.

He was a member of Kiwanis International for more than 53 years, and served as the governor of the Michigan District in 1961. He received the Distinguished Kiwanian award from the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club and the George E. Hixon fellowship award.

He was a former member of Peoples Church Interdenominational in East Lansing from 1942 to 1982, and was a current member of the First Congregational Church-UCC in Charlevoix, where he served as treasurer from 1982 to 2002.

He was a member of the East Jordan Family Health Center board from 1998 to 2003.

He was preceded in death by his parents, Frederick in 1967 and Emma in 1985, and by twin great-grandchildren in 2001.

He is survived by his wife of 61 years, Frances; his two brothers and one sister, Frederick (Ruth) Pletz of Lansing, David Pletz of Boulder City, Nev., and Marguerite (Pletz) Baier of Gladwin; his four sons and one daughter, Harold (Carol) Pletz of Elk Grove Village, Ill., Steven (Susan) Pletz of Algonquin, Ill., James (Sandra) Pletz of Chicago, Ill., Frederick (Cheryl) Pletz of Lake and Alice (Michael) Miller of East Jordan. He had 13 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren, many nieces and nephews and great-nieces and great-nephews.

Memorials can be made to the Michigan Kiwanis Foundation or to the East Jordan Family Health Center.

Visitation will be 6-8 p.m. Friday, May 23, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

A memorial service will be held at 5 p.m. Saturday, May 24, at the First Congregational Church with the Rev. Mary Willis officiating. Interment will take place at Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Kathleen L. Pettis: March 11, 1960 - May 23, 2003

Kathleen L. Pettis, 43, of Charlevoix, died Friday, May 23, 2003 at her home in Charlevoix.

A funeral service was given Tuesday, May 27 at Bethany Lutheran Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. Michael Teuscher officiated and burial was in Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Katie was born March 11, 1960, in Petoskey, the daughter of David R. and Julia (Grams) Conklin.

She graduated from Midlothian High School in Midlothian, Va. in 1977. She graduated from Petoskey Beauty Academy, and was a self-employed cosmetologist at New Creations in Charlevoix.

On July 6, 1985, she married James L. Pettis of Charlevoix.

Katie is survived by her husband Jim; daughters Jessica S., Jaime L., and Lauren M., all of Charlevoix; parents David (Mary) Conklin of Angola, Ind., and Julia (Norman) Eppler of Petoskey; mother-in law Viola (James) Waller of Charlevoix; brothers and sisters Cynthia (Gary) Peludat of Collinsville, Ill., John Conklin of Petoskey, Mary (Jim) Karlskin of Boyne Falls, Thomas (Eileen) Conklin of Bluefield W.V., Mark (Jana) Blaschak of Naperville, Ill., Dean (Marcia) Blaschak of Bolingbrook, Ill., Todd Blaschak, Scott (Barbara) Blaschak, Melvin (Denille) Conklin, all of Angola, Ind., and Laura (Tim) Gerke of Fort Wayne, Ind.

Memorial contributions toward her daughters' education fund may be made in care of Charlevoix State Bank.

Visitation was Monday evening at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Begrow's talent seen in Charlevoix's image

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Jack Begrow's imagination can be seen all over Charlevoix.

The Charlevoix architect has designed over 2,000 dwellings in the area, most notably the original Charlevoix library, Edgewater Inn, Lakehouse, the Dunes condominiums and the Harbor Club.

"I like the creativity (of being an architect). I like solving problems, such as building problems," Begrow said. "Creativity makes a good architect. In order to perfect creativity they have to be able to think with their hands."

And even after over 45 years in the business, Begrow's creativity continues to flourish and be recognized, most recently with a design he submitted to a contest for a new World Trade Center building in New York.

After the original World Trade Center was destroyed in a terrorist attack on Sept. 11, 2001, the city of New York hosted a design competition for a new center. This new center would serve not only as a functional building, but also as a memorial to the people who died in those attacks.

As the entries were coming in and being publicized, Begrow said he didn't really see any that he liked. So, he entered the competition himself.

"I was sitting on a beach in the Virgin Islands — I used to have a winter office there — and I started to think about how ugly the submissions were to this competition. So, I decided to design and send in my idea of the World Trade Center."

Begrow describes his design as a "life circle" with a building on one side of the circle that slowly builds up in height and a memorial garden on the other side of the circle.

"My central idea is everything else is spires in New York City. I felt this was a memorial so the design should totally be different," he said.

But, Begrow did not know where to send the design because he did not have an official entry form, so he sent it to Katie Couric of NBC's Today Show. Couric eventually passed on the design to the mayor of New York City.

Unfortunately, Begrow's design was not picked, but he did receive a letter from the mayor saying the design would be included in the permanent archive at the New York City Department of Records and Information Services for general viewing at a later date.

This was not the first competition that Begrow has entered his work in. Throughout his career he has entered several design competitions, most notably the National Cowboy Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center in Oklahoma City, Okla. in 1957 that he won.

Begrow, who grew up in Huntington Woods, graduated form the University of Michigan with an undergraduate degree in architecture. In 1957, he received his master's degree from the University of Michigan.

Two years later, he won an international design competition — the Cowboy Hall of Fame.

"It was quite a thing to get a master's degree in 1957 and then win an international design competition two years later," he said. "That was a big shove to my career."

Begrow came to Charlevoix in 1960, from Bellaire. He had come to Bellaire from Birmingham to work on the Shanty

Creek Resort. Once in northern Michigan, he said a friend convinced him to move to Charlevoix and start a practice.

Upon arriving in Charlevoix, he bought a house on Michigan Avenue for $16,000 and raised six children there. At the time, he had an office in downtown Charlevoix.

Nine years ago, Begrow moved his business into a new building at just north of the bridge on the Lake Michigan side of Michigan Avenue. In addition to moving to the new building, he partnered with Tim Fisher, a interior designer.

Over the years Begrow has watched his career boom, with his designs being featured in magazines and recognized by fellow architects.

As for the big changes in Charlevoix over the years since he has been here, Begrow said the biggest was the development of resorts that brought more people to the area throughout the year.

"Traverse City to Harbor Springs has always been the gold Coast and has always been the hub of tourism in the summer," he said.

> "The problem with computers is the designers rely on them too much and don't use their imagination enough."

But, with the introduction of ski resorts, northern Michigan has become a year round resort community, he said.

While this may mean we have good base for income throughout the year, Begrow still sees many challenges ahead for Charlevoix and the surrounding communities. Those challenges include controlling growth and building sewers that go around the lake.

He added, there are also some challenges for architects in the future, not only in Charlevoix, but around the world. This challenge is keeping Begrow's beloved creativity in architecture.

"One of my great fears is they will let computers do that for them. The problem with computers is the designers rely on them too much and don't use their imagination enough," he said.

Charlevoix woman raising money for MS

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Shellie Johnson, of Charlevoix, isn't just taking part and raising money for an MS Walk on June 28 in Traverse City hoping her hard work will help find a cure for herself; she also wants to help others with the crippling disease in northern Michigan.

"I'm trying to make people aware of the Multiple Sclerosis (MS)," she said. "Up here in northern Michigan, people are unaware. They have heard of the disease, but there is no involvement."

Johnson said people should be involved as Michigan is the highest populated area in the United States with MS diagnosis. There is no known cause to the disease.

Johnson, 38, was diagnosed with the disease in February after she woke up without vision in her right eye. She went to a retinal specialists, who suspected MS due to some other symptoms she was having.

Johnson was given an MRI where lesions and white matter were seen on her spinal cord.

While she is in the very early stages of the disease, Johnson takes drugs to keep the MS in check. But she still has constant tingling down her left side and fatigue, as well as some permanent vision loss in her right eye.

According to information from Johnson, MS is a chronic, often disabling disease of the central nervous system with symptoms such as numbness in the limbs or severe-paralysis or loss of vision.

Basically, Johns said, your immune system becomes confused and starts to attack the body by deteriorating the Myelin sheath that surrounds nerves. This causes nerve impulses to be slowed or halted.

She added people with MS are sometimes thought to be intoxicated due to the symptoms. However, the symptoms are different for every person.

While there is no cure for the disease, Johnson said a cure is expected to be found in her lifetime.

Instead of just letting the disease progress, Johnson is trying to fight back and one way is through the MS Walk in Traverse City.

Johnson said she found out about the walk from the National MS Society.

"Anyone can develop a team," she said.

Each person on the team has a personal goal to raise a certain amount of money. Johnson's goal is $400, but she hasn't really started to "hit the streets" yet to raise money.

The money raise for the walk helps strengthen the support services for MS patients in Michigan, goes to research on the disease and helps buy MS patients various needed items like lifts for their vehicles — some MS patients are in wheelchairs — and air conditioners. Johnson said heat really brings on the symptoms, therefor air conditioners are "definitely a friend."

Johnson really is enjoying the fact she will be helping others with the disease.

"Because I can walk and I can talk, I can be out there and be a voice for those who can't," she said.

Any donation is appreciated.

To donate, check should be made payable to the National Multiple Sclerosis Society and can be mailed to one of the following addresses: Shellie Johnson, 11817 Sequanota Heights Drive, Charlevoix, MI 49720 or the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, Michigan Chapter, 21311 Civic Center Drive, Southfield, MI 48076-3911.

Please include reference number 8716783 on the check. This identifies it as Johnson's team.

For more information, contact Johnson at 547-5945.

Belvedere Avenue trees debated by residents

TREES

cil voted last August to replant trees on the street when sidewalk construction was complete.

"Historically that south side of Belvedere Avenue has had a nice row of maple trees," Knutson said.

Even though the trees were promised, residents on the south side of the street have questioned whether planting these trees will obstruct their views of Round Lake.

Belvedere Avenue resident Jill Picha expressed her concern at the May 19 Charlevoix City Council meeting saying that given the high property taxes on that street, they are taxed for their views, which she claims are now deteriorating.

"....our views keep getting taken away," she said.

Her land has been in her family for generations. She said when her family built the house they were guaranteed a 60 foot view quarter between the two buildings that are on the opposing side of the street.

The area in question is a strip of land between the city sidewalks and street, a small piece of land suitable only for certain smaller kinds of trees.

"The very small number that were planted were a kind of low growing maple called a hedge maple," Knutson said.

It was suggested that hedge maples and lower growing maple trees could be planted in the area and possibly not disrupt the south side residents' views, however the space is too limited. Knutson said eventually the trees would disrupt the sidewalk and curb on Belvedere Avenue.

"There is not enough room comfortably to put trees in between the road and the street," Knutson said.

It is also questionable if new trees could survive past the first winter once snow plowing and salting begin.

"Young trees in particular and any kinds of evergreen will be bothered by salt in the road. They are at risk in the winter," Knutson said.

The only place trees could be planted is on the residents' private property.

Mayor Gabe Campbell said he is unsure whether putting trees where they are unwanted is a good move.

"We have never forced trees on private property and we don't think it's a good time to start," Campbell said.

But, First Ward Council Member Norm Carlson said he would like to see the city follow through on it's promise to plant the trees.

"It's always been the mission of the city to plant as many trees as possible," he said.

> "We found most of the people who live at the top are not particularly interested with having trees there."
> Roger Knutson, Charlevoix Shade Tree Commissioner

Carlson stated he wanted the trees replaced even if they are of a smaller variety because they added a bit of charm to the street.

Council members decided to let the Shade Tree Commission speak with the residents further before they reach any sort of conclusion to plant or to not plant trees.

"As I understood it, not much of anything was decided because feelings are quite strong on both sides of that issue. I think overall you would have to say it's an impasse at the moment," Knutson said.

Arts center to host jazz performer on June 9

The Crooked Tree Arts Center will host Michael Brush and Friends, in concert, at 8 p.m., Monday, June 9.

The performance will feature traditional jazz tunes and original composition and will be at the Crooked Tree Arts Center's Ross Stoakes Theater.

Michael Brush hails from Saginaw and has a loyal group of fans that follow him to his performances. A music teacher in the Saginaw Public School Systems, Brush was a founding member and director of the Saginaw All Kids Choir.

His educational music work has garnered him recognition from the Saginaw Community Enrichment Commissions and he was a recipient of the Herman W. Coleman Human Relations Award.

Brush has heightened the awareness of diversity and unity through a universal message of music. Brush and the All Kids Choir have been featured on CBS This Morning and have performed in Washington DC as a part of the 10th anniversary of "America Sings."

Since 1985, Brush has played jazz with a group of friends from the Saginaw area. Brush on piano and providing vocals, entertains his audience with works by the likes of Duke Ellington, George and Ira Gershwin and Sonny Rollins.

His own compositions are well received by his audiences as well.

Just about all styles of jazz will be explored, as Brush has a large repertoire.

Tickets are $10 and are available by calling the Crooked Tree Arts Center at 347-4337 or online at www.crookedtree.org. The Crooked Tree Arts Center is located in downtown Petoskey at 461 E. Mitchell Street.

Symphony goals set at $60,000

The Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation's Symphony on the Green announced recently the goals for this summer's symphony event featuring the Glenn Miller Orchestra.

Initial funds of $60,000 will be used to purchase much needed equipment for the Charlevoix Area Hospital's surgery department. Also funds will be raised for the Red Cross with their sponsorship of a "keeper fish" from the Great Northern Fish-In, continuing support of the Beginning Strings Program for Charlevoix and Northern Antrim counties and providing support for community outreach and education programs through the hospital's foundation.

This year, Symphony on the Green will bring the big band sound to Charlevoix when the Glenn Miller Orchestra appears on Friday, July 11, in the Barn at Dunmaglas Golf Course.

Tickets for the event start at $15 for lawn seating for students and seniors and go up to $200 for patron ticket holders. Patron tickets include dinner and dessert, with seating under the tent for $200 per person. These seats are available on a limited basis. There is some limited seating under the tent for $50 per person. General seating on the lawn is available for $25 per person.

Those purchasing lawn tickets must provide their own lawn chairs or blankets. Box dinners and beverages are available, but dinners must be ordered prior to the concert. To order tickets, box dinners or for general information, call 231-547-8685.

Golf tournament comes back to Belvedere

By ANDY SNEDDON
Petoskey News-Review
sports writer

They say you can always go home again.

In the case of the Michigan Amateur golf tournament, home is Belvedere Golf Club.

"We're proud to be here — great tradition," said David Devendorf, vice president of the Golf Association of Michigan, at the tournament media day last week. "It's extraordinary. We're going to be so proud to have this course for all the participants. It (Belvedere) really paints a beautiful picture of the rich heritage of the club."

The ninety-second annual tournament, which annually crowns the state's top amateur male player, returns to Belvedere after a 15-year absence. It was played at the Belvedere every June from 1963-88, and 2003 marks the thirty-ninth time the course will host the event.

"This has been a labor of love," said Steve Braun, who is in his seventh year as the head pro at Belvedere. "I've had fun trying to make sure that we do this right."

The tournament begins with 156 players — determined by sectional qualifying and exemptions — on June 17. After two rounds of medal play, the field is cut to the low 64 players, who then square off in a grueling test of elimination match play until the two-man final on Saturday, June 21.

"We really started talking about it, four, five, six years ago," club president Peter Flanigan said. "We are delighted to be considered to have the tournament."

The Belvedere was built in 1925 by William Watson, who also had a hand in designing such famed American golf names as Interlochen in Minneapolis, The Olympic Club in San Francisco, and Olympia Fields outside Chicago, site of this year's U.S. Open.

But before the GAM would award the state amateur to the Belvedere, the club went through a spiffing-up stage, spearheaded by greens superintendent Rick Grunch, along with Braun and general manager Tom Conlan.

"There are really three people who run the Belvedere Golf Club," Flanigan said. "Tom Conlan, Rick Grunch and Steve Braun. If you knew what our budget was ... I mean, these guys just perform miracles."

The work they put in, plus their attention to bringing the course up to championship caliber and covering all the bases, was enough to convince Devendorf, the GAM vice president.

"Two years ago they went to Flint Golf Club" site of the 2001 tournament, he said. "And last year, they were at the Country Club of Jackson.

"They have been extremely dedicated here ensuring that they do it just right for the return to Belvedere. My hat's off to the folks at the club who have prepared this place."

The old-style course, which plays to a par 70, 6,715 yards, is expected to be absolutely shining when the tournament tees off in less than four weeks.

And while the Belvedere certainly will show its teeth, the course features something extra, according to GAM officials who attended Wednesday's event.

"This is special for a lot of us," tournament director Roger Ostrander said. "It's the way you feel when you're out there. It's different than being at The Bear ... You feel like there's a lot of history (at the Belvedere). It's quiet, it's a very nice place to be.

"It's just the greatest place to be. I guess that's why we're here for the thirty-ninth time."

Several times throughout media day, some of the most storied names in golf who have played the Belvedere were evoked, including Tommy Armor, Walter Hagen and Tom Watson, who, as a child, summered in the area.

"And I understand that No. 16 is one of his favorite golf holes of all time," Flanigan said. "To be on the short list of one of the world's greatest golfers is an extraordinary statement regarding the kind of challenge everybody is going to have when it comes to the Michigan Amateur."

> "It's extraordinary. We're going to be so proud to have this course for all the participants."

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX
Ordinance No. 687 of 2003

AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND SECTIONS 5.270 AND 5.271(a) OF CHAPTER 52 OF TITLE V OF THE CODE OF THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX CONCERNING FEES

THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ORDAINS:

Section 1. Amendment of Section 5.270.
Section 5.270 of Chapter 52 of Title V of the Code of the City of Charlevoix is hereby amended to read in its entirety as follows:

5.270 Standard fee.
The fees for processing planning and zoning requests within the City of Charlevoix shall be as specified by the city council in the annual City of Charlevoix budget ordinance.

Section 2. Amendment of Section 5.271(a).
Section 5.271(a) of Chapter 52 of Title V of the Code of the City of Charlevoix is hereby amended to read in its entirety as follows:

(a) When the city's cost for processing any matter which requires a fee exceeds the standard fee by twenty (20%) percent or more, then an additional fee shall be charged as provided in this section.

Section 3. Severability.
If any section, clause, or provision of this Ordinance is declared unconstitutional or otherwise invalid by a court of competent jurisdiction, said declaration shall not affect the validity of the remainder of the Ordinance as a whole or any part thereof, other than the part so declared to be unconstitutional or invalid.

Section 4. Effective Date.
This Ordinance shall become effective thirty (30) days after its enactment.

Moved by Councilman Chamberlain and seconded by Councilman Carlson to adopt Ordinance No. 687 at the Regular City Council Meeting held on May 19, 2003 by the following yea and nay vote:

Yeas: Councilmembers Gibson, Bellows, Carlson and Chamberlain.
Nays: None.
Absent: Councilmembers Haggard and Campbell.

Elizabeth A. Gooch, City Clerk

Rayders track host conference championship

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The Charlevoix track team hosted the Lake Michigan Conference May 21 at the high school track near the Charlevoix Middle School.

The boys' team finished the meet in second with a score of 135. The girls' team finished the meet in sixth with a score of 50.

Boys' coach Ken Plude said he was happy with his team's results, especially since many Rayders had to compete in new events due to injuries, but pointed out Harbor Springs — who won the boys' meet — ran exceptionally well that day.

"The kids moved into different positions and did their best," Ken said.

Girls' coach Mary Plude was also happy with her team.

"For a young team, we had some great performances; many that didn't place, but did get some personal records," she said.

Individual results for the boys' team were:

- Discus — Kyle Kramer in third with a distance of 131 feet, 6 inches.
- Shot put — Lukas Whitley in fourth with a distance of 43 feet.
- High jump — Philip Steen in third with a height of 5 feet, 8 inches. Todd Carey in fourth with a height of 5 feet, 6 inches.
- Long jump — Ryan Seelye in second with a distance of 19 feet, 11 inches.
- 3200 meter relay — The Charlevoix team of Nathaniel Sotuyo, Mike Castiglione, John Wilkinson, Brandon Stevens in fourth with a time of 9 minutes, 1 second.
- 110 meter hurdles — Kyle Kramer in second with a time of 15.03 seconds. Spencer Bryan in third with a time of 15.89 seconds. Ben Bergmann in fourth with a time of 16.76 seconds.
- 100 meter dash — Kramer in first with a time of 11.32 seconds.
- 800 meter relay — The Charlevoix team of Carey, Bergmann, Seelye and Nate Teuscher in third with a time of 1 minute, 37 seconds.
- 1600 meter run — Peter Gorkiewicz in fourth with a time of 4 minutes, 37 seconds.
- 400 meter relay — The Charlevoix team of Seelye, Jeff Urban, Bryan and Teuscher in third with a time of 46 seconds.
- 400 meter dash — Carey in fourth with a time of 53 seconds.
- 300 meter hurdles — Bergmann in first with a time of 43 seconds. Bryan in third with a time of 44 seconds.
- 800 meter run — Gorkiewicz in second with a time of 2 minutes, 5 seconds.
- 200 meter dash — Kramer in first with a time of 23 seconds.
- 1600 meter relay — The Charlevoix team of Carey, Bergmann, Gorkiewicz and Teuscher in first with a time of 3 minutes, 32 seconds.

Individual results for the girls' team were:

- Long jump — Jasmine Witthoeft in first with a distance of 15 feet, 4 inches.
- 3200 meter relay — The Charlevoix team of Theresa Martin, Amy Drew, Christine Bradley and Liz Ulrich in third with a time of 10 minutes, 36 seconds.
- 800 meter relay — The Charlevoix team of Witthoeft, Drew, Katie Lieberman and Elizabeth Madison in second with a time of 1 minute, 53 seconds.
- 400 meter relay — The Charlevoix team of Witthoeft, Sonya Plude, Caitlin Ernst and Lieberman in third with a time of 55 seconds.
- 800 meter run — Liz Ulrich in second with a time of 2 minutes, 31 seconds.
- 1600 meter relay — The team of Drew, Martin, Betsey Dennis and Lauren Silberhorn in fourth with a time of 4 minutes, 24 seconds.

Regular season ends with loss

Charlevoix dropped their regular season finale at Suttons Bay on Thursday, 4-1, allowing the Norsemen to retain a share of the Northern Michigan Soccer League title with Harbor Springs.

The Rayders started out strong, scoring early when freshman Stevie Murray sent a direct kick assist to sophomore Jaime Pettis who beat the Suttons Bay keeper on the far post.

The senior dominated Norsemen came back with about 10 minutes left in the first half, scoring when Charlevoix's freshman keeper Laura Nitchman was screened off a shot in front of the net.

Suttons Bay went in front 2-1 in the second half when they converted on a corner kick opportunity the Rayders were unable to clear.

They moved ahead 3-1 on a pretty, circus-like shot, when a well marked Suttons Bay forward flipped the ball up into the wind from 5 yards out with her back to the net, out of the reach of Nitchman.

The final score came late in the game, when a Charlevoix defender's clearing attempt rebounded into the net off a player's back.

The Rayders played hard, but the Norsemen won the majority of the 50 – 50 balls and made the breaks happen in their favor.

Charlevoix continued to receive strong defensive efforts from sophomores Sarah Cross and Madison McKenzie. Rapidly improving, Grace Farrell played one of her best games in the midfield and Shayna Drost and Pettis worked hard at the forward spots. Laura Nitchman earned praise from the Suttons Bay coach with aggressive play in goal, making 16 saves and not really having a chance at the goals scored.

Charlevoix ends the regular season 8-9-1 overall and 4-7-1 in conference.

Baseball team sweeps

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

The Charlevoix Rayders won big and small in a doubleheader sweep over Ellsworth last week, winning 15-0 and 9-8.

In the opener, Kreg Wager led the way both at the plate and on the mound.

Wager struck out five and surrendered only two hits in earning the three-inning mercy rule victory. At the plate, he was three for three with six RBI and two runs scored.

"Kreg is our most complete pitcher this season," coach Bryan Hawkins said. "He spots his location well, keeps hitters off balance and has a work ethic on the mound that should be the model for our entire staff."

Matt Kochanny was two for two with a walk and three runs scored in a DH role. Jon Reid and Matt Kilkenny each singled in a run.

In the nightcap, the Rayders jumped out to a 9-2 lead after three and held on for dear life.

Softball team splits

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

The Charlevoix Rayders split a softball doubleheader with Ellsworth last week, losing 10-0 in game one, but rebounding to take game two, 8-5.

In the opener, Natashia Kleiber, Denise Barta, Jessica Pettis and Sally Haselschwardt had the Rayder hits. Barta's hit was a double. Kleiber took the pitching loss.

Sam Kupka had two hits in the nightcap. Amanda Boss tripled. Kleiber, Barta and Andrea Ruhlman had singles. Monica Cornell gained the pitching victory, striking out two in the complete game.

"It was nice to see the team bounce back like that," coach Liz Grunch said. "They've been coming along nicely and it's just in time with the districts coming up."

Charlevoix (7-12 overall, 3-9 conference) opens district play against Elk Rapids at 10 a.m. on Friday, May 30 at Harbor Springs.

Voters to decide fate of school funding issues

The sinking fund is based on the taxable value of a house, so for a $100,000 home, one mil would cost the taxpayer $100 and the nine-tenths mill amounts to $90.

"When we looked at how much we have, we don't need as much as we have in the past," he said.

Sturock said the sinking fund payment plan is beneficial to taxpayers as well because it is a "pay-as-you-go" program with no interest or borrowed funds.

"I would hope (it passes). People will look at what we've done in the past with the sinking fund. There's a whole lot of value we were able to accomplish," he said.

With last year's sinking fund, the district replaced heating systems, updated electrical systems, removed asbestos and made buildings more handicap accessible. But Sturock said there is still more work to be done.

He said the district still needs to refurbish the elementary school and there is continued work at the new high school's athletic fields.

He said even if the taxpayers do not decide to renew the sinking fund it is likely the district will have to pay for facilities repair and upgrades in the future, regardless.

"I think our community really understands the value of maintaining the buildings and maintaining property given the budget constraints of the state," Sturock said.

He hopes the taxpayers will understand the value of the Headlee Amendment as well.

The amendment refers to the amount of property tax money that can be allocated to the district.

The maximum any district can allocate is 18 mills, and given that property values in Charlevoix are rising faster than inflation, the district is only receiving 17.77 mills.

The proposal asks the district to override the Headlee Amendment and be able to once again receive the full 18 mills of non-homestead properties.

"We're at an advantage because we are in an area where the property values continue to rise. It's not asking them to pay any more than the state constitution will allow," he said.

The 0.23 mill difference will mean an extra $85,000 in revenue for the district's operational fund, but have no effect on homestead property tax rates.

"It costs them (homestead property owners) nothing. It basically costs the commercial and second home property owners," he said.

Property taxes pay for a little less than half of the educational revenue, with the rest of the district's money coming from state taxes like lottery and sales.

With the state's budget not looking to improve any time in the near future, Sturock said the $85,000 would be a significant amount of money to the district.

"We just cut $9,000 from the budget. That $85,000 can help us recover some of the money," he said.

Sheriff George T. Lasater said the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office is investigating a breaking and entering that occurred on May 18 at the Walloon Lake Community Church in Melrose Township.

The sheriff's office investigation has secured evidence at the scene and is currently following up on multiple leads.

Lasater added the office is offering a reward of $500 to anyone with information leading to the apprehension and conviction of the perpetrators.

Information can be given to either Lasater or Deputy Sheriff Investigator Sherry Sproul at 547-4461.

Minor injury

A 20-year-old man received a minor injury in a four-wheeler accident around 6 p.m., May 22 on Phelps Road in Marion Township.

According to the sheriff's department, Luke Patrick Whitley was riding his four-wheeler up a hill when it started to tip back. The handle-bar struck the top of Whitley's head.

He drove to Charlevoix Area Hospital where he was treated for a minor cut on his head.

The sheriff's office said Whitley was not wearing his helmet and alcohol was not a factor.

New offer given by developer for school

14 and advised the city to reword some of the language in its offer.

"What we wanted to do was bring in some clean language," he said.

Telgenhof said when the full board meets to consider both offers, the committee did not want the offer's wording to be a stumbling block. It wanted issues like parking and asbestos resolved ahead of time.

"We just wanted to have acceptable language on the table for the full board to consider. There were things that were not acceptable language-wise to ourselves and our attorney's," Telgenhof said.

The committee is hoping the language kinks will be worked out so they can fully consider the city's $635,000 offer. However, it is unsure if the rewording may cause more discussion Tuesday and further delay the committee members ability to make a recommendation.

Previously, the building and grounds committee opted to pursue the city's offer at a May 14 meeting.

Telgenhof said Sherman's new offer does change the situation, but he is not sure how much.

"It changes in the sense that it's a different offer to consider. I don't know if it will be enough of a difference in the dollar offer to change people's minds," he said.

Telgenhof said he is unsure when the board will reach its final decision.

"The best case scenario - we could come out of that Wednesday meeting with a building and grounds recommendation with which offer to accept," he said.

meter is very large and impossible to take out of its vault, making it difficult to work on. Adding to the problem, the meter's brand is not stocked in Charlevoix.

"We did not inspect that meter. We did not approve where it went. It was put in and we were notified after everything was done," he said. "It was put in all by the developer without our knowledge."

Whitley said the meter should probably be fixed sometime this year.

Brandi is looking further into the issue. A complex rate study was done by a consultant and Brandi said he needs time to look it over to determine whether or not the association is being charged accordingly.

"We're going to make sure it's billed fairly. We have to treat everybody the same way," he said.

Kammermann said association members asked him to pursue the issue.

"It's come up at our board meetings and they asked me to pursue it. If we cannot get anywhere at the city council, we'll look into a legal option," he said.

Kammermann has not been contacted by city council since he spoke last Monday and said he has little hope anything will come of this.

Big, small win for Rayders

BASEBALL

Closer Nate Teuscher induced a game-ending double play in relief to save the win for Charlevoix.

Sophomore Tyler Bier earned the win on the mound in his first varsity start. Bier, just recently called up from the junior varsity, struck out two and yielded only three hits and one walk, though errors led to three unearned runs against him.

Nate Teuscher was two for two with an RBI, two runs and two stolen bases. Kilkenny was two for three with a double, an RBI and two steals.

Bier and Matt Burtt each scored and had a double and two RBI. Jake Burns had an RBI double as well.

Charlevoix (9-15 overall, 4-8 Lake Michigan Conference) had a scheduled doubleheader against Roscommon cancelled due to rain. The Rayders traveled to Bellaire on Tuesday, May 27, but results were unavailable by presstime.

On Friday, May 30, Charlevoix will play in the districts at Harbor Springs. The Rayders drew a bye and will play Elk Rapids at noon. The winner will advance to the district championship at 2 p.m. against either East Jordan, Boyne City or Harbor Springs.

Dogs in Red Cross parade

Miss Columbia leads pack of uniformed canines

Enthusiastic mass meeting shows much sentiment in favor of newly formed society

A novel parade preceded the mass meeting at the opera house last Friday evening, chief among its features being a parade of dogs, big and little, black, tan and yellow, uniformed in bandoliers displaying the Red Cross, led by Boy Scouts mostly on foot and some on ponies. The G.A.R. were out in force and a long string of decorated autos formed the rear of the column. M.B. Hooker was marshal and Miss Dorothy Hooker, garbed to represent Columbia, rode closely behind him. Music was furnished by a band of several pieces under the leadership of W.C. Bellinger.

The opera house, gaily decorated with the national colors, held a large and enthusiastic crowd of citizens who joined heartily in singing the Star Spangled Banner. Rev. C.E. Taggart gave the invocation, which was followed by a flag salute, Captain Berdan instructing. Mr. Taggart briefly sketched the history of the Red Cross and Dr. Greensfelder told of hospital units going to France. He was followed by Dr. Armstrong, who urged the importance of the Red Cross work, to which H.A. Craig added further emphasis by his remarks.

Miss Helen Armstrong told of her experiences on her visits to Fort Sheridan and the Great Lakes stations, where she witnessed the parade given in honor of Marshal Joffre. Captain Berdan, Mr. Bridge, Mr. Shanahan, Dr. Dicken of East Jordan and Mr. Sloan added words of encouragement. Mayor Rose also made a rousing speech. The speakers received much moral support from six little nurses who occupied the platform with them.

Success has attended the Red Cross meetings so far. The rooms will now be open every day at two P.M. "Little Boy Blue," the play given last week was of material assistance to the cause.

On Monday evening next there will be a meeting of the directors of the Red Cross county unit at East Jordan. We have over 100 names on the membership list.

Donors for the week are Mr. McHugh, dishes, spoons and other utensils; Dr. Swinton, one cord of wood; Frank Metcalf, tea; Mrs. Iddings, sewing machine and broom; Mrs. Bellinger, use of stove; Mr. and Mrs. Baker, use of the Beach hotel for a party and evening's entertainment on Monday, June 4th. The publicity committee are A.J. Usher, Albion Smith, Mrs. Peter Vandermade, Miss Addie Holly and Mrs. H.S. Harsha.

All set for Memorial Day

Parade will start at nine o'clock sharp

Following the Morning Exercises at the Cemetery, the Legion Team Will Play C.H.S.

Memorial Day falls this year on Saturday, which gives us two holidays in succession. This probably means that the roads leading out of town will be jammed with cars on Friday evening and then, again, maybe they won't be. It depends largely on the weather which has been acting kinda persnickety lately. Anyhow, we are all hoping that it will be at least fair on Saturday morning for the sake of those who will march to the cemetery.

Members of the American Legion, G.A.R., Spanish War veterans and the Woman's Relief Corps, headed by the Charlevoix band, will assemble on Bridge Street at 9:00 a.m. The line of march will be down Bridge Street to Antrim, up Antrim to State and up State to the cemetery. Floats will be provided for the G.A.R., Relief Corps and band. The parade will start not later than 9:30 p.m.

At the cemetery, the opening prayer will be made by the Rev. William Eldridge of the Church of God. The band will play and following the music the members of the Legion will conduct their usual ceremonies. Then will follow a song by Frank Poole and Charles Hamlin, immediately preceding the exercises of the Relief Corps. Then all will sing, "America" and Stanley Hammond will give a recitation. After the recitation, the Rev. Dr. Bernard G. Mattson of the Congregation church will deliver a fifteen minute speech. Another band selection will follow and Georgia Kelderhouse will recite. Singing of the "Star Spangled Banner" will precede the closing prayer to be made by the Rev. H.R.E. Quant of the Methodist church.

In the afternoon at 2:30 o'clock will occur the great baseball game between the Legionaries and the C.H.S. Team. A charge for admission will be made, the proceeds going one half to the band and one half to the Orphans' Billet, a branch of the Legion's relief work.

It is hoped that as many as can possibly do so will be present at the ceremonies in the morning and at the game in the afternoon. A fine program has been arranged and the efforts that have been made along this line should receive the heartiest public support.

Arrange for a uniform flag display

City Council and Legion are cooperating

Flags before all business places, uniform spacing and setting out, features of plan

Uniform display of American flags in Charlevoix on patriotic and holiday occasions has been assured through cooperation of the city council and Leslie T. Shapton Post, American Legion.

Through a plan given council sanction Monday night, all flags will be placed and taken down by city employees designated for this work. In order to accomplish such an arrangement, flags now owned and held by merchants are to be turned over to the city for storage at the city hall. A receipt will be issued to the owners.

Uniformity in spacing will be made possible by drilling new holes at the curb and equal distance apart on both sides of Bridge Street between Antrim and the highway bridge. It will require 81 flags, 41 on one side of the street and 40 on the other. To provide flags in front of vacant buildings and in front of park property, the city has purchased 34 new national emblems.

Numerous merchants who had not previously owned flags for display purposes purchased them last week during a sales campaign sponsored by the American Legion.

Under the plan as proposed, all flags will be placed by city employees on patriotic and holiday occasions, providing a uniform display instead of the hit-and-miss arrangement customary heretofore. Successful operation of the plan calls for full cooperation of all merchants and the city council and American Legion are asking this support.

CHARLEVOIX HIGH SCHOOL

Ulrich, Gorkiewicz top Rayder grads

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

The top graduates at Charlevoix High School will end their high school careers with grade point averages fractions of a percentage point apart, but neither of the friends felt the heat of competition.

Liz Ulrich, the school's valedictorian, will graduate with a 3.988 grade point average and the school's salutatorian, Peter Gorkiewicz, is hot on her heels with a 3.935 grade point average.

"We both run cross country and with academic all-state honors we always knew we were close," Ulrich said.

But both laughed when asked whether the tight split was ever an issue. They said they are proud of their individual accomplishments and the numbers never made a difference during the 12 years they attended school together.

Ulrich, 18, the daughter of Dan and Patti Ulrich, has attended Charlevoix Public Schools since she was in kindergarten.

During her high school career she has racked up academic honors including being selected vice-president of the National Honor Society, Academic All-State Honorable Mention and a recipient of the 2003 Army Reserve National Scholar/Athlete Award, the 2003 Marine Scholar Excellence Award, the Laddie Educational Foundation Scholarship and the Michigan Education Assessment Program (MEAP) Merit Award.

Her awards outside the classroom recognize her athletic accomplishments and include: all-conference track and cross country, all-regional track and cross country and all-state cross country.

She said her achievements reflect the scope of possibilities offered at the school.

"I've been really impressed with the courses offered. If a student wants to challenge him or herself there are opportunities here," she said.

Ulrich's academic and athletic success will come in handy this fall in Greencastle, Ind. where she will attend DePauw University majoring in pre-medical studies and running cross country.

"I'm looking forward to a fresh, new start — getting out in the world and standing on my own two feet," she said.

Gorkiewicz, 18, is also looking forward to a new start at Northern Graduation to be June 1 at high school

Michigan University in Marquette.

"Coming from such a tight-knit school, I'm excited to get into a bigger population," he said. "Every new experience is something new and big to add to your accomplishments. I'm looking forward to the college experience."

Like Ulrich, Gorkiewicz, the son of Bob and Diane Gorkiewicz and Jeanne and Denny Phelps, had many academic and athletic successes along the road to graduating salutatorian.

During his high school career he was named president of the National Honor Society and received awards including: the Historical Society Research Award, academic all-state awards, vocational education excellence awards, the innovative robotics design award, the Northern Michigan University Academic Excellence Award and the Michigan State Academic Excellence Award.

He said his success is owed in large part to his positive experience with the staff and curriculum at Charlevoix High School.

"We have such incredible teachers that I think have made a point to go the extra mile to help out and really make things apply. I think that sets a good work ethic," he said.

Gorkiewicz plans to study secondary education with a focus on physics this fall in Marquette.

"I am going into secondary education in part because of the teachers here," he said.

This week both Ulrich and Gorkiewicz will join 84 of their classmates in bidding their final farewell to Charlevoix High School and the staff they've come to know and love. Graduation is scheduled to begin at 2 p.m., June 1 in the gym at Charlevoix High School.

NORTHWEST ACADEMY

Bellairs, Welscott top Northwest grads

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Two students with a long history at Charlevoix's charter school, Northwest Academy, will graduate with top honors this spring.

Rachel Bellairs, an accomplished trumpet player and student started at Northwest seven years ago when the school opened. As she prepares herself for graduation she is proud to leave Northwest as its valedictorian.

Bellairs is the 18-year-old daughter of Robert and Jennifer Bellairs of Charlevoix.

During her high school career she has been involved in numerous school and community activities including: membership in the Charlevoix United Methodist Church Youth Group, in the Kiwanis Key Club, in the Northwest Academy Band and Choir and in her senior year, she was selected for the Grand Rapids Youth Symphony.

Her talent with the trumpet and high academic marks earned Rachel several honors and awards including the Michigan Education Assessment Program's (MEAP) Merit Scholarship, the Discover Card Tribute Scholarship and two Merit scholarships through the New England Conservatory.

She plans to attend the conservatory, which is located in Boston, in the fall. There she will study the trumpet and may later pursue a degree in music education.

As she embarks on this next major step in her life Bellairs said Northwest Academy has given her the life skills she needs to succeed.

"Northwest Academy taught me how to work well with people in the arts, as well as in other areas. My performance experience with music at Northwest Academy has prepared me for performing in a more challenging atmosphere," she said.

Bellairs is joined at the head of her class by Northwest Academy salutatorian Craig Welscott.

Welscott, the son of Tom and Mia Welscott of Eastport, has attended Northwest Academy for six years.

The 17-year-old trombone guru has excelled in school as a key member of the band and on the field as a soccer star. Outside of school he enjoys playing in Scotchcoat, a local ska band, and snowboarding.

His academic ability earned him the Michigan Competitive Award and the MEAP test Merit Scholarship.

This fall Welscott plans to attend Goshen College in Goshen, Ind., where he plans to play soccer and continue with the trombone with either an orchestra or jazz ensemble while studying to become a physical therapist.

As he prepares to head to Indiana to start the next chapter in his academic career Welscott said he feels ready.

"I feel well prepared through my classes and opportunities through the work-study programs," he said.

Bellairs and Welscott will join seven other Northwest students and two home-schooled students who were enrolled in a few classes at Northwest for the official tassel turning ceremony. Graduation is scheduled to take place at 7 p.m., May 30 at the First Congregational Church located at the corner of Park Avenue and State Street.

Craig Welscott and Rachel Bellairs entertained many Charlevoix residents and visitors while in the high school band at Northwest Academy. Now they are at the top of their class. (Photo by Julie Witthoeft)

City gives new offer

By AMY SAYRE
Staff Writer

The Charlevoix City Council made changes to their latest offer and reached a new purchase agreement for the old middle school property Monday night in a closed meeting.

Council members discussed the latest recommendations by the school board's building and grounds committee and took out a section of the bid promising a perpetual parking easement of no more than 66 spots at the new Charlevoix Middle School.

City Manager Mike Wiesner said he hopes the offer is now satisfactory to the school board, but will not know for certain until they see the latest modifications.

"The city council is making that offer to the school board. We hope we have a meeting of the minds. We'll find out when they review it," he said.

In a May 28 meeting, the building and grounds committee, consisting of Allen Telgenhof, Dennis Halverson and Barney Way, met with Charlevoix School's Superintendent

(Editor's note: This is the second in a two part series on the school election June 9.)

By AMY SAYRE

Area residents will soon cast their votes and decide who will occupy the open spots in next year's Charlevoix school board.

School board elections will take place 7 a.m. to 8 p.m., June 9 at the Charlevoix Elementary School. Voting is open to everyone of age in the school district.

There are two open positions on the board. Current board member Bill Trubilowicz is running for the four-year position and residents Diane Kilkenny and Dennis Kusina are running for the one-year term.

Trubilowicz has served on the school board since he was appointed to an open position last November. After serving in a one-year term, he has decided to commit himself for a longer amount of time should he be elected to the four-year position.

Trubilowicz, who has raised children in the district and currently has a daughter in high school, said he enjoys being involved in the community and has been active with several school related functions like field trips, the building campaign and serving on the facilities committee.

"You can't complain if you're not helping," he said.

Trubilowicz believes one of the main challenges the district will face in upcoming years is the uncertainty of funding changes.

"We will be lucky to maintain the same pool of money," he said.

He expressed the importance of passing both the Headlee Amendment and sinking fund on

Corrections

Due to a reporting error, a May 21 article titled "Sinking fund, Headlee to be decided by voters" on page one should have said that the sinking fund was renewed six years ago. The article also should have stated Dr. John Sturock said the district cut $900,000 from its budget.

And a picture on page 21 showing a man digging in the flower beds along Bridge Street should have identified him as Robert Kelley.

Also, in a special publication included in last week's edition of the Courier about graduation, a headline for the Beaver Island graduates should have said, "McDonough, Heller, Powers top of island's class."

Boy injured in car/bike accident on May 28

A 12-year-old Charlevoix boy was injured in a car/bicycle traffic crash around 4 p.m. on Bayshore West Road in Hayes Township.

According to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office, Jeffery Nitchman was riding his bike on a path through the woods at a high rate of speed. He came through a ditch on a homemade jump at the road and ran into the side of a Dodge van driven by a Charlevoix resident.

Allied EMS transported Nitchman to Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey for multiple injuries. Robinson was uninjured.

Students flying high over Charlevoix

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

Charlevoix middle school student Patrick Russell took his first steps last Wednesday, May 28, to fulfilling his dream of becoming a pilot.

The eighth grader took to the skies in the pilot seat of a two-person plane for his own private lesson with retired flight instructor Harris Stevens.

Russell was just one of several students from the technology education course at Charlevoix Middle School who partook in the untraditional class lesson courtesy of the Young Eagles program.

Pilots from Mackinaw, Indian River and Alma took small groups of local seventh and eighth grade students up in planes for 10 minute flights. They flew over Lake Charlevoix, Round Lake and Walloon Lake and, if time permitted, some of the students even got to fly above their homes.

Russell, who hopes to be a pilot in the future, had already gone up in a plane that day, but said this was his first time flying in the pilot's position.

"It was really fun," he said.

Russell said he wants to be a pilot because he enjoys the speed and flying in the air.

The day's events were also fun for the adults as Stevens said he enjoyed the chance to instruct.

"Yeah, this is fun — if Patrick doesn't do anything dumb," he joked.

The Young Eagles, a part of the Experimental Aviation Association's (EAA) aviation foundation, was created to aid children in discovering their potential through flight. The aviation foundation, created in 1953, has over 170,000 members in all 50 states and several countries.

Technology education teacher at Charlevoix Middle School Brian Rockafellow said there are three goals of the Young Eagles' program.

This year is the one-hundredth anniversary of the Wright brothers first flight and the EAA has a national goal to get one million kids in the air. Current figures also predict there will be a pilot shortage in the future, so the organization is trying to generate flying interest now.

The EAA also hopes the flying programs will create excitement from the students about their education.

On his third flight up Paul Fullerton, a pilot with 30 years experience, took students Kyle Smith, Emily Westenbroek and Felicia Moses flying in a Piper Cherokee Six plane equipped with six seats.

The students said they really enjoyed the flight.

"It was exciting. (The ground) looked like kind of a patchwork quilt," Westenbroek said.

Rockafellow said this was the first year they had done this program and based on the reactions of the students, it will not be the last.

"They are very excited," he said.

Editor throws his weight with new hobby

Jeremy McBain

'Just a thought'

I have never wanted to lead a simple life.

To me, the simple life was always drab and boring. Life is too short to be lived that way.

I have always promised myself that I would keep things exciting in my life and try everything I possibly can. Added to this desire to do new things is my passion for history, most notably my family's Scottish ancestry.

Using those two attributes, after high school I found a man in Traverse City who taught the bagpipes. Soon, I was playing the bagpipes in bagpipe band and for two summers I toured northern Michigan to play in various parades with this band.

Now, 10 years after I took my first steps in learning and doing new things with that first bagpipe lesson, I am a bagpipe playing, newspaper editor.

But, about a year ago, I started to itch for something new and historical to do. So, I tried to learn a new musical instrument, such as the Irish drum, but that didn't work.

One day after a frustrating time on my bagpipes, I went to the gym for a good workout with the weights. As I was lifting some heavy weights over my head, it hit me — a thought, not the weight.

I remembered during many of the Scottish highland festivals I have attended as a bagpiper there are large men throwing heavy things such as telephone poles as part of a competition.

I thought, "I can do that." I have always been more of a dreamer than a realist.

So, I started to investigate just what these athletic events were and how to do them. I learned there are basically seven different events: throwing a 20 pound stone like a shot put for distance, throwing a 28 pound weight with one hand for distance, throwing a 56 pound weight with one hand for distance, throwing a stick with a 22 pound weight stuck to it for distance, tossing a 25 pound bag filled with wool or straw for height, tossing a 56 pound weight for height and the famous 17 foot caber toss — which looks like a person is throwing a telephone pole through the air. And, all of this is done with a kilt on.

For most people, the aspect of tossing this much weight would scare them off. Not me .... I seem to be too fearless or thickheaded for that. So, I signed up for an amateur contest given during the Alma Highland Festival on May 25 in Alma.

For about three months I threw tires weighed down with sandbags, a bag filled with straw, a large stone, and — most recently — a 12 foot pole to train for these games. Add this to visiting the weight room four times a week and my body always felt sore.

It all came to a head on May 25 when I competed in my first highland games.

Going onto the field to meet the other contestants I was very nervous. I had learned I was the only rookie and almost everyone I was competing with was ready to go from the amateur class to the professional class.

Charlevoix Courier editor Jeremy McBain lifts the 17 foot long, 130-plus pound caber in the Alma Highland Games May 25. (Courtesy photo)

But, my fears were unfounded. As soon as I met the other contestants I realized they were very neat people who loved the idea that I was giving it a try for the first time. In fact, they all kept giving me pointers to improve my throwing and cheered me on.

Soon I had forgotten about my nerves and was having a ball on the field, plus I wasn't doing too bad since I was keeping up with some of the other competitor's distances.

When it came to picking up the 130 pound caber, I can happily say I got it off the ground. I held it for about 10 seconds, trying to get it balanced, and had to drop it. But not many people can even get it up, much less throw it.

As for scores, it didn't really matter to me or many of the other competitors. As one said to me, he does it for fun and enjoys entertaining the crowd.

I left the field that day very sore but having done another new thing in my life and gaining a new hobby in the process — I am planning on competing again this summer. A year ago I would have never thought I would be lifting large poles for fun.

Who knows what else I will do? Perhaps lifting cars and fighting supervillians is next.

I do know it will be fun to try something new again. Now, imagine how much fun the world would be if we all tried new things.

'Behind the news

"Obtaining the priceless Dead Sea Scrolls was a real coup for us," said Steele Taylor, who is both a long time summer resident at the Chicago Club and president of the Public Museum of Grand Rapids. "We were the only museum in the United States willing to host this exhibit when Houston and Salt Lake City backed out after Sept. 11, 2001.

"You can't imagine the security we had to go through before the Israelis agreed to send us 14 of the precious scrolls that are usually housed in a windowless building in Jerusalem. Each scroll was insured for a million dollars and transported to Grand Rapids by 14 separate couriers traveling in different planes and no one knew when they would arrive in Grand Rapids."

It cost the Public Museum of Grand Rapids $14,000,00 to put on the exhibit that was scheduled from Feb. 12 to June 1. The Museum Foundation borrowed this sum against anticipated gate receipts, about 300,000 people from all over the United States attended the exhibit, including a busload of visitors sponsored by the Crooked Tree Arts Center.

Those who signed up from Charlevoix were Cynthia Beyers, Joyce Herbert, Cynthia Postmus, Nancy Porter and Beth Strawbridge.

They said, "We wouldn't have missed this once in a lifetime opportunity for anything!"

It was pure luck that in 1947 the Dead Sea Scrolls were discovered by a Bedouin lad. While he was looking for his lost goat, he threw a rock into a cave and heard a jar break. He reported his find to the authorities and subsequently additional scrolls were located in five more caves. The Israelis had carefully hidden the scrolls from the early Romans who moved into the area during the first century AD. The ancient Hebrew manuscripts were written on sheepskin and wrapped in cloth. In order to preserve the scrolls, many of which are in small fragments, the museum had to build a special case for each of the 14 scrolls and the temperature had to be checked for humidity 5 times a day.

The museum's executive director, Tim Chester, has a staff of 48 employees. There are three floors of exhibit space and on the fourth floor there is a massive workshop to restore and repair objects d'art. The museum was founded in 1854 and is the second oldest museum in the United States to be certified by the American Museum Association.

Since Grand Rapids is considered to be the "Furniture Capital of the World," the museum naturally features a fine collection of furniture as well as a wild life habitat exhibit, a planetarium, two mummies, a Native American Anishnaabek exhibit and a very popular, restored and functioning carousel.

Steele Taylor invites us to visit this outstanding Michigan historical museum and bring our children to see the exhibits. Current schedules and information may be found by clicking on the Internet, Public Museum of Grand Rapids.

Proposal insults second home owner

Editor:

In the May 28, 2003 article regarding the sinking fund and "The opportunity of the school board to ask taxpayers for millage increase for the maintenance of school," you hit a raw nerve if I understand correctly. My husband and I have owned a home in Charlevoix Township for more than 29 years. For those 29 years we have paid our taxes willingly for the privilege of living here approximately half of each year; our six children have never gone to the schools, so our taxes have funded those who do go to the Charlevoix schools. Yet here you are saying sock it to the non-homestead residents and lets raise their taxes. This is one more way of making people feel like second-class citizens when they contribute to the city, township, prosperity of the community, schools, festivals and fund-raisers and then ask for very little in return for our contributions.

Reneé Durbin

Proposals need yes vote

Editor:

The voters of the Charlevoix Public School System are again faced with another important election request. In addition to the annual school board elections, the school system is asking the voters to approve two millage requests.

The first request (I am not sure which order they will appear on the ballot) is a Headlee Amendment Override request. The Headlee Override is probably one of the most convoluted and difficult statutes ever enacted by legislature.

Very simply, all taxpayers pay 6 mils on their homestead properties, that is the properties in which they live. The school district is allowed to levy an additional 18 mills on non-homestead properties, such as second homes and commercial properties. However, when the property values increase faster than the rate of inflation, the Headlee Amendment limits the school's ability to collect this extra 18

See LETTERS, page 6

Important Information Regarding the June 9 Charlevoix School District Election

FACT:

Proposal 1 will NOT increase the property taxes on your home.

DETAILS:

In 1998, voters approved a levy of 18 mills on non-homestead properties for school operating costs. However, when the State Equalized Value (SEV) of the property increases faster than the rate of inflation, the Headlee Amendment limits the collection rate on these properties to the rate of inflation. Therefore, the current tax collection rate would be 17.77 mills instead of the full 18 mills.

The purpose of Proposal 1 is to ask voters to approve a "rollback" of the Headlee Amendment so that the district may recover the lost .23 mill in revenue.

The passage of Proposal 1 will mean an additional $85,000 in general operating funds for our school system for the 2003-2004 school year.

Proposal 1 has no effect on the property taxes of primary residences. The .23 mill rollback will only affect commercial property, second homes, and vacant land. Even on these properties, this represents an increase of less than 1.5% in the tax burden, or less than $30 per $100,000 of SEV.

FACT:

Proposal 2 will NOT increase the property taxes on your home; in fact, it will lower the sinking fund collection rate from its present levy of 1 mill to 0.9 mill.

DETAILS:

A sinking fund is a school fund which may be used only for facility repairs and improvements; it may not be used for salaries or other school operating costs.

Proposal 2 is a request to renew the sinking fund established in 1997 for six more years but at a collection rate that is 0.1 mill lower than its present rate. Since 1997, this fund has been responsible for providing $2.7 million in repairs on our school facilities. Specific repairs have included new roof installation, asbestos abatement, electrical improvements, heating and ventilation overhauls, and fire suppression system installation in one or more buildings.

The passage of Proposal 2 will allow the school district to continue to upgrade our facilities over the next six years with projects such as: repairs to the bus garage facility; replacement of building soffits, improvements in storm water drainage, and re-carpeting the hallways at the elementary school; replacement of the gym floor at the middle school (old high school); and completion of the athletic facilities at the new high school. None of these projects was financed by the 1999 Bond Proposal.

FACT:

The tax collection rate on the 1999 building/renovation project is being lowered by 0.5 mill; therefore, the total tax rate will be lowered by 0.6 mill for homestead properties and 0.3 mill for non-homestead properties even if Proposals 1 & 2 are approved.

A YES vote on Proposals 1 & 2 protects the quality of education in Charlevoix.

You may vote on June 9 from 7:00 a.m. until 8:00 p.m. at Charlevoix Elementary School, 13515 Division Street. Absentee ballots available from Charlevoix Public Schools central office, 208 Clinton Street. Absentee votes must be in by June 7. Call 547-3200 for ballot information.

mils to an amount equal to the increase in the cost of living.

As we all know, property values in the Charlevoix area are increasing at a very rapid rate. While this is a good thing in many ways (it is certainly better than having property values fall) it results in a detriment to our school system. Specifically, the schools in Charlevoix are now allowed to collect only 17.7703 mils, instead of 18 mills, on non-homestead properties (commercial, some vacant land and second homes.) The school district is asking the voters to allow it to collect the full 18 mils allowed by Proposal A. Therefore, the Proposal of the June ballot will ask you to approve a Headlee override of .2277 mils for one year.

It is important to note that this Proposal will have absolutely no effect on the property taxes which are levied on your homes. What is really important, is that the proposal will provide the school with approximately $85,000 in operating funds. This money can be used for any number of things, including hiring teachers, keeping the beautiful new library well stocked, helping to provide equipment for the trades classes or for fulfilling other needs which the school would otherwise be unable to fund.

The second request is to renew and lower the millage for the sinking fund. Presently, the school collects 1 mill for its sinking fund. The school district is now requesting that this amount be renewed, for six years, at the reduced amount of .9 mils per year. Keeping the sinking fund in place is also very important for our school system. This money is used to make needed repairs and improvement to the school facilities. If you have been in any of our schools lately, particularly the new high school or the new addition to the elementary school, you know how awesome our school system has become. It would be a tragedy to let those buildings fall into disrepair or to prevent the school from making improvements or additions to those facilities because of a lack of funding.

Remember to vote on June 9th. Vote yes on both of the millage requests. Thank you.

Richard E. Joseph

Take care of schools

Editor:

During the spring season, I am in awe of how Charlevoix takes care of and pride in its own. A few weeks ago, our community gave tens of thousands of dollars to its graduating senior class to help them take the next step. Just last week, hundreds of volunteers planted petunias along US-31 to beautify the city and usher in the start of our bustling summer season. This is Charlevoix.

In a few short weeks, Charlevoix will again have a chance to take care of its own during the June 9 school election. By voting yes on Proposals I and II, our school community will benefit by the renewal of this funding, especially during a time when state revenue dollars are in question.

Let's maintain that Charlevoix spirit by again taking care of our kids.

Candidates urge yes vote

Editor:

As candidates for the two trustee positions on the Charlevoix Schools Board of Education, we would like to urge all registered voters to vote in the school election on June 9.

More importantly, we would urge all voters to vote "yes" on the two millage proposals on the ballot.

Proposal 1 provides about $85,000 in operating funds to the schools by increasing the tax rate on commercial property, second homes and vacant land by a maximum of 0.3 mills. This increase restores the tax rate on these properties to the state allowed rate of 18 mills.

Proposal 2 provides for a renewal of the school district's "sinking fund" at 0.9 mills for six years, a reduction from the current tax rate of 1 mill. This money can only be used to make repairs or improvements on the district's buildings and grounds. The taxes collected in the past have made improvements to extend the life of the existing school buildings. There is more work to do at all three schools as well as necessary improvements at the bus garage and the administrative building. Should the proposal fail, critical projects will be funded with operating funds but most projects will be put on hold.

The good news is that beginning this summer the tax levy for the 1999 building bond is being reduced by 0.5 mills. So you can vote "yes" on both of these proposals and give the school district an increase in funding while enjoying an overall tax reduction of up to 0.6 mills.

Educational revenues out of Lansing are frozen and future reductions are anticipated. The school board has reduced the operating budget for next year by over $900,000 to prepare the district for these reductions. But, as of now, no program cuts have been made. It is very important that both proposals are approved to give the district the operating funds necessary to maintain the exceptional educational programs that we have in Charlevoix.

Please join us in voting "yes" for Proposal 1 and 2 on June 9.

Thank you fire department

Editor:

Thanks to the City of Charlevoix Fire Department and 911, I still have my home. Within minutes of calling 911, the men and fire trucks were there. Even though there was damage, it was minimal because of the caring men. If they had arrived 10 minutes later, I wouldn't have anything left. I can't thank you enough and will never forget all you did for me.

Blood drive a success

Editor:

I am truly delighted to announce the total success of the American Red Cross blood drive on May 15 in Charlevoix.

I say "total" because of the combined efforts of literally hundreds of faithful and dependable volunteers, donors, Red Cross staff, Community Reformed Church staff, Lions Club members and others! It's an honor to work with all of them!

The Red Cross collected 122 productive pints. Each pint was manufactured into as many as four live-saving blood products, potentially affecting over 400 lives!

Several donors received new gallon pins on May 15. They include Elaine Bronson, 3 gallons; Joan Buday, 3 gallons; Dr. Roger Postmus, 1 gallon; George Wahl, 1 gallon; Nancy Walter, 4 gallons. Many more will earn new gallon pins after their next donation. Congratulations on your accomplishment!

I want to thank John Alberts for his suggestion to provide non-fat frozen yogurt as well as ice cream in the canteen. I'm sure many will look forward to having the choice at future blood drives. Thank you, Mr. Alberts!

The next community blood drive for the American Red Cross in Charlevoix is July 24 at the Community Reformed Church from noon until 5:45 p.m. I will look forward to seeing you there.

Michael Jason Westenbrook, of Charlevoix County, was one of 12 students selected to be part of a state traveling exhibit that was part of an inaugural Michigan Week Youth Photo Contest. Youth, aged 9 to 19, from Michigan's 83 counties were asked to photograph a favorite historical site within the state. Westenbrook chose to photograph Beaver Head Lighthouse.

Hole-in-one

Chuck Pop, of Charlevoix, scored a hole-in-one at the Charlevoix Golf Course on May 8. His ace was carded on the 193 yard, Par 3, seventh hole, using a four iron.

Fulbright award

Elizabeth Campbell, 27, former Charlevoix resident and daughter of John and Mary Lee Campbell of Charlevoix, recently received a Fulbright award for the academic year 2003-2004. Her $20,000 scholarship was granted for the purpose of conducting doctoral research on refugees and internally displaced people in Kenya, East Africa. Campbell was among a total of 105 scholars selected to receive awards for study in 27 African countries.

Currently Campbell is a fourth year doctorate candidate in the Department of Sociology at the State University of New York in Bingham.

Rothenberger honored

The Michigan State Police Board of Awards recently announced that Trooper Carl H. Rothenberger, formerly of Charlevoix, was awarded the Michigan State Police Meritorious Service Award. He is the son of Chub and D'Ann Rothenberger of Charlevoix. He currently lives in Fruitport.

Junior Achievement thanks donors

The Charlevoix Junior Achievement Board has thanked all of its financial contributors toward Junior Achievement in Charlevoix schools for the 2002-2003 school year. The organization also wants to recognize those who sponsored an entire seventh grade "International Marketplace" class: Glen's Market's Manager Harold Miller; DCL, Inc. President Werner Egger and Charlevoix Citizens Bank President John Kurtz.

Merrill attends conference

Charlevoix dentist Dr. John Merrill attended the American Academy of Cosmetic Dentistry's Nineteenth Annual Scientific Session on Orlando, Fla from April 29 to May 4. Merrill attended educational forums in a wide range of topics — from hands-on workshops focusing on specific clinical procedures to unique assembly lectures promoting general life learning and self-improvement.

Master's degree

Amy Jo Bur, of Charlevoix, received a master of divinity degree from Candler School of Theology, Emory University during commencement activities on Monday, May 12. Bur earned her undergraduate degree from Eastern Michigan University and is a member of the Southwest Texas Conference of the United Methodist Church.

Nominations due soon for annual arts center award

Eddi Award nominations are due Wednesday, July 23, 2003 at the Crooked Tree Arts Center.

In recognition of eddi Wrigley-Offield's personal and positive impact on the quality of life afforded to the people of Emmet and Charlevoix Counties, the Crooked Tree Arts Center is hosting the third annual eddi Awards Banquet.

The eddi Awards ceremony will take place at 7 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 19; 2003 at the Bay View Inn.

Visual artists, arts educators, performing artists, service organizations, non-profit organizations, patrons of the arts at any level, youth groups, garden clubs, antique clubs and or any individual or organization that has had an impact on the arts and culture of northern Michigan can be nominated. For a list of previous winners, visit www.crookedtree.org.

The process by which award recipients are nominated and selected has been carefully constructed to include nominees from all over the two-county area.

Nominees are not required to have an affiliation with any particular organization. A panel of judges representing a wide array of arts and cultural constituencies within Emmet and Charlevoix Counties will determine the award recipients. The eight specific awards descriptions are as follows:

- Visual Artist Award — Given to an artist who has consistently made an impact using his or her artistic discipline for the benefit of the citizens of Charlevoix and Emmet counties.
- Performing Artist Award — Given to an artist who has consistently made an impact in the areas of theater, music or dance for the benefit of the citizens of Charlevoix and Emmet counties.
- Arts and Cultural Organization Award — Given to an organization for outstanding contributions to arts and culture for the benefit of the citizens of Charlevoix and Emmet counties.
- Arts in Education Award — Given to an institution or an individual who has provided extraordinary leadership and creativity in advancing arts and cultural education in Charlevoix and Emmet counties.
- Arts and Cultural Leadership Award — Given to a volunteer member of a board of directors of an arts and/or cultural organization who has demonstrated leadership in advancing and supporting arts and culture in Charlevoix and Emmet counties.
- Individual Patron Award — given to a patron who is an exemplary advocate for the arts and culture in Charlevoix and Emmet counties.
- Benefactor Award — Given to a business, foundation or organization in Charlevoix and Emmet counties that has given extraordinary support to artists or cultural organizations in the two-county region.
- Lifetime Achievement Award — Given to the individual who has been prominent in the arts and culture of Charlevoix and Emmet counties throughout his or her lifetime.

Corporate sponsorship is available and individual ticket prices are $85 each. Champagne and hors d'oeuvres will begin the evening, followed by dinner and dessert.

Eight awards will be presented during a dessert program.

Nomination forms are available at the Crooked Tree Arts Center, on-line www.crookedtree.org or at all area chamber of commerce offices and area libraries. For more information or to reserve a ticket, please call the Crooked Tree Arts Center at (231) 347-4337.

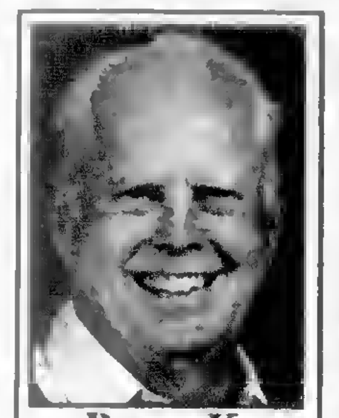
Bruce K. Bartlett: Sept. 13, 1920 - May 5, 2003

Bruce K. Bartlett, 82, of Charlevoix, passed away at the home of his daughter Debra Ann Bartlett in Sarasota, Fla. on May 5, 2003.



Bruce K. Bartlett

A memorial service was given at the Community Church of God in Charlevoix, where he was a member, on May 10.

Bruce was born in East Jordan on Sept. 13, 1920 the son of Ira D. and Grace (Kowalske) Bartlett. He grew up in East Jordan helping his father supply honey to the National Biscuit Company.

He attended East Jordan Schools and finished high school in 1940. He played basketball and tennis, in which he went to state finals twice. He loved tennis, fishing and golf.

From there, he went to Battle Creek and worked at United Steel and Wire Company. He enjoyed singing with the company band.

Bruce enlisted with the U.S. Air Force in 1942 and was stationed the remainder of his three-and-a-half years at the Midland Texas Bombardier Training School. He had his overseas orders four times, but was declared essential on the base.

He had a disability injury and received an honorable discharge as a disabled American veteran in 1945.

On May 9, 1943 he married Leona Strathers in Charlevoix. After their tour of duty, they lived for four years in Ontario, Calif. and then returned to Charlevoix to make their home.

Bruce worked floor covering and also repaired and replaced motors in very large trucks in California. In returning home, he worked for Vaughan Floor Covering before starting his own business called Bartlett's Floor Covering. He took his son in the business with him years ago.

Bruce was also a president of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce in 1970.

Survivors include his wife of 60 years, Leona, one son, Bruce L., and his wife, Sue, and their son, Nathan Christopher, all of Charlevoix; two daughters, Diana L. Anderson and her son, Michael D., all of Sarasota, Fla.; many uncles, aunts, nieces and nephews; and one sister, Virgina Grace, of Carson City, Nev.

He was preceded in death by one daughter, Dawn Marie Bartlett; his parents, Ira and Grace Bartlett; one brother, Norm; and two sisters, Lucille Pratt of California and Bernice of East Jordan.

He lived life to its fullest, loved everyone and will be truly missed.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Community Church of God on Hurlbut Street, Charlevoix Area Hospital or a charity of your choice.

George H. Lochner: Aug. 29, 1935 - May 31, 2003

George H. Lochner, 67, of Charlevoix, died Saturday, May 31, 2003, at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

A Mass of the Resurrection will be at 11 a.m., today, Wednesday, June 4, at Saint Mary's Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. Thomas Neis will officiate and burial will be in Saint Mary's Cemetery, Charlevoix.

George was born Aug. 29, 1935, in Buffalo, New York, the son of George and Marian (Moslow) Lochner. On June 1, 1957, he married the former Sue Ann Fiele Beaudoin in Charlevoix.

He retired from the U.S. Coast Guard as Senior Chief after 25 years. He then returned to Charlevoix where he worked as the Ironton Ferry Operator during its operational season and then as a county snowplow driver in the winter months.

George was a member of Saint Mary's Church, the Knights of Columbus Pierre de Charlevoix Council 7172, and the American Legion Leslie T. Shapton Post 226.

He is survived by his wife, Sue A. Lochner of Charlevoix; daughters, Lisa (Barry) Potter of Charlevoix and Laura (Lewis) Archer of Boyne City; grandchildren, Tabatha Simpson, Nicholaus, Teresa, and Tamara Potter, Maria Sage, Christina, Sarah and Shala Archer; five great-grandchildren; brother Richard (Betty) Lochner of Alden, N.Y.

Memorial contributions may be made to Saint Mary's Church.

Hannah Corrigan: April 22, 1915 - May 25, 2003

Hannah Corrigan, 88, of Charlevoix, passed away on May 25, 2003.

She was born in Glasgow, Scotland on April 22, 1915.

She is survived by her husband, John, her granddaughter, Anne Marie Corrigan of East Lansing, her brother-in-law Clem Olach, several nieces and nephews and many friends.

She is preceded in death by her son, James Corrigan, her sisters, May, Betty and Patricia, and her brothers, Hugh, Dick and James.

Donations may be made to St. Mary's Catholic Church Relief Fund in Charlevoix.

A graveside memorial will be held at a later date.

Agency offers savings program

Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency (NMHSA) is accepting applications for its matched savings program in Emmet, Charlevoix, and Antrim counties.

The program, called "Michigan Saves," offers people the opportunity to save for the purchase of a first-time home, a business or post-secondary education/vocational training. Each dollar the participant saves is matched at a 3:1 ratio for home ownership and 2:1 for business and education. The maximum amount that can be matched is $1,000.

Michigan Saves is an Individual Development Account (IDA) program. IDAs are a new concept and offer the matched savings as part of a financial literacy training program. The program is very structured, according to Karen Emerson, program coordinator.

"Participants must attend the minimum of 10 hours of financial literacy training and an additional 4-6 hours of training on the specific asset they are purchasing before receiving the matched funds," she said. "Each account holder will make a commitment to attend these classes and individual budget counseling, as well as make monthly deposits into a savings account to reach the desired goal. These requirements must be fulfilled before he or she will receive the match funds."

To be eligible, an applicant must be able to receive Temporary Assistance to Needy Families (TANF), and his or her income must be within 200 percent of poverty. To be TANF-eligible, a person must have dependent children living in the home or be pregnant. Participants must have a source of earned income.

When participants complete the application process and are accepted into the program, they must select their asset. A savings plan is then developed, and the participant signs a program agreement. Savings must come from earned income and be deposited into a special savings account on a monthly basis. Missing deposits can cause dismissal from the program and forfeiture of match funds.

Donations being accepted for pool's annual auction

Donations are being accepted for the annual Charlevoix Area Community Pool Auction.

The annual auction will begin at 6 p.m., on Sunday, Aug. 10 at Mahogany's at the Charlevoix Country Club. The $50 entrance fee includes dinner.

Starting this year, the items available for bidding will be displayed the day before the event. Sue Herzog, auction coordinator, said the items will be displayed at 4 p.m., Aug. 9 at the Charlevoix Country Club.

Also new this year will be the chance to bid on auction items on the pool's web site at www.charpool.org.

Bidding through this service starts June 10.

So far a week in Hawaii, gourmet dinners, golf outings, cruises on yachts, private showings at Charlevoix Cinema III and valuable antiques have been donated.

Additionally, two new Segways, valued at $5,000 each have been donated. Segways are a "human transport" vehicle that you stand up on.

The vehicle can self-balance through a series of gyroscopes, tilt sensors, high-speed microprocessors and electric motors.

The Charlevoix Area Community Pool Auction is a fund-raiser for pool operating expenses.

Approximately $70,000 has been raised each year for the last few years.

"The generous donations of auction items by area businesses and individuals and the public's participation keep the pool an asset for the community," John Danly, Charlevoix Area Community Pool President, said.

Individuals and businesses can become sponsors of the pool auction.

Please contact Herzog at 547-4077 or the pool at 547-0982 to make a donation or to give an item for the auction.

Counterfeit money found

The Charlevoix Country Sheriff's Office is investigating the passing of counterfeit money in the area.

Deputies responded to Walloon Lake Village Friday evening where a male subject had tried passing a counterfeit $20 bill at a local store.

Deputies subsequently arrested the 24-year-old man and 20-year-old woman, both of Oakland County for possession of marijuana. Both suspects admitted that they had spent other counterfeit money in West Branch, Boyne City and Petoskey over the last several days.

Deputies have recovered counterfeit $20 and $10 bills. The suspects were lodged in the Charlevoix County Jail and posted bond.

They will appear in 90th District Court at a later date.

The counterfeit money investigation is expected to be referred to the U.S. Secret Service for additional follow-up. If anyone has any further information they are asked to contact D/Sgt Don Sproul at the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office at 547-4461.

Road work on schedule

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Road work on the 9 mile stretch of US-31 and Petoskey Avenue north of Charlevoix to Petoskey is on schedule according to the Michigan Department of Transportation.

Construction is expected to be complete by mid-July, meaning motorists will still have to contend with traffic backups for a bit longer.

Bob Felt, spokesperson for the department said concrete work on Petoskey Avenue in the city of Charlevoix will begin this week. Due to the cure time needed for cement, as opposed to asphalt, this means construction will begin early in the morning on this road next week and last into the early evening.

Plus, the sections of the road will be shut down for longer periods of time. Accommodations made for petunia watering are still being honored.

As for the work on US-31 outside of the city, motorists may have noticed it has been a little bumpy and looks like patches have been placed in the asphalt every few yards. Felt said this is only part of the process in resurfacing a road to create a base.

Work crews will be coming back over those patches to smooth it out.

Woods' class does well in electric car contest

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix High School students in Joe Woods' robotics class were awarded two first place trophies and a third place for three electric cars they built over the semester.

In January, the students started constructing the electric cars for the Sixth Annual Electric Car Race on May 17 at the Sanilac Career Center in Peck. Those three cars earned the students a first place in vehicle construction, a first place in endurance and a third place in endurance in the competition.

"I think they did a fine job," Woods said. "The purpose wasn't so much as winning as to completing the project and the learning process involved."

In the Electric Car Race, student teams are required to compete in five different competitions with an electric car designed and built by them. Those competitions are a drag race, obstacle course, weight sled pull endurance race and a car show.

In the drag race, the vehicles were timed down a 500 foot strip.

The obstacle course utilized winding turns, speed bumps, sharp turns, a sand trap and a bridge, in addition to a 90-degree turn. The race is also timed and each car was given two chances to complete the course.

In the weight sled pull, the vehicle had to pull the sled 30 feet.

And in the endurance race, vehicles were judged on which one could do the most laps in one hour.

City offices move into old post office

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

The old post office is in business again, but this time with new residents — Charlevoix City Hall employees.

City Hall reopened for business last Tuesday, May 27, in its temporary location at 109 Mason Street, or as its locally known, the old post office.

"The three day weekend was used to its full advantage," Linda Weller, administrative assistant to the City Manager, said.

Crews took larger office equipment, like computers, over May 23 and opened with most everything in place four days later.

"It seemed like organized chaos," Project Manager Jim Shull said.

The building is not completely done yet, but only small projects like installing door frames are left. For the most part, the hardest part has been all the packing, unpacking and organizing associated with moving everything next door, Shull said.

While the move has caused some chaos, there are some benefits the new location provides. All the staff is on one floor instead of two and, even though the old post office is smaller in size, it is laid out more efficiently, making it seemingly bigger.

Despite the changes, Charlevoix City Hall would like to note some things remain the same.

The police and fire departments are still in the old building and can be reached through the State Street entrance near the police and fire garage doors. The utility boxes where people can make city payment drop-offs are located in the parking lot on the south side of Mason Street by the mailboxes.

Shull said the project has been pretty easy so far.

"We're right on schedule," he said.

> "Staff has been marvelous. The people of Charlevoix have been very understanding."
> Linda Weller, > administrative assistant to the City Manager

And if plans continue to move on schedule, the city should be able to move into the newly renovated building in about seven months.

The new building changes include moving city council chambers to the second floor and renovating current chambers for the city administrative staff, utility billing, accounts payable and the city clerk.

An elevator will be added to allow handicapped access to the second floor and the former post office will be renovated including the addition of restrooms, partitions and upgraded electrical.

In the meantime, Weller said everyone is taking the move in stride.

"Staff has been marvelous. The people of Charlevoix have been very understanding," she said.

Charlevoix Middle School accredited

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

Charlevoix's school district can now claim full accreditation after Charlevoix Middle School received the honor by the North Central Association at its April meeting in Chicago.

With the elementary and high school both already accredited, the middle school's first-time accreditation puts the district closer to its goal of providing quality education for its students.

Charlevoix Superintendent Dr. John Sturock said the school looks at accreditation as a way to measure its goals for student success.

"It's just a review and a way that we look at ourselves to make sure we're providing the best education to the students of Charlevoix," Sturock said.

Sturock said when the district recently received a letter stating they were accredited it assured the district and school were working toward achieving their goals for student progress.

The district uses student achievements and outside peer groups to set improvement goals for the school. When the school reviewed their student data, it decided to work on three goal areas — reading, writing and math.

"When we did our needs assessment and profiled our district, those were the areas that our data lead us to for improvement," Suzanne Klinger, district steering committee chair said.

Sturock said accreditation was something the district decided they wanted and pursued it.

"You apply to become a part of the process, then you have to meet specific criteria. They have rigorous standards they apply in looking at us," Sturock said.

An observation team arrived May 7 and reviewed the school for a little over a day, looking at plans and profiling the school.

The review team looked at school elements such as classroom size and teacher quality to make sure the school was working toward achieving the goals they had set.

Sturock said the school's plan for improvement is sound because everything they are striving for is based on data.

Several standardized tests are used to gauge the proficiency and progress of students in the decided areas of improvement. The school district uses MEAP scores, the Degrees of Reading Power reading comprehension test, the Michigan Literacy Proficiency Profile and different ACT tests as assessment tools to measure student achievement.

The accreditation process can take anywhere from three to five years. Sturock said the school is in its second year of a five year process.

"At the end of five years, we start the process all over again. We are continually working on improvement," he said.

> "It's just a review and a way that we look at ourselves to make sure we're providing the best education to the students of Charlevoix."

HEALTH

Doctor reveals miraculous cure-all for children

Rod Tinney, M.D.

'Your health'

As a parent do you want to do something really good and healthy for your child? Do you want to improve your child's reading and I.Q.? Do you want to help your child to be kinder and more empathetic? Do you want to have a healthier child with a chance of fewer allergies? Would you like to ease your child's pain or loneliness? Are you looking for a way to pull your child away from the television? Do you want your child to experience unconditional love?

If you answered yes to any of the above questions then you need to get your child a pet.

More and more benefits to growing up with pets are being realized by the scientific community and many of the previous health concerns regarding pets are being debunked. Physical contact with dogs and cats has been shown to lower blood pressure, strengthen the immune system, actually improve children's I.Q. scores, improve mental health and aid in the treatment of depression.

Some recent studies have shown that children who grew up with pets have a lower incidence of allergies. In the studies children exposed to two or more dogs and cats were half as likely to develop allergies and had fewer positive skin tests not only to animal dander but to other allergens such as dust mites and grasses. There is also a positive dose response, the more pets the greater the effect. This probably explains why those farm kids are always so healthy.

While there is an ever-increasing list of health benefits to pet ownership, like all prescriptions there are risks and adverse events. Fortunately some common sense and proper care will avoid most risks associated with pets and children.

Never leave small children and pets alone unsupervised which could lead to provoked bites and scratches. Never allow children to try and play with the pet when the pet is being fed. Certain breeds and temperaments may not be suited for young children, get a veterinarian's opinion on appropriate breeds. Pets can transmit some disease so keep your pet healthy by taking him or her to the vet and following their recommendations on prevention and treatment of worms and parasites and getting all of the needed vaccinations. Clean up feces in the yard, have children wear shoes when playing in the yard and always have them wash their hands after they are done playing with the pet especially before eating. If your pet appears ill get prompt medical treatment.

Use your pet to help teach about love and responsibility. Avoid hitting or scolding your pet, pets are no different than children; they too learn best by positive reinforcement and children will learn by your example.

To the degree that it is developmentally appropriate, your children should assist in the care of the pet(s). The children should know the importance of making sure the pet has appropriate food and water and, no matter what else they have to do, caring for the pet is a priority.

Take the pet on outings and walks; it will help keep the pet, you, and your children, healthier. Keep your pet(s) indoors; tying a dog up outside all the time is not only cruel, but a potential danger to children especially if on a ground stake. If your child is ill keep his or her pet close by; it can only hasten their recovery. If your child is hospitalized arrange with the staff to have the pet visit. Praise the child's positive behavior with the pet and point out how much the pet loves him or her; it is a great self-esteem booster. If you have children, have pets; your children will only be healthier, smarter and know more about the power of love.

How to get your event news into the Charlevoix Courier

If you have a news item you think would be perfect for the Charlevoix Courier, feel free to call 547-6558, e-mail charlevoixcourier@charlevoix-courier.com or visit the Courier office located at 112 Mason Street in downtown Charlevoix.

News items include events sponsored by non-profit organizations. Please inform us of your event at least two weeks in advance.

Our coverage area is the city of Charlevoix and its immediately surrounding areas, including Beaver Island.

Because of space limitations in the newspaper, we generally try to avoid publishing "check-handing" pictures or "ribbon-cutting" pictures. However, we will work with your organization to get a picture that reflects the event and is visually interesting to our readers.

We cannot attend every event we are notified of due to time constraints on the staff. If you have a picture of your event, we will gladly consider it for publication. But, please, contact us before your event.

It should be noted, each story and picture is dealt with on its individual merits. Any policies outlined above may be suspended by the editor or general manager of the Charlevoix Courier if necessary.

Public input sought on two city ordinances

By AMY SAYRE
Staff Writer

The city planning commission will meet June 9 for a public meeting in hopes that residents will share their input about recreational vehicle and elderly housing rezoning issues.

The commission will meet at 6 p.m., June 9 in the Coast Guard conference room located below Bridge Park, 109 Bridge Park Drive, to discuss the possibility of adding a stipulation in the zoning ordinance to include elderly housing complexes and rewording the current ordinance in regard to parking recreational vehicles on private property.

"They have been hrought up at last months planning commission meeting and we set a direction for Gerry Harsch to draw up some new laws," said Planning Commission President Dennis Kusina.

City Planner Gerry Harsch will present plans at the commission meeting for review at the hearing and hopefully submit a recommendation to the city council based on the public's input.

"We would like anybody with interest in these to show up," Harsch said.

This will be the third time the planning commission has met to discuss wording in a zoning ordinance that would allow an assisted living complex to be built in Charlevoix. There are no current provisions for independent or assisted living.

Kusina said they would like to create the wording before it is necessary.

"There is nothing in the zoning ordinance right now about where assisted living will be," Kusina said.

An elderly housing unit could fall under one of three residential zoning categories: R-1 single family residential area, R-2 medium density single family residential and R-4 multiple family residential.

The commission is looking for input from residents and commission members as to why an assisted living complex should or should not be allowed in Charlevoix and, if so, which zoning would best suit an assisted living complex.

Although Harsch said there are projects on the horizon, the ordinance is not being reworded with any specific project in mind.

The rezoning ordinance for recreational vehicle parking is looking specifically at disallowing parking vehicles, such as travel trailers and boats, in the front yard of a resident's private property. Harsch said all vehicles fall under either an automotive personal vehicle or a recreational vehicle.

"They want public input about where these two types of vehicles should be and what kind of limitations there are," Harsch said.

The amendment will not include an ordinance change disallowing parking recreational vehicles on side and rear yards.

There was a stipulation in the ordinance years ago that prohibited residents from parking recreational vehicles on the front yard of their property, but it was removed because some residents felt Charlevoix was a recreational community and the ordinance was too restrictive.

Lately there has been suggestion from the community to bring back wording that would disallow parking these vehicles on the front yard of a resident's private property.

After hearing public comment about the elderly housing complexes and reereational vehicles rezoning, the planning commission will make recommendations to city council who will then discuss and vote on the issues.

Little Traverse Wheelway to have first trail-ride

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

Two area organizations are encouraging area bicyclists to take part in a trail ride June 7 on the Little Traverse Wheelway for National Trail Day.

National Trail Day is traditionally the first Saturday in June and this will be the first formal trail ride on the Little Traverse Wheelway. This is the first year the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau and the Top of Michigan Trails Council have jointly organized the ride and they hope several area bikers will take part.

"Anybody can go. We'd like to make it a family event," said Jerry Corley, Vice President of the Top of Michigan Trails Council.

The entire trail ride, 26 miles, begins at the Charlevoix Township Hall on the corner of Waller and Old Orchard street and ends at East Park in Bay Harhor, but Corley said people do not have to ride the entire length. Riders ean turn around anytime they want.

The ride begins anytime from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. beeause Corley said the trail is too narrow for everyone to start at the same time.

"The Wheelway is 10 feet wide. It's too narrow to conduct a race on," he said.

Even though the original deadline has passed, riders can still register for the event at the price of $15 for a single rider or $35 per family.

Payments can be made the day of the ride or by filling out a registration form ahead of time at the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, Bridge Street Bookshop, Petoskey Chamber of Commerce and hoth Ace Hardware locations in Charlevoix.

Riders will receive T-shirts and enter a drawing to win one of 25 hicyele-related prizes donated by Ace Cycle and Sports.

Snaeks will be provided as well at the beginning of the trail by the American Hiking Society and for those who make it to Bay Shore, water will be provided.

In case Michigan weather rears its ugly head that day, Corley said they still encourage people to show up.

"If it rains, we'll give out the T-shirts and have drawings for the prizes and encourage people to ride at a hetter time," he said.

Marquette mayor to try being Charlevoix mayor

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

Marquette's mayor Jerry Irby, city manager Gerald Peterson and other eity offieials will experience a taste of Charlevoix Friday when they visit for Mayor Exchange Day.

The expected four to five groups from Marquette will spend from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., Friday touring Charlevoix and diseussing with city offieials similar problems and issues each community faces.

Marquette eity offieials will return the favor and invite memhers of Charlevoix city government to their eity in two weeks for tours and diseussions on their turf.

Generally the swapping cities are paired together because they are alike. While Marquette is a larger eity, it faces many of the same coastal community related issues Charlevoix does, said Linda Weller, administrative assistant to the City Manager.

Last year Charlevoix swapped cities with Mackinaw City and had many eommon issues to diseuss such as tourism and Mackinaw City's wind turbines, similar to those discussed in Eveline Township.

Some of Fridays seheduled events are as follows: Presentations of eity projeets, goals and eommunity comparisons at 9:30 a.m.; water treatment plant tour at 10:50 a.m.; sewer plant tour at 2:30 p.m.; city hall tour and general downtown walking tour from 2:30 to 4 p.m. and walking and driving tours of the area throughout the day.

Harsha House has many new exhibits

The Charlevoix Historical Society has several new summer exhibits open to the public at its Harsha House Museum at 103 State Street in Charlevoix.

An Antique Kitchen has been assembled in a small room off the dining parlor. With artifacts from 1860-1945. The kitchen includes an ice safe, a Hoosier cabinet which is original to Harsha House, a washing machine once owned by the Kibbe family, a Bentwood youth chair which belonged to the Dawson family and a chair from Medad Thompson, one of Charlevoix's original settlers.

Many donations and loans from the community have filled the room with cooking utensils, pots and pans and even old Maxbauer Dairy milk cartons.

Photos and stories from the late Fran Martin fill the west exhibit hall. Perhaps the biggest booster of Charlevoix and its sports teams ever, wheelchair-bound Miss Martin wrote for the Grand Rapids Herald in the 1940s and for the Charlevoix Courier in the 1950s and 1960s.

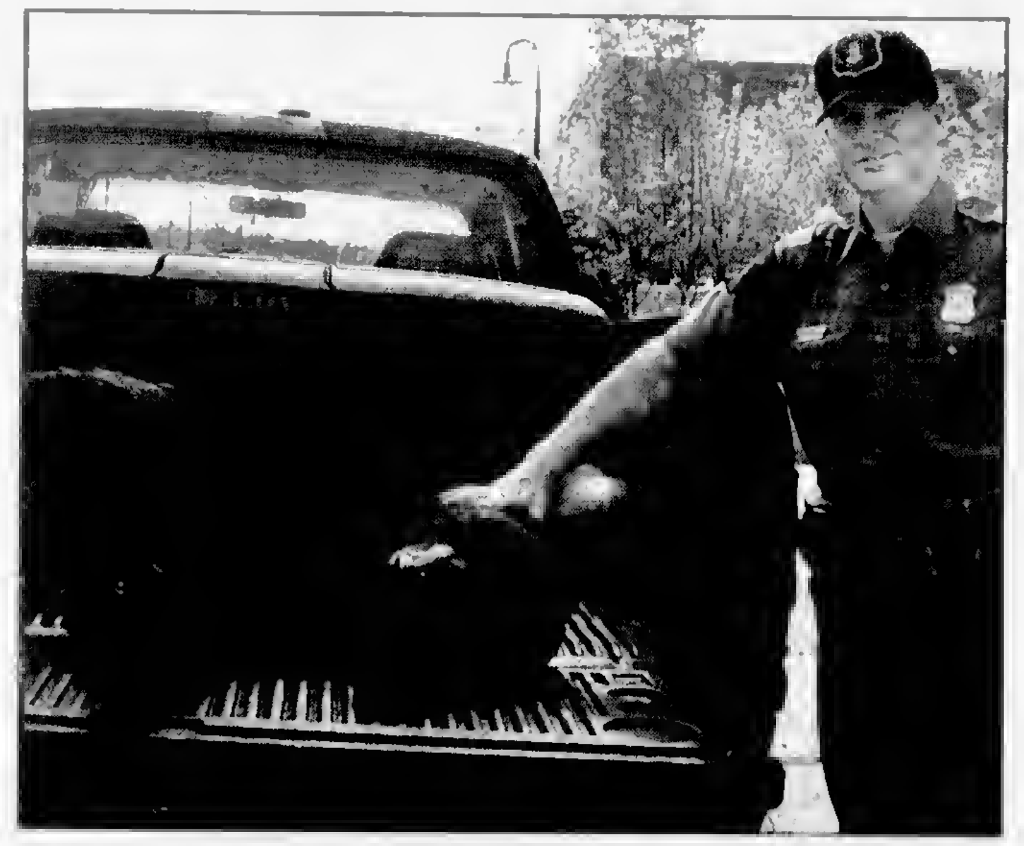
Hands-on Historic Hats are on display in the textile area. Hats and hat pins and other accessories from 1850-1970 will be available for visitors to try on.

Oils and watercolors painted by Irene Harsha Young (1889-1978) hang on the north wall. A local exhibitor at the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair, she was commissioned to paint portraits of Washington and Lincoln for the Charlevoix County Courthouse. These portraits are also on display.

First in a series of community leader biographies, Charles Novak's life will be highlighted in a display of artifacts from his Charlevoix Cigar Company, his career in law enforcement and his construction of five building on State Street.

These five new exhibits accompany the permanent displays of furniture and paintings which are in the two parlors and the dining room of the restored home, known as Harsha House.

Summer hours at the museum are from 1-4 p.m., Monday through Saturday. Call 547-0373 for more information.



Giant bear

This 400 pound black bear was killed when it was hit by a minivan around 10 p.m., June 2 on US-131 north of Boyne Falls. According to wildlife officer Tim Kochanny it was 6-12 years old and is the biggest bear he has seen in the state. While the minivan was totalled, there were no injuries other than to the bear. Track teams return from state with records broken

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Several runners from the Charlevoix High School track teams finished their season at the state finals May 31 in Comstock Park with medals and having broken school records.

"I am really proud of their efforts. They really worked hard all season," Boys' Coach Ken Plude said.

On the boys' team the 1600 meter relay team placed seventh and all received a medal. Plus, it was the best time of the year for the boys with 3 minutes, 30 seconds.

They are: Todd Carey, Ben Bergmann, Kyle Kramer and Peter Gorkiewicz.

Ken added Nate Teuscher was originally a part of that relay team, but gave up his spot to the faster Gorkiewicz.

"That really says a lot about his character," he said.

In the 400 meter relay, the team had its best time of the year with 44.9 seconds. But, this was not good enough for a medal as the team finished twelfth.

They are: Ryan Seelye, Jeff Urban, Spencer Bryan and Kramer.

In the 3200 meter relay, the team finished fifteenth with a time of 8 minutes, 27.5 seconds. They are: Teuscher, Mike Castiglione, Gorkiewicz and Carey.

Bryan also competed individually in the 110 meter hurdles. He finished sixteenth.

As for the girls' team, Liz Ulrich finished eleventh in the 800 meter run with a time of 2 minutes, 25.2 seconds. This was a school record.

"It was a great way for Liz (Ulrich) to cap off her four year career," girls' coach Mary Plude said.

In the 1600 meter relay, the team of Amy Drew, Theresa Martin, Ulrich and Liz Madison finished with a time of 4 minutes, 15 seconds.

Mary said this was their best time of the season and a 2 second improvement over their regional time.

"It was a great experience for the three sophomores. They performed just like they have all season. Their confidence showed on Saturday," Mary added. "It is nice to know they (Drew, Martin and Madison) will be back next year...."

Rayders soccer ends season

The Harbor Springs Rams bettered Charlevoix for the third time this season in winning the district semifinal on Wednesday, 4-0.

Harbor Springs scored about 15 minutes into the first half and followed with two quick scores to go ahead 3-0 going downhill. The Rayders began to hold up at that point and play evened out for the rest of the half.

Harbor Springs scored on a rebound of a save by freshman keeper Laura Nitchman early in the second to end the scoring on the night.

The Rayders were unable to capitalize on six good scoring opportunities.

The Harbor Springs keeper came up strong when needed on a shot by Charlevoix's Shayna Drost.

Nitchman [illegible] 15 saves on the day for Charlevoix earning player of the game [illegible].

The Ray[illegible] received strong efforts from center back Sarah Cross and outside back Madison McKenzie.

Senior Kelly Zimmerman played well in the midfield in her last game, Grace Farrell, Jaime Pettis, Alyssia McDonough and Drost played hard throughout the match.

"Harbor Springs earned the win by going harder to the ball than we did. We wish the Harbor girls good fortune in the tournament," Coach Carol Madison said.

Charlevoix ends the year 8-10-1.

Season ends for Charlevoix Rayders' baseball

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

Charlevoix lost a tough 4-2 decision to Elk Rapids in baseball district semifinal action last Friday.

"The key to the game was that we couldn't capitalize on the Elks' seven errors," coach Bryan Hawkins said. "We battled and had our chances, but we left 11 on base for the day."

The Rayders scored first in the second inning as Taylor Fisher singled, stole second and scored on an errant throw off the bat of Jake Burns.

Charlevoix clung to the 1-0 lead through three innings behind the steady pitching of senior Kreg Wager.

Elk Rapids scored one run in each of the final four innings, however, and Elk reliever Gordon Galbraith silenced the Rayder bats until the bottom of the seventh.

In the Rayders' last bats, Matt Kilkenny reached first on an error. Matt Kochanny and Wager singled to load the bases with one out. Fisher hit into a fielders' choice to drive in Kilkenny and move the tying runs to second and third and bring the potential winning run to the plate with two down.

Galbraith came up big and got a strikeout to end the game. He also doubled and homered in the contest, was the winning pitcher and struck out nine in four innings of work.

Matt Burtt, Kilkenny and Fisher had two hits apiece. Wager took the tough loss on the mound despite yielding only two earned runs on eight hits in six innings of work. He walked only one and struck out seven in his final game as a Rayder.

"I didn't think Kreg had his best stuff today," Hawkins said. "But he hung in there and kept us in the game all day long."

Earlier in the week, Charlevoix was swept by Bellaire, the number six ranked team in Division IV by scores of 6-0 and 12-6.

In the opener, Nate Teuscher, Wager and Matt Loper had the only hits for the Rayders. Wager took the loss on the hill and was the victim of seven errors.

In the nightcap, sophomore Tyler Bier was two for two with a run scored and four RBI. Cody Crain singled, scored two runs, stole two bases and had an RBI. Wager was one for three with two RBI and two runs scored.

Charlevoix finished the season with a 9-17 overall record and a 4-8 mark in the Lake Michigan Conference.

"We've got some big shoes to fill with our departing group of seniors. They were big producers for us," Hawkins said. "But we've got some junior leaders who will be back along with a nice group of sophomores we had up this year and a group coming up from the JVs that played well together all year long."

THERE ARE GOOD REASONS WHY
PUBLIC NOTICE
APPEARS IN YOUR NEWSPAPER.

Currently, and historically, it is the responsibility of state and local government to publish public and legal notices here in Michigan's newspapers. This paper you're holding right now is a historical document, printed and published with a date on every page. And its pages hold your right to know what the government is doing in your community. In fact, it's law.

In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. That is why you have, and read, your newspaper, where public notices are published with accountable circulation and presented to you on these pages in clear black and white.

Softball loses 14-2 in final game

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

A season of improvement for Charlevoix softball ended on a sour note as the Rayders fell in district play to Elk Rapids, 14-2.

"It was an enjoyable season," coach Liz Gruneh said. "The girls were a lot of fun, a good group to work with. We kept improving throughout and this should be a good stepping stone for next season."

Jessica Pettis had the Rayders only hit. Monica Cornell took the pitching loss.

Charlevoix finished the season with a 7-13 overall record, 3-9 in the conference.

Junior Golf to begin soon

Junior Golf begins June 14 to July 30 for ages 8 to 17, at the Charlevoix Municipal Golf Club, 400 Fairway Drive. They will meet twice a week and rotate sites among the five local courses. CHARLEVOIX BRIEFS

Area events

First Friday breakfast

The Ambassadors of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce invite you to attend the First Friday Business Breakfast at 7:30 a.m., on June 6 at the Grey Gables Inn. The speaker is John Campbell, chairman of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce. The breakfast special is $5.

Drop-in Coffee Shop

The First Congregational Church U.C.C. is sponsoring a Drop-in Coffee Shop from 6 to 10 p.m., Friday, June 13, at the corner of Park and State streets in Charlevoix. All ages are welcome. There will be inexpensive snacks and food provided.

Volunteers needed

The Belvedere Golf Club is looking for volunteers for assistance with the Michigan Amateur Golf Tournament. The event is June 17 to June 21. If interested contact Steve Braun at 547-2611.

Veteran's Affairs to be closed

Charlevoix Veterans Affairs Office will be closed from June 16 to June 20. For a medical emergency, call Gaylord V.A. Clinic at (800) 246-3759.

Senior citizen picnic

Charlevoix County Commission on Aging is celebrating all Charlevoix County senior citizens with its twenty-fourth Annual Senior Picnic at Whitings Park from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Wednesday, July 9, on Advance Road. Tickets are $5 for under 60 and the suggested donation for seniors is $3. Purchase in advance at your local senior center or at the Commission on Aging Office at 207 Antrim Street in Charlevoix. The dinner includes chicken barbecue and all the fixings. Any questions or for tickets call Commission on Aging at 237-0103. Transportation to and from Whitings Park by Charlevoix County Transit will be paid by your local Senior Center of Commission on Aging. To make arrangements for a ride please call (231) 582-6900 by Monday, July 7.

Garden Walk

The Charlevoix Area Garden Club's Fifth Annual Garden Walk starts at 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., Wednesday, July 16 (rain or shine). The tickets are $10 and includes a Craft Show and complimentary refreshments to be served at the Depot Heritage Garden. The tickets are $25. Tickets go on sale June 10 and the proceeds go to beautify and maintain the Charlevoix Area Garden Club's numerous gardens and special projects.

Food pantry

The Charlevoix Assembly of God Church Food Pantry will be having summer hours until further notice. The new hours are the last Tuesday of each month from 7 to 9 p.m. Anyone with a critical food need may call the church office at 547-6430 between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Genealogical meeting

The Charlevoix County Genealogical Society will have Lynn Rock of Boyne City as its speaker. She is the web-master of boyneearea.com, a local history research site. The meeting will be at 7 p.m., Thursday, June 5, in the basement community room of the Boyne District Library, 201 East Main Street, Boyne City. The public is cordially invited to attend. Charlevoix school election to be June 9 the upcoming ballot to help keep budget figures close to their current numbers.

BOARD

"As a school board member, I think my job is to make sure that every child has the best possible experience he can have while he's in our schools," Trubilowicz said.

Although Trubilowicz said he has enjoyed serving on the board and would like to see it have a greater presence in the community.

"We can do a better job communicating to the community. We need to demystify how the school board works and work to put ourselves out there," he said.

Hoping to fill the one-year term are nominees Kilkenny and Kusina.

Unlike Trubilowicz, Kilkenny does not have prior experience on the board, but she feels after raising three sons in the Charlevoix school system, she has plenty of knowledge and a unique perspective.

"Because all my boys are out of school, and I am familiar with the schools, I feel like maybe there's a different perspective I can offer," she said.

She said she is ready to tackle any issue that comes her way.

"I feel like I'm a good individual thinker, but I can also be a team player. I am willing to take the issue as far as I can take it and follow through," she said.

Kilkenny believes the district's budget will be one of the school board's main concerns.

"How can we provide the best program, the best curricula, the best education and still stay within a budget? The goal is to try and keep as many of the activities with the students available — whether sports or fine arts. They are so vitally important to the students," she said.

Being a registered nurse she also is concerned with health and safety issues and would like to see students getting more physical activity. Kilkenny added she would like to see a crossing guard near the middle school for safety purposes as well.

However, her main focus, if she were elected, would be the education of children.

"I want to make sure that the students are number one and that we focus all of our efforts into trying to keep all the programs stable," she said.

Kusina also has never served on the school board, but feels he is ready to deal with all of its challenges.

His wife has taught in the Petoskey school system for the past 30 years. Kusina also has a son in his freshman year at Charlevoix High School and a daughter that graduated there four years ago.

"The school system has been good to my family," he said.

In addition to being involved with the education system, he has worked on the building project and the city's recall campaign.

Kusina's focus if elected would be to maintain the school board's present morale.

"I think they have been doing an excellent job. I have no complaints," he said.

Kusina feels money will be a big issue for the school board as well.

"The biggest thing we face is what is going to happen financially to all the schools in the state of Michigan in the next couple of years," he said.

He cites millage issues, the Headlee Amendment and the sinking fund, as immediate concerns of the board.

For further information on the candidates, there will be an open forum with them at 7 p.m., June 4 in the basement of the Charlevoix Public Library. The public is welcome to attend.

Meet the candidates June 4

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix school voters will get to meet the candidates for school board at a special forum starting at 7 p.m., June 4 at the Charlevoix Public Library.

Candidates for school board will be answering six questions given to them in advance by the Friends of the Library. After answering the prepared questions, the candidates will be asked questions by the audience.

Candidates for school board are current board member Bill Trubilowicz, who is running for the four-year position, and Diane Kilkenny and Dennis Kusina, who are running for the one-year term.

The six prepared questions will be:

- What three things do you see as the most important for Charlevoix Public School graduates to have achieved?
- Should Charlevoix middle and high schools implement choral music programs?
- How do you think "zero tolerance" should be applied? Are there ever extenuating circumstances?
- Do you think the study of a foreign language should be added to the elementary curriculum?
- Is the "athletic eligibility policy" an equitable and livable one?
- Why should (or should not) high school students be allowed to ride snowmobiles to school?

City takes out parking proposal

SCHOOL

Dr. John Sturock to determine where they stood on the city's and developer Bill Sherman's bids for the old middle school property.

From that meeting, they reached a consensus on the purchase agreement and decided to pursue the city's offer for $635,000 providing the parking easement paragraph be removed.

The city's offer wanted to include a perpetual easement at the new middle school because it would have been a solution to the city's problem of finding the additional parking needed in the proposed plans for Charlevoix's new marina.

Telgenhof called it backward thinking to decide how to use school property for city parking.

"This is not our issue. This is someone else's issue. They are just asking us to be a part of a solution," he said.

Library director Valerie Meyerson said she did not think the parking issue was a deal breaker and discussion in the meeting pointed toward the likelihood of this being the offer both the city and school board could agree on.

"We've got it down to a place where it would be acceptable to us and the city," Sturock said.

Way said for downtown development, he thought the city's offer was better.

"It has always been the priority to work with the city," Way said.

Wiesner said there is a possibility the school board will work with the city in the future to help it find alternative parking, but the committee did not want parking to be a selling point in the bid.

Committee members agreed to work with the city and not pursue developer Bill Sherman's offer as long as the parking stipulations were removed from the bid. Sherman's offer for all 14 lots is $165,000 more than the city's, but includes the Charlevoix school's administrative building appraised at $140,000.

Wiesner said the council would have liked to keep the parking easement included, but with the issues the school had, they decided removing it would be best.

Parking was the only sticking point in the city's offer after it already made several language changes based on the building and grounds committee's prior recommendations at a special session May 14.

Before the purchase agreement can be signed, both the city and school board need to agree on the final purchase agreement.

"If our board approves it and city council approves it, we can sign it," Sturock said.

The school board will meet June 10 at its regular meeting to discuss accepting the city's revised purchase agreement.

School ballot issues pass

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

Charlevoix residents voted in favor of two millage issues in Monday's school board elections and for residents Diane Kilkenny and Bill Trubilowicz to fill two vacant board seats.

School board president Allen Telgenhof said the passage of both the Headlee Amendment and sinking fund showed that Charlevoix citizens support the district and its students.

"It's just nice to have the citizens allow the school district to have that extra money we need," Telgenhof said.

The Headlee Amendment, which will allocate a full 18 mills from non-homestead property owners, passed by 86 votes with 620 voting in favor and 534 opposing it.

"The Headlee Amendment was particularly nice to see pass. The Lighthouse's future?

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The future of the Charlevoix lighthouse on Lake Michigan could be in the hands of the Charlevoix Historical Society.

The lighthouse is currently owned by the United States Coast Guard, who want to relinquish that ownership within the next couple of years. Because of this, the society's plan is to maintain the lighthouse while the city owns the structure.

"If the city doesn't take ownership, it (the lighthouse) will go up for private sale and it could fall into private hands," Mary Adams, chair of the historical society's lighthouse committee, said.

While it will cost the society money to maintain the lighthouse, the cost to purchase the lighthouse to the city could be nothing, Adams said.

Joe McGuiness, assistant chief for Aids to Navigation Branch in the Ninth Coast Guard District, said lighthouses that are deemed "excess" by the Coast Guard are turned over to the General Services Administration. An "excess" lighthouse is one that is not needed due to changes in maritime navigation technology.

Charlevoix's lighthouse is considered an "excess" lighthouse.

The General Services Administration and the Department of the Interior are the entities who decide who gets the "excess" lighthouses. Generally, these lighthouses go to federal, state and some non-profit organizations and there generally is not a cost for the lighthouse.

McGuiness said only in very rare instances have lighthouses gone to private people.

While, if the city were to get the lighthouse, the cost may be low —

Festival events lineup released

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

July is fast approaching and with thoughts of warmer weather and hitting the beaches, residents can start putting thoughts of the Venetian Festival in their minds too.

While this may be the first time residents have thought about the festival this year, Venetian Board President Dan Barron said it has been on planners' minds since July 28, 2002.

"The morning following the conclusion of last year's festival was when we started (planning)," he said.

Barron said while there are a few changes and additions to this year's festival, it promises to be as good as years past. This year's Venetian Festival begins July 20, Sunday, and lasts until July 27, Sunday.

The music lineup was cut back to six days — from July 21, Monday, to July 26, Saturday — for financial and administrative reasons. The board didn't want the festival to start expanding too much, but what they may lack in quantity, Baron feels they make up in quality.

"Once again we've raised the bar of musical entertainment," he said.

There will be 25 different musical acts over the six days ranging from a Las Vegas review to Dixieland jazz, and this year two popular 1970s artists, Dave Mason and Edgar Winter, will perform Tuesday and Thursday night respectively.

How to get your event news into the Courier

If you have a news item you think would be perfect for the Charlevoix Courier, feel free to call 547-6558, e-mail charlevoixcourier@charlevoixcourier.com or visit the Courier office located at 112 Mason Street in downtown Charlevoix.

News items include events sponsored by non-profit organizations. Please inform us of your event at least two weeks in advance.

Our coverage area is the city of Charlevoix and its immediately surrounding areas, including Beaver Island.

Because of space limitations in the newspaper, we generally try to avoid publishing "check-handing" pictures or "ribbon-cutting" pictures. However, we will work with your organization to get a picture that reflects the event and is visually interesting to our readers.

We cannot attend every event we are notified of due to time constraints on the staff. If you have a picture of your event, we will gladly consider it for publication. But, please, contact us before your event.

It should be noted, each story and picture is dealt with on its individual merits. Any policies outlined above may be suspended by the editor or general manager of the Charlevoix Courier if necessary.

Carano joins Charlevoix Courier as a contributor

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Stefanie Carano, 25, will be contributing stories to the Charlevoix Courier this summer.

Stefanie Carano

Carano previously worked as a traffic reporter for traffic.com and as a reporter for Michigan Community Newspapers, covering Belleville and Romulus. She has a degree in creative writing from Bowling Green State University in Bowling Green, Ohio.

"I like a lot of things about reporting. I like reporting the news, I like being an investigator and I like writing stories about people," she said.

Carano is a new resident of Charlevoix after coming here from the Detroit area to work with her father, Jim, at his business Meridian Advisory Services. Meridian Advisory Services has been located in Charlevoix for about three years.

In January she will be leaving the area to pursue a master's degree in journalism.

In the meantime, Carano will be helping the Courier provide a variety of news articles to its readers, while gaining more insight into the journalism business.

"I want to gain experience in the field. I want to be able to write stories and learn as I go and I want to learn more about the community," she said.

Carano said she grew up and lived in many places, such as Lancaster, Penn.; Detroit, Union Lake, Alabama and Florida. She graduated from West Bloomfield High School.

Carano enjoys writing poetry and fiction — but promised she would never write fiction for the Charlevoix Courier — as well as astronomy, psychology, music and art. She also has done some traveling and has visited Spain, Canada and Mexico City.

In addition to her father and mother, Nancy, both of Charlevoix, Carano has a younger sister, Theresa, who lives outside of the area.

Second Chance back in fireworks lawsuit

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Who: Michigan Court of Appeals
When: June 3
What does it mean: Second Chance Body Armor will be included in the list of defendants in a lawsuit filed over the Venetian Festival fireworks explosion of 1997. The company was removed from the list of defendants by the Charlevoix Circuit Court in 2001, but that decision was appealed.

The Michigan Court of Appeals reversed and remanded a Charlevoix Circuit Court opinion removing Second Chance Body Armor, Inc. from a lawsuit that resulted out of the Venetian fireworks explosion of 1997 on June 3.

The lawsuit was filed by Charles and Diana Cradduck, Taddeusz and Janet Dobrowolski, Gary and Bryan Kress, Frances Ladi, James Sr. and Winifred Snider, Mark and Lisa Sokolowski, Laura Wilson, Shannon Wilson and Deborah Yager. Taddeusz Dobrowski lost an arm and a leg when a shell exploded prematurely in a mortar tube during the 1997 Venetian Fireworks display and he is seeking damages. The explosion injured several people watching the show and killed Charlevoix resident Mark Yager.

Appeals court judges Bill Schuette, David H. Sawyer and Kurtis T. Wilder unanimously agreed that the trial court erred when it removed Second Chance from a lawsuit in the case in 2001. The company was originally removed from the lawsuit by Circuit Court Judge Richard Pajtas when he decided Second Chance was not involved in the firework's display.

However, the justices said employees of Second Chance were involved in the explosion based on work they did on a trailer used for the display. Furthermore, they said a company is responsible for its employees' actions when they are done within the scope of their employment.

The justices wrote, "Second Chance paid its employees for part of the time they spent renovating a trailer that housed the pyrotechnical mortars where the Society has a good plan for lighthouse

EDITORIAL

Once again the Charlevoix Historical Society is working to protect our treasured symbols and beautify the city.

Currently, the society is working on a feasibility study that would determine if it should partner with the city to maintain the Charlevoix lighthouse and how much maintenance on the structure would cost. Under the society's plan, the lighthouse would be owned by the city, but maintained by the society.

This comes as the United State's Coast Guard has been studying its lighthouses in the nation and trying to determine if they are needed or not in the face of new technological advances in maritime navigation. While the Charlevoix lighthouse is a grand sight for boaters entering Round Lake, the Coast Guard has deemed this lighthouse is not needed. Therefore, the Coast Guard will probably be turning the lighthouse over to the General Services Administration, who will decide the fate of the structure. Most likely, the administration will want to give the lighthouse to some government body — such as the city of Charlevoix.

While the cost to take ownership of the lighthouse would be minimal, if there are even any costs, there would be costs to maintain the structure. This is where the historical society comes in.

With the city owning the lighthouse and the society taking care of it, it would be a win-win situation for the community. Just look at some of the society's other successes, such as the restoration of the Harsha House, the Depot and the new Heritage Garden — located at the Depot Museum.

But, this will cost money to do. Just how much is not known. To find out, the feasibility study will tell what the maintenance needs are. But the group needs to pay for the study — a grant has paid for most of it — and needs help raising money.

We wish the society much success in raising the money for the study and for any future maintenance funding needs.

As for the plan to switch ownership of the lighthouse to the city, we hope it works out for the city and the federal government agrees.

If this plan is ultimately approved, a symbol of Charlevoix will be preserved for many years to come.

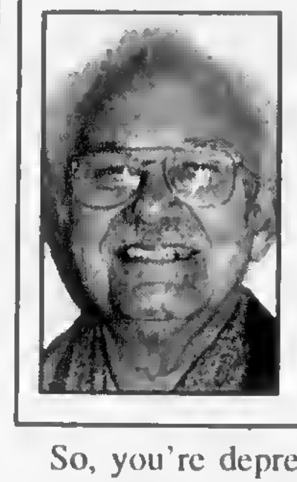
Take a walk in the woods for rejuvenating fresh air



Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

So, you're depressed. Don't feel invigorated by usual stimulation and can't seem to get going? There is a solution. It is free and can be individually applied. Go to the woods.

We've all seen television images of the 350 pound NFL offensive tackle with a plastic mask over his face when the defense is on the field. He is breathing an air mixture enhanced with more oxygen than is usually found in the air we breathe. After a few whiffs, he feels renewed and able to go out there and give his all again.

We can all have that experience more this time of year than at any other and more often in the woods than elsewhere.

All the newest and most active leaves have just emerged on all the local deciduous trees. They are vigorously removing carbon dioxide from the air around them and flooding that air with newly generated oxygen.

Most of the time that sort of activity is of only theoretical interest. But combine the sunlight of early summer, abundant water in the soil, thousands of brand-new leaves, an abundance of trees in our local woods and you have a formula for an oxygen-enriched air abundance.

Next time you feel a bit down, go walk around in North-Point Woods out past the ski hill. Not only is it cool and pleasant, but you will notice almost immediately that same sense of well-being that suffuses the face and body of the NFL tackle.

You are breathing air that has more oxygen than it usually has. You will feel better very shortly and ready to go out there and face the ordinary world again.

While you are in the woods breathing all that life-enhancing oxygen provided by the trees, look around. Without leaving the paths you are surrounded by small plants whose Latin name includes the word "borealis."

Borealis simply means northern, but it often denotes plants those poor folk from downstate don't see on their visits to the oxygen-rich forests farther south.

There are Bead Lilies, Starflowers, Moose maple, Wild Sarsparilla and whole sheets of bright emerald mosses. Near the edges of the woods where it shades off into the sand dunes along that lake shore, there are Wormwood, Pitcher's Thistle and bright orange-flowered Puccoons. The gray leafed thistle grows only along the shores of northern Lake Michigan and Lake Huron.

You will also notice as you walk the dunes the euphoria of extra oxygen disappears. Back in the woods, you might even try running just a bit to convince yourself you are definitely breathing easier.

Do you like wildflowers and don't enjoy walking all that much? Go to the densest forest you can find and just sit there. Do it for your sense of well-being. Do it just to feel better.

Thank the plants and all the green that surrounds you for the gift of oxygen. You won't ever feel so good in the middle of a city or in a parking garage. You will feel good in the middle of a large cornfield in August, but that is another story.

Roger Knutson is a Charlevoix resident and columnist for the Charlevoix Courier. His columns appear every two weeks in the Charlevoix Courier. He can be reached by calling the Courier at (231) 547-6558 or by writing him at 408 Burns Street, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Take down the 'flags'

Editor:

Jingoism or just well-intentioned but misdirected desire to celebrate; which is it?

Recently you published my short, humorous missive regarding the massive blooming of American flags in downtown Charlevoix. I hoped my message, "Too much is, well, just TOO MUCH," would register.

Now I write plainly.

First. What is a flag? According to flag rules and regulations, "... the flag is that which we recognize to be the flag...." Observe the plethora of stars and bars with the message on the bottom, "Proud to be American," festooning countless buildings in Charlevoix, (mainly businesses).

You'd have to be dense to think that these flags could be anything but direct references to Old Glory herself. For proof, I cite www.history.org/betsy/flagetiq.html which depicts a canvas bag with a blue field, four stars within and three red and three white stripes which is entitled, "flag bag," shown therein as an example of "...that which we recognize to be the flag." Therefore the flag bag and the "Proud to be American" flag are both flags of our country.

The same reference source states, I quote again, "No part of a flag should ever be used ..." which indicates that even a recognizable portion of a flag is to be considered a flag even with little or inaccurate visual information or existing in light or with the parts of the flag in a different arrangement.

Therefore, the "Proud to be American" is a flag — our flag! And it has writing attached to it, and I don't — as an American,

Column response

Editor:

Roger Knutson's "Ear to the Ground" columns are usually both entertaining and informative. However, his recent column "Alien plants are not a danger to the ecosystem" was filled with mis-information. I'd like to provide what I feel to be a more realistic view concerning the influence of "alien" organisms in our environment.

Contrary to Mr. Knutson's assertions, there are numerous cases in recorded history in which exotics have eliminated resident, native organisms. For example, introduction of dogs and rats to many of the world's islands by early explorers drove many species of birds and reptiles to extinction. Recent books by respected scientists (for example: S. Weidensaul's "The Ghost with Trembling Wings," and D. Quammen's "The song of the Dodo") provide thorough, inarguable documentation of these cases.

Even if exotic organisms "just" altered the abundance of native organisms, this should in no way be viewed as acceptable. The emerald ash borer (an invading insect native to Asia) has altered the number of ash trees in southern Michigan. Do residents of these areas who've lost large numbers of trees think that this is acceptable? If emerald ash borers expand their range to northern Michigan, will Mr. Knutson feel "richer" for having dead and dying ash trees surrounding his home?

Other examples of the significant negative impacts caused by exotic animals come from our own Great Lakes. Zebra mussels are now extremely abundant in the Great Lakes and annual costs to cities and industries of removing these mussels from water intakes and other structures are conservatively estimated at more than $200 million. Invasive fish — including the round goby, sea lamprey and alewife — have negatively influenced native fish populations — including smallmouth bass, lake trout, sculpins and percids — in large areas of the Great Lakes. Is this OK? Do local fishermen find gobies to be an acceptable substitute for lake trout and bass?

Despite Mr. Knutson's wishful thinking, invading animals won't simply add themselves to the variety already present, "increasing biodiversity." In any system, there is a limited amount of energy available for growth and reproduction of organisms. In addition, animals with similar needs are highly competitive; typically only one species will win out in this competition.

If every organism "that can live somewhere in the world (finds) its way there and take(s) up housekeeping," then eventually we will have a poorer world, not the richer one that he envisions.

In time, we will have communities of plants and animals around the globe that are identical and biodiversity — on a world wide basis — will be reduced, not enhanced. Mr. Knutson is mixing up evolutionary changes, which occur at the time scale of tens of thousands to millions of years, with human-induced changes that can occur over a period of a few years. The results of these effects are in no way comparable. Biodiversity is not something that is created by humans; rather, it is "the totality of hereditary variation in life forms...." (E.O. Wilson — arguably the world's foremost expert on biodiversity - in the book "Naturalists.")

It is a matter of personal ethics whether someone feels that humans should be free to spread organisms throughout the earth. But describing introduction of exotic animals as somehow "helping nature" is entirely misleading.

Thank you

Editor:

On May 19 my husband and I were camping at Young State Park. We planned to bicycle all week long. We had enjoyed Hartwick Pines and its trails on Saturday, Boyne Mountain and its trails and roads on Sunday.

Monday was a beautiful day and we decided to ride around Lake Charlevoix. We had left our campsite about 10:30 a.m. and decided to head around the south end of the lake from Boyne City to Charlevoix, taking the ferry at Ironton. I was in the lead as we passed Ye Nine Olde Holles Golf Course. My front tire had a blowout so violent it came off the rim and I immediately crashed, hitting the pavement so hard with my head and left shoulder that my helmet had a section broke out.

Mike, my husband, and I are very grateful to all of the wonderful people who stopped, called for an ambulance, held my hand until help arrived and directed traffic.

Nancy, Phyllis, Mick and one sweet lady who stayed at my side until I was put into the ambulance, I give you my sincere thanks and appreciation for all your kindness.

Bill Bentley, we thank you for hauling our bikes back to the campground.

Barb and Mike of the EMS unit who took me to Petoskey for x-rays and clean up, your compassion and knowledge kept me comfortable.

I did not break anything. The scrapes and bruising are healing daily.

We love your community and send you our hearty thanks. You are the best.

Lalewicz named new downtown coordinator

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce and the city of Charlevoix have hired Amy Lalewicz as the new downtown coordinator.

Amy Lalewicz

The position is funded equally by both the chamber and the city. Lalewicz was hired in May.

Lalewicz said her job as downtown coordinator will focus on bringing more business in the city of Charlevoix through conferences, groups and meetings in the off season.

But, she said Charlevoix does not have space for large groups and she must focus on small groups from two to 50 people. There has been discussion in town of building a meeting facility to meet the needs of large groups.

However, recently, Charlevoix hosted a group of 250 probation officers at the Charlevoix Country Club. Lalewicz said space was very tight for this group and it would not have worked if they wanted to use "break-out" rooms.

She also said the newly renovated Castle Farms would not work for large groups brought in by the chamber because it is closed from October to May.

Lalewicz came to Charlevoix in 1998 after retiring from a human resources job with Catholic Social Services. Before a career in human resources, she was a social investigator with Wayne County Social Services.

In Charlevoix, she has been involved in the Charlevoix Area Hospital as a member of the Development Council, chaired the Holly Daze committee and is chairing the Symphony on the Green committee.

Lalewicz enjoys gardening and is a member of the Garden Club. She is also a reader, knitter, needle pointer, a gourmet cook, cookie maker, Internet browser and bird feeder.

Birdie Whitley to be honored for window

Birdie Whitley, of Charlevoix, will receive Charlevoix Historical Society recognition for her beauty shop window display of photos of Charlevoix veterans.

A certificate will be presented to her at the Ralph Hamilton Circle Appreciation Party on Tuesday, June 17, at Harsha House, at 103 State Street.

The honored photo is of Whitley's father, Robert Zeitler, a soldier in World War II, who was a great supporter of the local American Legion and VFW.

On Memorial Day last year she asked the community for other pictures and the collection grew.

Three generations of Whitley family members who have served on the military are also on display.

The historical society is happy to see a tradition restored. Over 60 years ago Mrs. Harley Ochs put a photo of her son, Frank, in the window of her Central Drug Store.

All throughout World War II other mothers added their sons' pictures until the windows were full of portraits of all the local servicemen.

For more information call the Charlevoix Historical Society at 547-0373.

Relay For Life to have kick-off meeting June 12

With the annual American Cancer Society Relay For Life In Charlevoix County just two months away, organizers will have a kick-off celebration for sponsors, participants and anyone interested in joining the fight against cancer.

The Relay For Life kick-off will take place at 5:15 p.m., June 12 at the Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix. Community members are invited to learn more about Relay For Life and how they can become part of the event.

Relay For Life is the society's signature activity dedicated to increasing awareness and raising funds to fight cancer. Team members from businesses, families, schools and places of worship walk a track and camp out during 24 hours of entertainment, celebration and reflection.

This year's Relay For Life of Charlevoix County will take place from 10 a.m., Saturday to 10 a.m., Sunday, Aug. 9 and 10. To volunteer with Relay For Life, or for more information, contact Theresa Haske at (877) 240-0001.

"Relay For Life brings together cancer survivors, caregivers, families and friends to celebrate life while honoring those who have lost their cancer battle," Haske said. "It is truly inspiring to witness the teamwork and effort that Charlevoix County residents put into making Relay a success each year."

The American Cancer Society is the nationwide community-based voluntary health organization dedicated to eliminating cancer as a major health problem by preventing cancer, saving lives and diminishing suffering from cancer through research, education, advocacy and service.

For information about cancer or to learn more about Relay For Life, call toll-free (800) ACS-2345 or visit the American Cancer Society web site at www.cancer.org.

Obituaries

Tom LaBlance: Nov. 18, 1937 - June 3, 2003

Tom LaBlance of Charlevoix, died Tuesday, June 3, 2003, at his home.

A Mass of the Resurrection was at 1:30 p.m., Thursday, June 5, at Saint Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. Thomas Neis officiated.

Tom was born Nov. 18, 1937, in Charlevoix, the son of George and Edna (Brooks) LaBlance.

He grew up in Charlevoix and was a 1955 graduate of Charlevoix High School.

He went on to serve in the U.S. Navy for two years.

He graduated from Northern Michigan University in 1961, then moved to Chicago to work for the First National Bank.

On Jan. 18, 1964, he married Maureen Brennan of Elmhurst. Ill. Tom and Maureen returned to Charlevoix in 1964, where he went into business with his father at the LaBlance Insurance Agency.

He was a member of Saint Mary's Church, Charlevoix Kiwanis Club, Charlevoix Lion's Club and the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce.

Tom was one of the founders of the Charlevoix Sports Boosters.

He was an avid golfer and sports enthusiast, especially with all of his children's sports activities.

He was instrumental in getting the millage passed for renovation of the old high school.

Tom had many friends in the community and was well liked by all who knew him.

Tom's sense of humor will be missed by his family and many friends.

He is survived by his loving wife, Maureen; daughter Colleen (Cliff) Clark; sons, Tim (Carrie), Pat (Sandy), Mark (Sarah) and Luke; grandchildren, Nathan, Keegan, Jasie, Hanna, Quinton, Lauren and Ryan; brothers, Steve (Becky), Brendan; sister, Georgia (Tom) Boyer.

Tom was preceded in death by a brother John.

If you wish to make a donation, please consider the Trimper Family Fund or the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Carol Jean Packard: Aug. 27, 1921 - June 1, 2003

Carol Jean Packard, born Aug. 27, 1921, passed away quietly in her sleep on June 1, 2003 following a brief illness.

All of Carol's friends and relatives knew her as a gentle person with a sunny positive attitude.

She enjoyed painting, sewing, and gardening, watching each plant grow, often touring the yard to observe and delight upon their progress.

She was the proud mother of four children, Willard Packard, Jr. (Daryl), Judith Gordon (John), James Packard (Nelsine), and Gayle D'Haeseleer (Ronald Sr.). She felt special joy when surrounded by her grandchildren, Molly, Mathew, Sara, Ronnie Jr., Dana, Alex, Mary, April, Emily, Adam, Tamara, Jay, Barbara, and great-grandchildren Jody, Allie, and Allison.

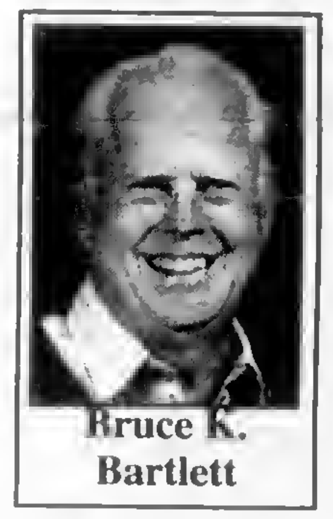
All will miss her dearly.

Carol's husband of 50 years, Willard Packard, Sr., had passed away 12 years ago.

Bill and Carol's ashes will be returned to the earth at a family gathering to be this summer.

Bruce K. Bartlett: Sept. 13, 1920 - May 5, 2003

Bruce K. Bartlett, 82, of Charlevoix, passed away at the home of his daughter Debra Ann Bartlett in Sarasota, Fla. on May 5, 2003.



Bruce K. Bartlett

A memorial service was given at the Community Church of God in Charlevoix, where he was a member, on May 10.

Bruce was born in East Jordan on Sept. 13, 1920 the son of Ira D. and Grace (Kowalske) Bartlett. He grew up in East Jordan helping his father supply honey to the National Biscuit Company.

He attended East Jordan Schools and finished high school in 1940. He played basketball and tennis, in which he went to state finals twice.

He loved tennis, fishing and golf. From there, he went to Battle Creek and worked at United Steel and Wire Company. He enjoyed singing with the company band.

Bruce enlisted with the U.S. Air Force in 1942 and was stationed the remainder of his three-and-a-half years at the Midland Texas Bombardier Training School. He had his overseas orders four times, but was declared essential on the base.

He had a disability injury and received an honorable discharge as a disabled American veteran in 1945.

On May 9, 1943 he married Leona Struthers in Charlevoix. After their tour of duty, they lived for four years in Ontario, Calif. and then returned to Charlevoix to make their home.

Bruce worked floor covering and also repaired and replaced motors in very large trucks in California. In returning home, he worked for Vaughan Floor Covering before starting his own business called Bartlett's Floor Covering, later called Bartlett's Interiors of Charlevoix. He took his son in the business with him years ago.

Bruce was also a president of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce in 1970.

Survivors include his wife of 60 years, Leona, one son, Bruce L., and his wife, Sue, and their son, Nathan Christopher, all of Charlevoix; two daughters, Diana L. Anderson and her daughter Tiffany Marie and Debra Ann Bartlett and her son, Michael Dillon, all of Sarasota, Fla.; many uncles, aunts, nieces and nephews; and one sister, Virgina Grace, of Carson City, Nev.

He was preceded in death by one daughter, Dawn Marie Bartlett; his parents, Ira and Grace Bartlett; one brother, Norm; and two sisters, Lucille Pratt of California and Bernice of East Jordan.

He lived life to its fullest, loved everyone and will be truly missed.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Community Church of God on Hurlbut Street, Charlevoix Area Hospital or a charity of your choice.

The above obituary was reprinted from last week's edition due to an error.

Charlevoix FIA office may be closing

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

The Family Independence Agency (FIA) of Charlevoix County may soon be closing its doors locally, only to reopen them in Petoskey by combining offices.

Several signs point to this being the final summer for the Charlevoix County FIA even though, as of Tuesday, the Charlevoix site has yet to hear official word from Lansing.

Even though the Charlevoix agency may soon operate out of Petoskey, Tom Conlan, chairman of the FIA Charlevoix County Board, said there will be no drop in services.

"We're committed to maintaining the level of service in Charlevoix County and we have a plan to do that," he said.

The FIA specializes in two areas, services and payments, which are all dependent on the applicants eligibility requirements.

The agency serves local families providing delinquency services for troubled youth, foster care, programs to assist the elderly, food benefits, emergency programs to help individuals with evictions and shut off notices, daycare assistance and medical programs.

"We have programs that help protect children and adults from abuse, neglect and exploitation," Bill Denemy, director of Charlevoix and Emmet County FIA, said.

The Charlevoix site has over 4,600 program recipients between its family independence cases, food assistance program, day care, medical assistance and service cases.

Conlan said the FIA is committed to making this an invisible relocation for each and every recipient. He said there are several plans established to help the program consolidation go as smooth as possible.

"There's a demand, and we've staffed as best as we can to meet the demand," Conlan said.

While the office may combine with Petoskey, he said the staff plans to maintain a physical presence in Charlevoix for a minimum of two days a week. Conlan said the agency is working to make all transportation issues non-existent by sending case workers to people's homes and working with the Charlevoix Transit to provide transportation.

The agency also plans to establish a toll free number.

Also, helping to diminish the loss of the physical presence that may be felt by Charlevoix residents is a FIA pilot project in northern Michigan beginning July 1.

The program, which Conlan and Denemy refer to as "transparent county lines," allows recipients to go to any of the 32 counties in northern Michigan and the upper peninsula to receive services, while their programs are still administered out of their county of residence.

"People can apply in any one of those places regardless of which county they live in. Charlevoix and Emmet have been doing this for years amongst ourselves," Denemy said.

A decision to close the Charlevoix site would not be surprising, Conlan said, given it is smaller and the agency knew it needed to cutback due to Michigan budget constraints.

"They've been talking about the need for cutbacks ever since the (Michigan) elections," he said.

Conlan said for several years the bulk of the work staff has been in Petoskey and the Charlevoix site has been more of a satellite office.

By not operating out of Charlevoix, Conlan said it will save taxpayers $100,000 in rent.

Denemy said losing their building will not make a difference in the agencies Charlevoix services.

"It's not a building that provides service, it's the people," he said.

Denemy said no one on his staff of nine people will lose their job due to the consolidation.

"I consider this a win-win situation. I think we can still serve the customer and save the taxpayers money," Denemy said.

Trubilowicz keeping an eye on the meters

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

Sometimes when people see Joel Trubilowicz walking down the sidewalk towards them they run, but usually it's only to add money to their parking meter or move their car.

Trubilowicz became Charlevoix's new meter officer a few weeks ago. While he understands he doesn't have the most desirable position in town, Trubilowicz sees his job as more than handing out $2 meter fines by the dozen.

"I guess maybe I'm not the most popular person around. I'm just going out to help commerce. It helps businesses by moving traffic through," he said. "It's not like I'm going out there trying to get people."

On any given weekday between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m., residents can find Trubilowicz strolling the streets of Charlevoix.

"I think I walk about 8 to 12 miles a day," he said.

Trubilowicz said he doesn't take the same route every day, but he patrols everywhere in Charlevoix where there are parking meters, looking for parking violations and giving directions too.

Trubilowicz said people walking around town will notice his city uniform and stop to ask him directions often, but checking the close to 250 parking meters in the city is his main priority.

He said while other violations do exist, such as parking in handicapped zones, failing to put extra change in the meter is the most common.

"That's 99 percent of everything, just expired meters," Trubilowicz said. "I don't think it's a real big issue to put a dime or quarter in a meter."

He said although this is his first time doing the job, it's going pretty well.

Trubilowicz, a 2000 graduate of Charlevoix High School, is currently attending Michigan Technical Institute for a degree in environmental engineering and geology.

His position is only for the summer.

Many hospital programs to be helped by 'Symphony'

Families and individuals with concerns about aging, long term care services or selection of a nursing home; mothers of young women in those tricky teen years; or individuals whose lives are stress filled may find assistance in a series of programs to be funded by this year's Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation's "Symphony on the Green."

"Where to turn for Help – Older Adults and their Caregivers," "Long Term Care Services – Plan in Advance," "Selecting a Nursing Home – Know Your Rights," "Pressure to be Perfect," and "Desserts and DeStress" are just a few of the program topics this year's "Symphony on the Green" plans on underwriting with funds from the concert, which will be on July 11, at the Dunmaglas Golf Course on the Boyne City/Charlevoix Road.

"Our main focus this year is to not only provide much needed equipment for the Charlevoix Area Hospital surgical department, but to offer programs that focus on the needs and interests of those in our communities," Amy Lalewicz, chair of this year's symphony, said.

This year's concert will feature The Glenn Miller Orchestra and tickets are available now for this one night event. Ticket prices include patron tickets for $200 per person, including dinner prior to the concert and dessert with the orchestra afterward, limited seating under the tent for $50 and lawn seating (Dunmaglas provides the lawn and the purchaser provides the blanket or lawn chair) for just $25 per person.

Seniors and students may purchase lawn tickets for only $15. For additional information or to purchase tickets, call 547-8685.

Funds from the concert will be used to purchase equipment for the surgical services department at Charlevoix Area Hospital; to provide community outreach programs through the hospital's foundation; in support of the Red Cross Great Northern Fish-in with the purchase of a "keeper" fish (now on display at the foundation office, 14634 Park Avenue); and in support of the Crooked Tree Art Center's Beginning Strings Program for Charlevoix and northern Antrim counties.

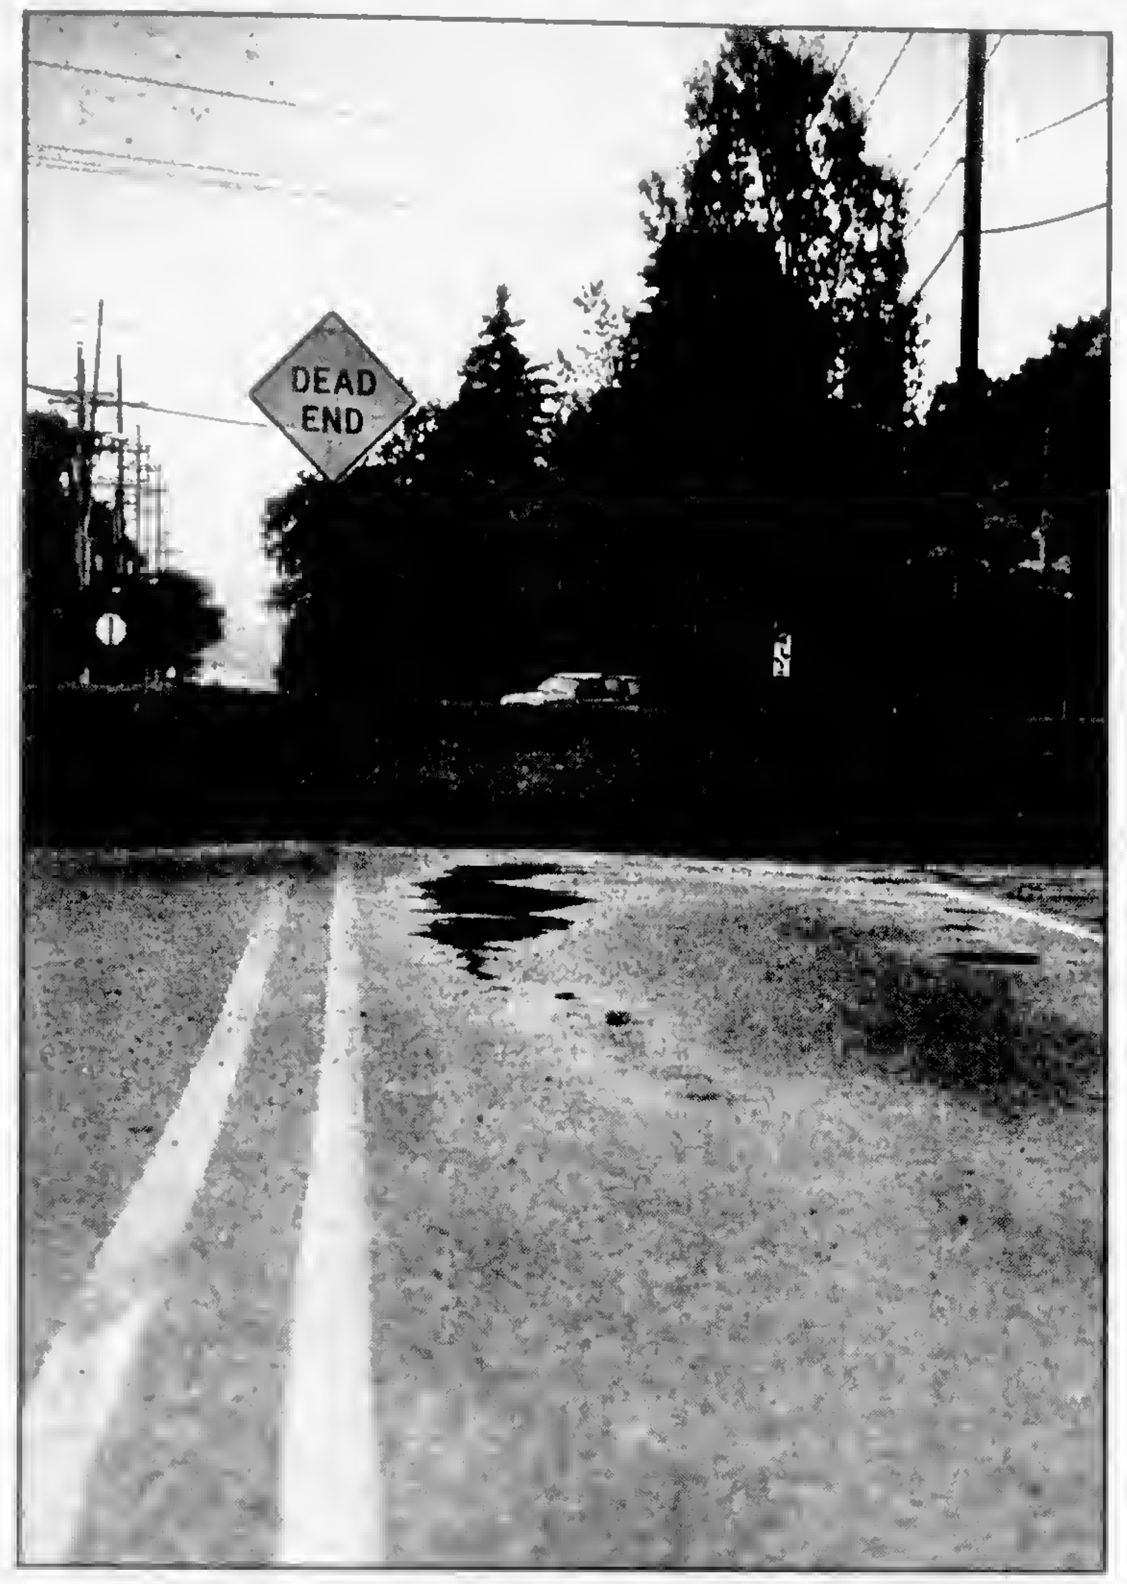
Council considering options for Stover Road



The dead-end Stover Road is the focus of study for the Charlevoix City Council. (Photo by Amy Sayre)

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

Stover Road may be a dead end, but Charlevoix's city council is trying to keep the road and property before the issue reaches a dead end in a year.

At the last city council meeting, June 2, members discussed four possible options that would allow the city to retain its 33 foot portion of the road adjacent to the cemetery.

"The general consensus is to keep what the city owns as public property and not sell any portion," Third Ward council member Sherm Chamberlain said.

Before the city council decides to pursue any of its options, the council asked City Manager Mike Weisner to talk to the private property owners on the north side of Stover Road to hear their opinions about the roads future.

"By getting with adjacent property owners we can come up with a way of preserving (the road)," Chamberlain said.

Weisner said he would inform the city council of his findings at the next meeting.

But a decision must be made soon.

Chamberlain said if the city wants to retain its portion of the road, a decision must be made within the year. As it stands now, if the city does not maintain and improve a road for a four year period of time, it loses the property and would have no say in how it is used in the future.

"I'd hate to give up land because we don't have that much," Charlevoix Mayor Gabe Campbell said.

The fate of the road was originally brought into question at an April city council meeting when Agree Limited Partnership of Farmington

'Get Moving' fitness program continues

Residents from Boyne City, Charlevoix and East Jordan are hitting the bricks, sidewalks and byways in a little friendly competition to Get Moving Northern Michigan.

During the first three weeks of the event Charlevoix County residents have logged a total of 2,015 miles walked. While miles are reported as "walked," participants may choose to run, bicycle, golf, garden, exercise or participate in a long list of other optional activities, all of which are converted to "walked miles" and reported.

Charlevoix participants have logged the largest number of miles thus far with a total of 1,095, followed by Boyne City with 460 and East Jordan with 458. In an interesting turn of events individuals walking for Boyne City won the first two weekly prize drawings.

Deborah Weldon was the first week's winner of a baseball cap. The drawing on May 30, of a baseball cap, was won by Joanne Britton.

Future drawings will include prizes from Harbor Health and Fitness in Charlevoix, Curves, free Pilates sessions from the Method Studio II in Boyne City, golf outings, pool passes, caps, mugs and pedometers.

Participants may pick up their registration packets at the Curves locations in Boyne City, East Jordan, Charlevoix; Boyne Rehabilitation Center in Boyne City; Jordan Valley Rehab in East Jordan; the foundation office in Charlevoix; Harbor Health and Fitness in Charlevoix; or the city hall offices in Boyne City or East Jordan.

Each participant must pay either $1 or a canned good (proceeds will benefit food pantries in the designated communities); select the community they are walking for; and start walking (or other form of exercise).

The program is designed to encourage participants to exercise regularly at an activity of their choice with the focus being on each person's ability to do their best for a period of 100 days.

Residents and summer guests are encouraged to walk, swim, skate, golf, garden or a variety of other activities for the fun of it, to improve their health and for the opportunity to win weekly drawings being held by the foundation.

This is sponsored by the Community Relations Committee of the Hospital's Foundation, and with the support of area businesses, prizes are drawn each Friday for a variety of prizes. Following the completion of the program in September, each participant who returns his "log" to the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation office will be entered into a single big drawing for $100.

Participants may sign up anytime during the spring or summer and participate as long as they are in the area. The program will end on Aug. 23.

Questions about the program may be directed to the foundation office by calling 547-8502.

Parenting class offered at Women's Resource Center

A parenting workshop, based on the best-selling book, "How To Talk So Kids Will Listen and Listen So Kids Will Talk," starts from 1:30 to 3 p.m., Tuesday, June 17 at the Women's Resource Center in Petoskey.

Parents will learn proven skills, such as how to set time limits while maintaining goodwill, cope with their children's negative feelings, express anger without hurting, engage their child's willing cooperation and help their child become caring and responsible. Parents will also learn how to resolve conflicts peacefully and create a family atmosphere of love and respect.

The six-session workshop is sponsored by the Women's Resource Center and will be led by Joann F. Townsend, ACSW.

The cost of the workshop is $75 per person or $80 per couple. Materials are included. Funding sources are available. Please contact Charlevoix-Emmet Family Independence Agency or the Women's Resource Center for an application.

The dates of the sessions are from 1:30 to 3 p.m., June 17, June 24, July 1, July 8, July 15 and July 22. Certificates of completion will be awarded at the conclusion of the program. Advance registration and payment is requested. Space is limited.

Hundreds of thousands of parents and professionals have benefited from the "How To Talk So Kids Will Listen" workshop.

In studies in Wisconsin, Colorado and North Dakota, researchers found that attending parents developed skills that significantly and lastingly improved the quality of their family life. They also found these new-found skills worked equally well with children of all ages.

To register, please call the Women's Resource Center at (231) 347-0067.

MICHIGAN AMATEUR GOLF

Belvedere gears up for return of Michigan Amateur

BY ANDY SNEDDON
Petoskey News-Review staff writer

They say you can always go home again. In the case of the Michigan Amateur golf tournament, home is Belvedere Golf Club.

"We're proud to be here — great tradition," said David Devendorf, vice president of the Golf Association of Michigan, at the tournament media day recently. "It's extrodinary. We're going to be so proud to have this course for all the participants. It (Belvedere) really paints a beautiful picture of the rich heritage of the club."

The 92nd annual tournament, which annually crowns the state's top amateur male player, returns to Belvedere after a 15-year absence. It was played at the Belvedere every June from 1963-88, and 2003 marks the 39th time the course will host the event.

"This has been a labor of love," said Steve Braun, who is in his seventh year as the head pro at Belvedere. "I've had a fun trying to make sure that we do this right."

The tournament begins with 156 players — determined by sectional qualifying and exemptions — on June 17. After two rounds of medal play, the field is cut to the low 64 players, who then square off in a grueling test of elimination match play until the two-man final on Saturday, June 21.

"We really started talking about it, four, five, six years ago," club president Peter Flanigan said. "We are delighted to be considered to have the tournament."

The Belvedere was built in 1925 by William Watson, who also had a hand in designing such famed American golf names as Interlochen in Minneapolis, The Olympic Club in San Francisco, and Olympia Fields outside Chicago, site of this year's U.S. Open.

But before the GAM would award the state amateur to the Belvedere, the club went through a spiffing-up stage, spearheaded by greens superintendent Rick Grunch, along with Braun and general manager Tom Conlan.

"There are really three people who run the Belvedere Golf Club," Flanigan said. "Tom Conlan, Rick Grunch and Steve Braun. If you knew what our budget was ... I mean, these guys just perform miracles."

The work they put in, plus their attention to bringing the course up to championship caliber and covering all the bases, was enough to convince Devendorf, the GAM vice president.

"Two years ago they went to Flint Golf Club" site of the 2001 tournament, he said. "And last year, they were at the Country Club of Jackson.

"They have been extremely dedicated here ensuring that they do it just right for the return to Belvedere. My hat's off to the folks at the club who have prepared this place."

The old-style course, which plays to a par 70, 6,715 yards, is expected to be absolutely shining when the tournament tees off in less than four weeks.

And while the Belvedere certainly will show its teeth, the course features something extra, according to GAM officials who attended Wednesday's event.

"This is special for a lot of us," tournament director Roger Ostrander said. "It's the way you feel when you're out there. It's different than being at The Bear ... You feel like there's a lot of history (at the Belvedere). It's quiet, it's a very nice place to be.

"It's just the greatest place to be. I guess that's why we're here for the 39th time."

Center announces summer art schools

The Crooked Tree Arts Center announced the summer 2003 Community School of the Arts schedule.

Visual arts workshops for adults and youth will begin in July. Youth workshops will be taught by area artists and adult workshops will be lead by artists from southeast Michigan and Georgia.

Summer Arts Camp for youth ages 8-13 will be in weekly sessions from 1 p.m. - 5 p.m. for the entire month of July. Each weekly workshop session will include in studio work and outdoor sessions.

Workshops will meet at the Bear River Heritage Center at 621 Ingalls Road in Petoskey. The enrollment fee per weekly session is $90 for art center members and $110 for non-members.

Scholarships are available for assistance with tuition.

Exploring painting with water based media will run from July 7-July 11, with instructor Neil W. Ahrens. This painting workshop is geared toward students with a strong interest in the arts and with some experience in painting and drawing.

Ahrens, a new art center youth instructor, teaches at the Orion School in Boyne Falls and at North Central Michigan College. He has a master of fine arts degree from Cranbrook Academy of Arts in Painting.

Exploring drawing will run from July 14-July 18 with Neil Ahrens. This drawing workshop is geared toward students with developed drawing skills. Non-traditional techniques will be explored as well.

Local artist Jocy Haderer will teach silk painting and nature book, July 21-25. Students will learn the art of painting on silk and will complete their own wood-framed, silk painting by developing the techniques necessary to use a Chinese bristle brush successfully.

Mary Jill Lemieur, area artist, will teach drawing and painting from July 28 to Aug. 1. Students will maintain a sketchbook/journal of activities including landscape sketching, botanical sketching and nature observation.

Adults, ages 16 and up, can enroll in a variety of two and three day watercolor workshops, meeting from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. The workshop locations will be announced mid-July.

Two day workshops are $100 for art center members and $120 for non-members. Three Day workshops are $150 for members and $180 for non-members.

Instructor Donna Vogelheim, of Farmington, has exhibited at the American Watercolor Society exhibitions, Watercolor West, Rocky Mountain National Watercolor Society and the Midwest Watercolor Society. Vogelheim will teach a two-day beginners watercolor workshop from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Tuesday and Wednesday, July 29 and 30 . A three day workshop for all levels is scheduled for Tuesday-Thursday, Aug. 12-14.

Coe Steinwart, of Marietta, Ga. has exhibited in Mississippi, Kentucky, Georgia, North Carolina and others. She has won awards at the Roswell Arts Festival, Creative Arts Guild, Fairhope Arts Festival and Art in the Park in Marietta. Check out www.coesteinwart.com for images of Coe's prints.

Steinwart will have a two day workshop Tuesday and Wednesday, Aug. 5 and 6 for artists with some experience in watercolor.

Instructor Tony Warren, of Shelby Township, has received over 70 awards in 100 shows including Art and Apples in Rochester. His artwork has been featured in Creative Watercolor: Step by Step.

Warren will lead a three day workshop, winning with watercolor, geared toward intermediate and advanced watercolorists on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Aug. 21-23.

Want to learn more about watercolor? Join Donna Vogelheim on Thursday, July 24 or Coe Steinwart on Monday, Aug. 4 for a free lecture and demonstrations. No admission charge, but please call the arts center to reserve your space.

Enrollment is currently being accepted by calling the arts center at 347-4337 or online at www.crookedtree.org. Enrollment is limited, so early registration is suggested.

The Crooked Tree Arts Center temporary reception desk is located at 445 E. Mitchell Street in downtown Petoskey. For more information, please call 347-4337.

Senior picnic will be July 9

Charlevoix County Commission on Aging is celebrating all Charlevoix County Senior Citizens with its twenty-fourth Annual Senior Picnic at Whitings Park from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Wednesday, July 9, on Advance Road.

Tickets are $5 for under 60 and the suggested donation for seniors is $3. Purchase in advance at your local senior center or at the Commission on Aging Office at 207 Antrim Street in Charlevoix.

The dinner includes chicken barbecue and all the fixings. Any questions or for tickets call Commission on Aging at 237-0103. Transportation to and from Whitings Park by Charlevoix County Transit will be paid by your local Senior Center of Commission on Aging.

To make arrangements for a ride please call (231) 582-6900 by Monday, July 7.

City offers day care service with camp

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Parents of campers at the Charlevoix Recreation Department's week-long summer camp program now have the option of utilizing a new day care service through the city.

The day care is only open to campers and is from 8 a.m. to 9 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. on camp days. It will cost parents an extra $25 for this service, added onto the regular $75 summer camp fee.

There will be eight sessions of the day care to coincide with the eight sessions of camp. However, session four is already filled.

Jenny Jess, summer camp director, said children whose parents take part in the day care option will be overseen by Erin Ganakas, a graduate from Eastern Michigan University with a degree in sociology. Insurance for the camp will be under the city's summer camp service.

As for the annual summer camp, Jess said a new edition this year will be a theme for each week-long session. Week one will be "Back to Camp Party"; week two will be "Camp Freedom"; week three will be "Survivor I"; the filled week four will be "Aloha! Camp Hawaii"; week five will be "Fun Factor"; week six will be "Camp Olympics"; week seven will be "Camp Party" and week eight will be "Survivor II."

Who: Charlevoix City Recreation Department
What It Is: A day care in connection with its annual summer camp.
When: Each week of summer camp.
Where: At Mount McSauba.

Campers can have more than one week, but each session's cost is $75.

Counselors this year will be Sara Parrish, Amy Drenth, Adam Wood, Ryan Vogelheim, Sarah Muladore and Lauren Silberhorn. Junior counselors will be Zita Anderson and Hunter Boss.

For more information on the new day care option for summer camp, please call 547-3253.

Sheriff's Office to host boater's safety classes

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office will offer boating safety classes from 9 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. on the following dates and locations according to Sheriff George T. Lasater:

- June 7 at the Boyne Falls School.
- June 14 at the Charlevoix Middle School.
- June 20 at the East Jordan Public Library.
- June 21 at Irish Boat Shop in Charlevoix.
- June 28 at the Walloon Lake Country Club.
- July 19 at the Charlevoix Middle School.
- Aug. 2 at the Walloon Lake Country Club.
- Aug. 9 at the Boyne City Elementary School.

The minimum age for those attending is 12 years old.

Those attending should bring documentation of his or her date of birth and a sack lunch.

Students who receive a satisfactory exam grade will be issued a Michigan Boating Safety Certificate at the conclusion of the class.

Completion of the course is mandatory for anyone born after Dec. 31, 1978 to operate a boat and for parents to allow their children between the ages of 12 to 14 to operate a personal watercraft.

Lasater reminds parents that they must be physically present with the child while the boat is being operated in this circumstance.

Anyone with questions about the classes should contact Sgt. David Beyer at the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Marine Division at 547-4461, extension 320.

Elderly housing issue heart of zoning debate

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

Charlevoix residents made several comments at Monday's Charlevoix City Planning Commission meeting concerning allowing an assisted living complex in their neighborhoods.

The purpose of the meeting was to gather input concerning which zone an assisted living complex would best fit, so when City Planner Gerry Harsch writes the proposed stipulation in the ordinance, he would have some direction.

While discussion was over an hour long, several residents were clear they were not sure if the complex would be best suited for an R-1 or R-2 zone because it would be adding a high-density commercial area to what is considered a residential zone.

"The purpose that is presently stated in R-1 and R-2 is a stable and sound low density area," said resident Ralph Doan.

Charlevoix City Planning Commission Board members did not reach a conclusion at the end of the meeting, but gave direction to Harsch, who was not present, to look into questions and concerns that arose.

One question that could not be solved by board members was the business status of an assisted living complex.

Unlike churches, schools or other non-profit organizations that are allowed to build in an R-1 or R-2 zone, an elderly housing unit is for-profit and therefore possibly labeled a business, which better fits in the category of an R-4 zone.

While the current ordinance states R-1 and R-2 zones allow non-profit organizations to build, it disallows businesses from developing in these areas unless under special permits.

Resident Andrea Lane said she is afraid if an assisted living complex was put into her residential area it would change the composition of her neighborhood indefinitely.

"I feel like it would start a snowball effect that once you start

Resident's concerns heard at meeting

DISCUSS

you couldn't stop," she said.

Lane said one of the reasons residents chose to live in Charlevoix is its character and putting assisted living complexes in residential areas would take away from Charlevoix's small city appeal.

Residents and commission members also both expressed concern that if an elderly housing unit were built and failed, residents would be stuck with the complex that, if the housing unit was considered a business, could turn into business property instead of reverting back to residential property.

"You put a business there you don't know what it is going to be in 10 years," a resident said.

Diane Gillette of the Sunnybank Retirement Community of Petoskey, said the residents are the reason to build a complex like this in Charlevoix. She said senior citizens often like to remain in their cities once they cannot live on their own.

"They really want to stay in the kind of area they've lived in their whole lives. These are your community residents we're building for," she said.

Resident Rebecca Doan questioned if there would even be enough residents to fill the complex.

She brought to the commission's attention that according to last years census figures, residents age 75 to 84 only increased by 21 people and from age 85 and up there were only 10 more residents.

Commission member John Dobulis said he questions if the reason Charlevoix's elderly population is rising much slower than other cities is because Charlevoix does not have the accommodations to house elderly residents.

"With those low census figures, I wonder are they dying off or are they being forced out? Why isn't (that population) growing? It is growing every other place," he said.

While no decision was reached, commission member John Campbell said in the interest of which ever zone this type of complex is placed under, an elderly housing unit should be allowed under special considerations.

"It's imperative no matter where we do it, we keep it in the special use permits so we can have some control," he said.

Boating safety starts with life jackets

According to AAA Michigan, life jackets are keys to safe boating this summer.

They cost as little as $15. They're lightweight and comfortable. And, more than half of the 38 persons who died in Michigan boating accidents last summer may have been alive today had they been wearing them.

"Wearing your life jacket when having fun on the water should be as much of a habit as buckling your safety belt every time you drive your car. Twenty-two of the 38 who died on the water last year drowned, and only two of those who drowned were wearing life jackets. They are your best defense against drowning — the largest single cause of boating deaths — should you become involved in a boating accident," Richard J. Miller, AAA Michigan Community Safety Services manager, said.

"Michigan's boater safety education program has made great progress in cutting the number of overall accidents," Miller added.

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) says that over the last five years, more than 200,000 Michigan residents — equal to 20 percent of the state's total registered boats — have passed state classes, recommended for all boaters and required for all born after 1978.

In addition, youths aged 12 to 14 must have obtained a certificate before 1999 to operate a personal watercraft. Due in large part to these efforts, boating mishaps have dropped markedly since 1999. That year, there were 430 incidents, 348 in 2001 and 228 in 2002.

"However a look at the fatality figures shows that because of the state's increasingly crowded waters, like a safety belt, wearing a life jacket will save your life," Miller said. "Many boaters think they will have time to find and put on a life jacket in an emergency, when the reality is there often is no time to react, making wearing a life jacket the smartest thing to do."

In 2002 Michigan's boating accident total fell more that 34 percent, however deaths rose by 36 percent, from 28 in 2001 to 38 killed last year.

"Thirty, or 79 percent, of the 38 who died in 2002 were not wearing life jackets," Miller said.

Collisions with other boats, capsizings and falling overboard accounted for 134 of the 228 incidents and careless and reckless operation as well as operator inattention were cited as major pre-crash factors.

Fishermen and other small-boat operators should be specially vigilant in wearing life jackets, since 206 of last year's 328 vessels involved in mishaps were less than 21 feet long, typical size for many fishing craft. Fifty of the mishaps involved capsizing or falling overboard, which often happens when someone stands up or moves quickly in a small boat. Most occur during calm conditions, according to the Coast Guard.

Life jackets not only keep you afloat after a mishap, but can help protect you against deadly hypothermia, or lowering of the body's core temperature, and also provide some protection against internal injury in boating collisions and falls. They are required for all children under age 6 while on an open deck area, and for all operators of Personal Watercraft, or PWCs, as well as water-skiers.

"Combine these factors with the fact that Michigan leads the nation in the number of boating registrations at more than 1 million, and you have the main reason why boaters need to keep safety in mind every time they hit the water," Miller said.

Boaters can also follow these tips:

- Take a safe-boating class. Anyone who operates your boat should complete a class. Classes are now offered through many schools, local sheriff's department marine divisions and diverse groups such as the Coast Guard Auxiliary and Red Cross.

For a partial list of locations, call your local DNR office or go to www.michigan.gov/dnr, click on "Recreation and Camping, then "Boating" and "Boater Safety Courses." Last year, 43,587 persons completed a course in Michigan.

- Give your boat a safety once-over at the start of each season and each time you leave the dock. Depending on its size, all boats must have some type of readily accessible life jacket aboard for each person. Obtain a copy of the DNR's Michigan Handbook of Boating Laws and Responsibilities for more information.
- Be watchful for old pilings, sandbars and other hazards on the Great Lakes, as this is expected to be another low-water year. Plot your routes using a GPS (Global Positioning System) if possible to keep known obstructions pinpointed. Pay attention to restricted boating areas still in effect for Lakes Erie and Michigan. Check with the Coast Guard for specific areas.
- Equip your vessel with a marine radio or cell phone for emergencies and to keep track of the weather. Always head to port immediately if threatening weather approaches. Always have a compass onboard.
- Keep Michigan's lakes clean. Don't top off the fuel tank. Fuel expands in hot weather and could overflow to pollute water. Keep onboard trash in a covered receptacle and ask guests to use on-shore restrooms before you launch. Guard against transporting non-native species such as zebra mussels to other lakes by frequently cleaning your boats' hull, live wells, motor and trailer after visiting known contaminated waters. For a list, contact the DNR.

As part of their curriculum, Charlevoix High students are required to participate in community service projects.

Sophomore Sean Thomas initiated the "CHS Rayders Adopt the U.S.S. San Jacinto." Thomas collected over 200 expressions of thanks and well wishes from students who signed a giant card to the sailors.

He also filmed a video with collections of students' and local business owners' messages of support to the crew. The film included a performance by the Charlevoix High School Band of patriotic songs.

Thomas and his brothers, John Thomas and Ian Thomas and parents traveled to Jacksonville, Fla. on May 20 to present the giant card and video to the U.S.S. San Jacinto crew as it returned from the war.

The Thomas boys' uncle and commanding officer of the San Jacinto, Capt. John C. MacKercher, Jr., accepted the project on behalf of the crew.

MacKercher thanked the students and residents of Charlevoix for their support of the sailors and said that the crew of the "San Jac" appreciated their sentiments. The Thomas family stayed on the warship for the next two days on its "Tiger Cruise" as it returned to its home port of Norfolk, Va.

The crew of the San Jac gave demonstrations of its weaponry and its agility at sea.

The U.S.S. San Jacinto is an Aegis class cruiser assigned to the U.S.S. Harry S. Truman battle group and played a major role in "Operation Iraqi Freedom." It has the record of firing off the most Tomahawk cruise missiles of any naval vessel participating in "Operation Iraqi Freedom."
